TO THE PUBLIC.

No new Publication awakens less curiosity than a volume of Miscellaneous Poems by an unknown Author. Under this disadvantage, (among many discouragements more which need not be named,) the following trifles are offered to the world; yet if they have merit they cannot be entirely overlooked; if they have none they will be justly neglected.

THE WANDERER OF SWITZERLAND, the first, and longest essay in this collection, has a peculiar claim on the liberality of criticism. Whatever its state or its character may be, it is neither written in the spirit, nor after the manner of any preceding Poet. An heroic subject is celebrated in a lyric measure, on a dramatic plan. To unite with the majesty of epic song, the sire, rapidity and compression of the ode, and give to both the grace and variety of earnest impassioned conventation, would be an enlargement of the boundaries of Parnassus. In such an adventure, success would be immortality; and failure itself, in the present instance, is consecrated by the boldness of the first attempt. Under these circumstances, the Wanders of Switzerland will be hospitably received by every lover of the Muses: and though the Poet may have been as unfortunate as his Hero, the insiramities of both will be forgiven for the courage which each has displayed. The Historical facts alluded to in this narrative may be found in the Supplement to Concess Travels, and in Planta's History of the Helvetie Consederacy.

It is proper to observe, that many of the smaller. Pjeces have already appeared in the PORTICAL REGISTER, and other periodical publications: the favour which a few of these anonymously obtained gave birth, to the present volume.

WANDERER OF SWITZERLAND,

A Poem.

IN SIX PARTS.

THE

WANDERER OF SWITZERLAND.

Part I.

A WANDERER of SWITZERLAND and his Family, confifting of his Wife, his Daughter and her young Children, emigrating from their Country, in consequence of its subjugation by the French, in 1798, arrive at the Cottage of A SHEPHERI, beyond the frontiers, where they are hospitably entertained.

90m

Shepherd. "WANDERER! whither dost thou roam?
Weary Wanderer, old and grey!
Wherefore hast thou left thine home,

In the funfet of thy day?"

Wanderer. "In the funfet of my day,

Stranger! I have loft my home:

Weary, wandering, old and grey,

Therefore, therefore do I roam.

Here mine arms a Wife enfold,

Fainting in their weak embrace;

There my daughter's charms, behold,

Withering in that widow'd face.

These her infants,—O their Sire,
Worthy of the race of TELL,
In the battle's sercest fire,
—In his country's battle,—fell!"

Shep. "Switzerland then gave thee birth?"

Wand. "Aye,—'twas Switzerland of yore;

But, degraded fpot of earth!

Thou art Switzerland no more.

O'er thy mountains, funk in blood, Are the waves of ruin hurl'd; Like the waters of the flood, Rolling round a buried world."

Shep. "Yet will Time the deluge ftop;

Then may SWITZERLAND be bleft:

On St. Gothard's* hoary top,

Shall the Ark of Freedom reft."

Wand. "No!—Irreparably loft,

On the day that made us flaves,

Freedom's Ark, by tempefts toft,

Founder'd in the fwallowing waves."

* St. Gothard is the name of the highest Mountain in the Canton of URI, the birthplace of Swiss Independence. Shep. "Welcome, Wanderer as thou art,
All my bleffings to partake;
Yet thrice-welcome to my heart,
For thine injured country's fake.

On the western hills afar,

Evening lingers with delight,

While she views her favourite star,

Brightening on the brow of night.

Here, tho' lowly be my lot, Enter freely, freely share All the comforts of my cot, Humble shelter, homely fare.

Spouse! I bring a suffering guest,.
With his family of grief;
Bid the weary pilgrims rest,
Yield, O yield them sweet relief.

Shep.'s Wife. "I will yield them fweet relief:

Weary Pilgrims! welcome here;

Welcome, family of grief!

Welcome to my warmeft cheer."

Wand. "If the prayers of broken hearts

Rife acceptable above,

Pitying Heaven will take our parts;

Helping Heaven reward your love."

Shep. "Hafte, recruit the failing fire,
High the winter-faggots raife:
See the crackling flames afpire;
O how cheerfully they blaze!

Mourners! now forget your cares, And till supper-board be crown'd, Closely draw your fire-fide chairs; Form the dear domestic round." Wand. "Host! thy smiling daughters bring,

Bring those rosy lads of thine;

Let them mingle in the ring,

With these poor lost babes of mine."

Shep. "Join the ring, my girls and boys;

This enchanting circle, this

Binds the focial loves and joys;

'Tis the fairy-ring of blifs!"

Wand. "O ye loves and joys! that fport
In the fairy-ring of blifs,
Oft with me ye held your court;
I had once an home like this!

Bountiful my former lot
As my native-country's rills;
The foundations of my cot
Were her everlafting hills.

But those streams no longer pour Rich abundance round my lands;
And my father's cot no more
On my father's mountain stands.

By an hundred winters piled,
When the Glaciers,* dark with death,
Hang o'er precipices wild,
Hang,—fufpended by a breath:

If a pulse but throb alarm,

Dash'd down dreadful in a trice,

—For a pulse will break the charm,—

Headlong rolls the rock of ice:

• More properly the AVALANGMES; immense accumulations of ice and show, balanced on the werge of the mountains, in such subtle suspence, that in the opinion of the natives, the tread of the traveller may bring them down in description upon him. The GLACIERS are more permanent masses of ice, and formed rather in the wallies than on the summits of the Alps.

Struck with horror stiff and pale,
When the chaos breaks on high,
All that view it from the vale,
All that hear it coming, die:—

In a day and hour accurft,

O'er the wretched land of TELL,

Thus the Gallic ruin burft,

Thus the Gallic glacier fell!"

Shep. "Hush that melancholy strain;
Wipe those unavailing tears:"
Wand. "Nay,—permit me to complain;
'Tis the privilege of years:

'Tis the privilege of woe,
Thus her anguish to impart:
And the tears that freely flow
Ease the agonizing heart.'

Shep. "Yet fuspend thy griefs awhile:

See the plenteous table crown'd;

And my wife's endearing smile

Beams a rosy welcome round.

Cheese from mountain-dairies prest,
Wholesome herbs, nutritious roots,
Honey from the wild-bee's nest,
Cheering wine, and ripen'd fruits:

These, with soul-sustaining bread,
My paternal fields afford;
On such fare our fathers sed;
Hoary Pilgrim! bless the board.

WANDERER OF SWITZERLAND.

Part II.

After Supper, THE WANDERER, at the define of his Host, relates the foreows and Sufferings of his Country, during the invasion and conquest of it by the French, in connection with his own story.

000

Shep. "Wanderer! bow'd with griefs and years,
Wanderer, with the cheek so pale!
O give language to those tears;
Tell their melancholy tale."

Wand. "Stranger-friend! the tears that flow
Down the channels of this cheek,
Tell a mystery of woe,
Which no human tongue can speak.

Not the pangs of "Hope deferr'd"

My tormented bosom tear:

On that tomb of Hope interr'd

Scowls the spectre of Despair.

—Where the Alpine fummits rife,
Height o'er height stupendous hurl'd;
Like the pillars of the skies,
Like the ramparts of the world:

Born in Freedom's eagle neft, Rock'd by whirlwinds in their rage, Nursed at Freedom's stormy breast, Lived my Sires from age to age.

High o'er Underwalden's vale,
Where the forest fronts the morn;
Whence the boundless eye might fail
O'er a sea of mountains borne:

There my little native cot

Peep'd upon my father's farm:

O it was a happy fpot,

Rich in every rural charm!

There my life, a filent stream, Glid along, yet seem'd at rest; Lovely as an infant's dream On the waking mother's breast.

Till the florm that wreck'd the world,
In its horrible career,
Into hopeless ruin hurl'd
All this aching heart held dear.

On the princely towers of Berne
Fell the Gallic thunder-froke;
To the lake of poor Lucerne,
All fubmitted to the yoke.

REDING then his standard raised,

Drew his sword on Brunnen's plain;*

But in vain his banner blazed,

REDING drew his sword in vain.

Where our conquering fathers died;
Where their awful bones repose;
Thrice the battle's fate he tried,
Thrice o'erthrew his country's foes †

- * BRUNNEN, at the foot of the mountains, on the borders of the Lake of URI, where the first Swifs Patriots, WALTER FURST of URI, WERNER STAUFFACHER of SCHWITZ, and ARNOLD OF MELCHTHAL in UNDERWALDEN, conspired against the tyranny of Austria, in 1307, again in 1798 became the seat of the Diet of these forest Cantons.
- † On the plains of MORGARTHEN, where the Savifs gained their first decisive victory over the force of Austria, and thereby secured the independence of their country, ALLOTS REDING, at the head of the troops of the little Cantons, URI, SCHWITZ and UNDERWALDEN, repeatedly repulsed the invading army of FRANCE.

Happy then were those who fell, Fighting on their fathers' graves! Wretched those who lived to tell Treachery made the victors slaves.**

Thus my country's life retired,
Slowly driven from part to part;
UNDERWALDEN last expired,
UNDERWALDEN was the heart.†

By the resistance of these small Cantons, the French General Shawembourg was compelled to respect their independence, and gave them a selemn pledge to that purport: but no source had they distanced, on the faith of this engagement, than the Enemy came suddenly upon them with an immense force; and with threats of extermination compelled them to take the civic oath to the new Constitution, imposed upon all Switzer-LAND.

† The inhabitants of the lower Valley of UNDERWALDEN alone refifed the French meflage, which required fubmifion to the New Confliction, and the immediate furrender, alive or dead, of nine of their Leaders. When the demand, accom-

In the valley of their birth,
Where our guardian mountains stand;
In the eye of heaven and earth,
Met the warriors of our land.

Like their Sires in olden time,

Arm'd they met in stern debate;

While in every breast sublime

Glow'd the Spirit of the State.

GALLIA's menace fired their blood; With one heart and voice they rose: Hand in hand the heroes stood, And defied their faithless focs.

panied by a menace of destruction, was read in the Assembly of the District, all the men of the valley, fifteen hundred in number, took up arms, and devoted themselves to perish in the vuins of their Country.

Then to heaven, in calm despair,

As they turn'd the tearless eye,

By their country's wrongs they sware

With their country's rights to die.

Albert from the council came;—
(My poor daughter was his wife;
All the valley loved his name;
Albert was my staff of life!)

From the council-field he came;
All his noble vifage burn'd;
At his look I caught the flame;
At his voice my youth return'd.

Fire from heaven my heart renew'd; Vigour beat thro' every vein; All the powers, that age had hew'd, Started into strength again. Sudden from my couch I sprang, Every limb to life restored; With the bound my cottage rang, As I snatch'd my fathers' sword.

This the weapon they did wield,
On MORGARTHEN'S dreadful day;
And thro' SEMPACH'S iron field,
This the ploughshare of their way.*

Then, my Spoufe! in vain thy fears
Strove my fury to reftrain;
O my Daughter! all thy tears,
All thy children's were in vain.

* At the battle of Shmpach, the Austrians presented so impenetrable a front with their projected spears, that the Swiss were repeatedly compelled to retire from the attack, till a native of Underwalden, named Arnold de Win-Relaid, commending his family to his countrymen, sprang upon the enemy, and burying as many of their spears as he could grasp in his body, made a breach in their line; the Swiss rushed in, and routed the Austrians with a terrible saughter.

Quickly from our haftening foes,

ALBERT's active care removed,

Far amidst the' eternal snows,

These who loved us,—these beloved.**

Then our cottage we forfook;
Yet as down the steeps we pass'd,
Many an agonizing look
Homeward o'er the hills we cast.

Now we reach'd the nether glen, Where in arms our brethren lay; Thrice five hundred fearless men, Men of adamant were they!

Many of the UNDERWALDERS, on the approach of the-French army, removed their families and cattle among thehigher Alps; and themselves returned to join their brethrennable had encamped in their native Valley, on the borders of the Lake, and awaited the attack of the enemy.

Nature's bulwarks, built by Time,
'Gainst Eternity to stand,
Mountains, terribly sublime,
Girt the camp on either hand.

Dim behind the valley brake
Into rocks that fled from view;
Fair in front the gleaming lake
Roll'd its waters bright and blue.

'Midst the hamlets of the dale,
STANTZ,* with simple grandeur crown'd,
Seem'd the Mother of the vale,
With her children scatter'd round.

'Midst the ruins of the dale,
Now she bows her hoary head,
Like the Widow of the vale
Weeping o'er her children dead.

The Capital of UNDERWALDEN.

Happier then had been her fate, Ere she fell by such a foe, Had an earthquake sunk her state, Or the lightning laid her low!"

Shep. "Rather had the lightning's flash
Quick confumed thy country's foe!

Rather had the earthquake's crash
Laid her perjur'd tyrants low!

Why did Justice not prevail?"

Wand. "Ah! it was not thus to be!"

Shep. —" Man of grief! pursue thy tale

To the death of Liberty."

END OF THE SECOND PART.

THE

Part III.

The WANDERER continues his narrative, and describes the battle and massacre of UNDERWALDEN.

20m

Wand. "From the valley we descried,

As the Gauls approach'd our shores,

Keels that darken'd all the tide,

Tempesting the lake with oars.

Then the mountain-echoes rang
With the clangor of alarms:
Shrill the fignal-trumpet fang;
All our warriors leap'd to arms.

On the margin of the flood,
While the frantic foe drew nigh;
Grim as watching Wolves we flood,
Prompt as Eagles ftretcht to fly.

In a deluge upon land
Burft their overwhelming might;
Back we hurl'd them from the ftrand,
Still returning to the fight.

Still repulfed, their rage increased,
Till the waves were warm with blood;
Still repulsed, they never ceased,
Till they founder'd in the flood.*

The French made their first attack on the Valley of UNDERWALTERS from the Lake; but after a desperate conflict they were conformally repelled, and two of their vessels, containing five handred men, perished in the engagement.

For on that triumphant day,
UNDERWALDEN'S arms once more
Broke Oppression's black array,
Dash'd Invasion from her shore.

GAUL's furviving barks retired, Muttering vengeance as they fled; Hope in us, by Victory fired, Raifed our Spirits from the dead.

From the dead our Spirits rose,
To the dead they soon return'd;
Bright, on its eternal close,
UNDERWALDEN's glory burn'd.

Star of Switzerland! whose rays
Shed such sweet expiring light,
Ere the Gallic comet's blaze
Swept thy beauty into night:—

D.

Star of SWITZERLAND! thy fame
No recording Bard hath fung,
Yet be thine immortal name
Inspiration to my tongue!*

While the lingering moon delay'd
In the wilderness of night,
Ere the morn awoke the shade
Into loveliness and light:—

Gallia's tigers, wild for blood,

Darted on our fleeping fold;

Down the mountains, o'er the flood,

Dark as thunder-clouds they roll'd.

• In the luft and decifive battle the UNDERWALDERS were overpowered by two French armies, which rufted upon them from the opposite mountains and surrounded their camp, whils an assault at the same time was made upon them from the Lake.

By the trumpet's voice alarm'd,
All the valley burst awake;
All were in a moment arm'd
From the barriers to the lake.

—In that valley, on that shore,
When the graves give up their dead,
At the trumpet's voice once more
Shall those slumberers quit their bed!

For the glen that gave them birth
Hides their afhes in its womb:
O 'tis venerable earth,
Freedom's cradle, Freedom's tomb!—

With fuch defolating shocks,
Did the GAULS our camp affail,
As if UNDERWALDEN'S rocks
Had been tumbling to the vale.

Then on every fide begun
That unutterable fight;
Never rofe the aftonish'd fun
On so horrible a fight.

Once an Eagle of the rock,

('Twas an omen of our fate,)

Stoop'd, and from my fcatter'd flock

Bore a lambkin to his mate.

While the Parents fed their young, Lo! a cloud of Vultures lean, By voracious famine stung, Wildly-screaming rush'd between.

Fiercely fought the eagle-twain, Though by multitudes oppress, Till their little ones were slain, Till they perish'd on their nest. More unequal was the fray,
Which our band of brethren waged;
More infatiate o'er their prey,
GAUL'S remorfeless vultures raged.

In innumerable waves,

Swoln with fury, grim with blood,

Headlong roll'd the hordes of flaves,

And ingulph'd us with a flood.

In the whirlpool of that flood,
Firm in fortitude divine,
Like the' eternal rocks, we flood,
In the cataract of the Rhine.*

Till by tenfold force affail'd,
In a hurricane of fire,
When at length our phalanx fail'd,
Then our courage blazed the higher.

Broken into feeble bands,
Fighting in differer'd parts,
Weak and weaker grew our hands,
Strong and stronger still our hearts.

Fierce amid the loud alarms, Shouting in the foremost fray, Children raised their little arms In their country's evil day.

On their country's dying bed,
Wives and husbands pour'd their breath;
Many a Youth and Maiden bled,
Married at thine altar, Death!*

* In this miserable constitet, many of the Women and Children of the UNDERWALDERS sought in the ranks, by their Husbands and Fathers and Friends, and fell gloriously for their Country.

Wildly fcatter'd o'er the plain,
Bloodier still the battle grew:—
O ye Spirits of the slain!
Slain on those your prowess slew:

Who shall now your deeds relate? Ye that fell unwept, unknown; Mourning for your country's fate, But rejoicing in your own!

Virtue, valour, nought avail'd
With fo mercileis a foe;
When the nerves of heroes fail'd,
Cowards then could firike a blow.

Cold and keen the' affaffin's blade Smote the father to the ground, Thro' the infant's breaft convey'd To the Mother's heart a wound!*

* An indiscriminate massacre followed the battle.

UNDERWALDEN thus expired,
But at her expiring flame,
With fraternal feeling fired,
Lo, a band of SWITZERS came.*

From the steeps beyond the lake, Like a Winter's weight of snow, When the huge Lavanges break, Devastating all below;—†

Down they rush'd with headlong might, Swifter than the panting wind; All before them fear and flight! Death and filence all behind!

- Two hundred felf-devoted herees from the Canton of SWITZ arrived, at the close of the battle, to the aid of their Brethren of UNDERWALDEN,—and perished to a man, after baving slain thrice their number.
- + The LAVANGES are tremendous torrents of melting fnow, that tumble from the tops of the Alps, and deluge all the Country before them.

How the forest of the foe

Bow'd before their thunder strokes!

When they laid the cedars low;

When they overwhelm'd the oaks!

Thus they hew'd their dreadful way;
Till by numbers forced to yield,
Terrible in death they lay,
Like the' AVENGERS OF THE FIELD!"

AND OF THE THIRD PART.

Part IV

The WANDERER relates the circumflances attending the death of Albert.

Shep. " PLEDGE the memory of the Brave,
And the Spirits of the Dead;
Pledge the venerable Grave,
Valour's confectated bed.

Wanderer! this delicious cup,
This infpiring goblet take;
Drink the beverage, drink it up,
For thy martyr'd brethren's fake."

Wand. "Hail!—all hail! the Patriot's grave,
Valour's venerable bed!
Hail! the memory of the Brave,
And the Spirits of the dead!

Time their triumphs shall proclaim,

And their rich reward be this,

—Immortality of fame!

Immortality of blis !"

Shep. "On that melancholy plain,
In that conflict of despair,
How was noble Albert slain?
How didst thou, old Warrior! fare?"

Wand. "In the agony of strife,

Where the heart of battle bled,

Where his Country lost her life,

Glorious Albert bow'd his head.

When our phalanx broke away,

And our floutest soldiers fell,

—Where the dark rocks dimm'd the day,

Scowling o'er the deepest dell;

There like Lions, old in blood,
Lions rallying round their den,
ALBERT and his warriors flood;
We were few, but we were men!

Breast to breast we fought the ground,
Arm to arm repell'd the foe;
Every motion was a wound,
And a death was every blow.

Thus the clouds of funfet beam
Warmer with expiring light;
Thus autumnal meteors ftream
Redder thro' the darkening night.

Miracles our champions wrought; Who their dying deeds shall tell! O how gloriously they fought! How triumphantly they fell! One by one gave up the ghoft, Slain, not conquer'd, -they died free! ALBERT stood,-himself an host! Last of all the Swiss was He! So when Night, with rifing shade, Climbs the Alps from steep to steep; Till in hoary gloom array'd, All the giant-mountains sleep; -High in heaven their Monarch* stands, Bright and beauteous from afar, Shining into distant lands, Like a new-created star.

Mont Blanc;—which is so much higher than the surrounding Alps, that it catches and retains the beams of the

While I firuggled thro' the fight,

ALBERT was my fword and fhield;

Till frange horror quench'd my fight,

And I fainted on the field.

Slow awakening from that trance,
When my foul return'd to day,
Vanish'd were the fiends of France,
—But in Albert's blood I lay!

Slain for me, his dearest breath
On my lips he did resign;
Slain for me, he snatch'd his death
From the blow that menaced mine.

Sun twenty minutes earlier and later than they,—and, erowned with eternal ice, may be seen from an immense distance, purpling with his eastern light, or crimsoned with his fetting glory, while mist and obscurity rest on the mountains below.

He had raifed his dying head, And was gazing on my face; As I woke,—the fpirit fled, But I felt his laft embrace."

- Shep. "Man of fuffering! fuch a tale

  Would wring tears from marble eyes!"

  Wand. "—Ha!, my daughter's cheek grows pale!"

  W.'s Wife.—"Help, O help! my daughter dies!"
- Wand. "Calm thy transports, O my Wife!

  Peace! for these sweet orphans' fake!"

  W.'s Wife.—O my joy! my hope! my life!

  O my child! my child! awake!"
- Wand. "Gop! O Gop! whose goodness gives;
  Gop! whose wisdom takes away;
  Spare my Child!"
- Shep. "She lives! she lives!"
- Wand. "Lives?—my Daughter! didst thou say?

GOD ALMIGHTY! on my knees,

In the dust will I adore

Thine unsearchable decrees;

—She was dead!—she lives once more!

W.'s Daughter.—" When poor Albert died, no prayer

Call'd him back to hated life:

O that I had perish'd there, Not his widow, but his wife!"

Wand. "Dare my Daughter thus repine?

ALBERT! answer from above;

Tell me,——are these infants thine,

Whom their Mother does not love?

W.'s Dtr. "Does not love!—my Father! hear,

Hear me, or my heart will break;

Dear is life, but only dear,

For your service and their sake.

Bow'd to Heaven's mysterious will,
I am worthy yet of you:
Yes!——I am a Mother still,
Though I feel a Widow too!

Wand. "Mother! Widow! Daughter!—all,
All kind names in one,—my Child!
On thy faithful neck I fall;
Kiss me,—are we reconciled?"?

W.'s Dtr. "Yes! to Albert I appeal;

Albert! answer from above,

That my Father's breast may fee!

All his Daughter's heart of love."

Shep.'s Wife.—" Faint and way-worn as they be
With the day's long journey, Sire!

Let thy pilgrim family

Now with me to reft retire."

Wand. "Yes, the hour invites to fleep;

Till the morrow we must part;

Nay, my Daughter! do not weep,

Do not weep, and break my heart.

Sorrow-foothing, fweet repose
On your peaceful pillows light;
Angel-hands your eyelids close;
And God bless you all!—good night!

MND OF THE POURTH PART.

WANDERER OF SWITZERLAND.

Part V.

The WANDERER being test alone with the Shepherd, relates his adventures after the battle of Underwalden.

Shep. "When the good man yields his breath,

For the good man never dies,

Bright beyond the gulph of death,

Lo! the Land of Promise lies.

Peace to Albert's awful shade,
In that land where forrows cease!
And to Albert's ashes, laid
In the earth's cold bosom, Peace!

Wand. "On the fatal field I lay

Till the hour, when twilight pale,

Like the ghoft of dying day,

Wander'd down the darkening vale.

Then in agony I rofe,

And with horror look'd around,

Where embracing, friends and foes,

Doad and dying, ftrew'd the ground,

Many a widow fix'd her eye,
Weeping, where her husband bled,
Heedless, though her babe was by
Prattling to his father dead.

Many a Mother, in despair,

Turning up the ghastly slain,

Sought her son, her hero there,

-Whom she long'd to seek in vain!

Dark the evening shadows roll'd

On the eye that gleam'd in death;

And the evening-dews fell cold

On the lip that gasp'd for breath,

As I gazed, an ancient Dame,

—She was childless by her look!—

With refreshing cordials came;

Of her bounty I partook,

Then, with desperation bold,

ALBERT's precious corpse I bore

On these shoulders weak and old,

Bow'd with misery before.

ALBERT'S Angel gave me ftrength,
As I ftagger'd down the glen;
And I hid my charge at length.
In its wildest, deepest den.

Then returning through the shade

To the battle-scene, I sought

Mongst the slain, an axe and spade;

With such weapons FREEMEN sought.

Scythes for fwords our youth did wield In that execrable ftrife: Ploughfhares, in that horrid field, Bled with flaughter, breathed with life!

In a dark and lonely cave,...
While the glimmering moon arose,...
Thus I dug my Albert's grave;...
—There his hallow'd limbs repose...

Tears then, tears too long repress,...

Gush'd;—they fell like healing balm,,
Till the whirlwind in my breast

Died into a dreary calm.

On the fresh earth's humid bed, Where my Martyr lay enshrined, This forlorn, unhappy head, Crazed with anguish, I reclined.

But while o'er my weary eyes,

Soothing flumber feem'd to creep,

Forth I sprang, with strange surprize,

From the clasping arms of sleep.

For the bones of Albert dead

Heaved the turf with horrid throes.

And his grave, beneath my head,

Burft afunder; ——Albert rofe.

"Ha! my Son!—my Son!"—I cried;
"Wherefore hast thou left thy grave?"

"Fly, my Father!"— he replied;
"Save my wife,—my children fave!"—

In the passing of a breath,

This tremendous scene was o'er;

Darkness that the gates of Death,

Silence seal'd them as before.

One pale moment fix'd I ftood In aftonishment severe: Horror petrified my blood, I was wither'd up with sear.

Then a fudden trembling came O'er my limbs; I felt on fire, Burning, quivering, like a flame In the instant to expire."

Shep. "Rather like the mountain-oak,

Tempest-shaken, rooted fast,

Grasping strength from every stroke,

While it wrestles with the blast."

Wand. "Aye!—my heart, unwont to yield,
Quickly quell'd the strange affright,
And undaunted o'er the field,
I began my lonely flight.

Loud the gufty night-wind blews
Many an awful pause between;
Fits of light and darkness flew,
Wild and sudden, o'er the scene.

For the moon's resplendent eye
Gleams of transient glory shed;
And the clouds athwart the sky,
Like a routed army sled.

Sounds and voices fill'd the vale,
Heard alternate, loud and low;
Shouts of victory swell'd the gale,
But the breezes murmur'd woe.

As I climb'd the mountain's side,

Where the lake and valley meet,

All my country's power and pride

Lay in ruins at my feet.

On that grim and ghaftly plain,

UNDERWALDEN'S heart-ftrings broke.

When she saw her heroes slain,

And her rocks receive the yoke.

On that plain, in childhood's hours, From their Mothers' arms set free Oft those heroes gather'd flowers, Often chaced the wandering bee.

On that plain, in rofy youth,

They had fed their fathers' flocks,

Told their love, and pledged their truth,

In the shadow of those rocks,

There with shepherd's pipe and song,
In the merry-mingling dance,
Cance they led their brides along,
Now!——Perdition seize thee, France!"

Shep. "Heard not Heaven the' accusing cries
Of the blood that smoked around;
While the life-warm facrifice
Palpitated on the ground?"

Wand. "Wrath in silence heaps his store
To confound the guilty foe;
But the thunder will not roar,
Till the slash has struck the blow.

Vengeance, Vengeance will not stay!

It shall burst on Gallia's head,

Sudden as the judgment-day

To the unexpecting dead.

Ś

From the Revolution's Hood,
Shall a fiery Dragon ftart;
He shall drink his Mother's blood,
He shall eat his Father's heart:—

Nurst by Anarchy and Crime, ...

Ile, —but distance mocks my fight:

O thou great avenger, TIME!

Bring thy strangest Birth to light."

- Shep. "Prophet! thou hast spoken well,

And I deem thy words divine:

Now the mournful sequel tell

Of thy country's woes and thine."

Wand. "Though the moon's bewilder'd bark,

By the midnight tempest tost,

In a sea of vapours dark,

In a guiph of clouds was lost:—

Yet my journey I pursued,
Climbing many a weary steep,
Whence the closing scene I view'd
With an eye, that would not weep.

And her hamlets blazed behind,
With ten thousand tongues of fire,
Writhing, raging in the wind.

Flaming piles, where'er I turn'd,
Cast a grim and dreadful light;
Like funereal lamps they burn'd
In the sepulchre of night:—

The triven of STANTZ, and the furrounding Villages, were burnt by the French, on the night after the battle of UNDERWALDER, and the beautiful valley was converted into wilderness.

While the red illumined flood,
With a hoarse and hollow roar,
Seem'd a lake of living blood,
Wildly weltering on the shore.

'Midst the mountains, far away, Soon I spied the facred spot, Whence a flow-consuming ray Glimmer'd from my native cot.

At the fight my brain was fired,

And afresh my heart's wounds bled:

Still I gazed;—the spark expired,

Nature seem'd extinct!—I sted:—

Fled, and ere the noon of day,

Reach'd the lonely Goatherd's nest,

Where my wise, my children lay:

Husband!—Father!—think the rest."

END OF THE FIFTH PART.

WANDERER OF SWITZERLAND.

Part VI.

THE WANDERER informs THE SHEPHERD, that, after the example of many of his Countrymen flying from the tyranny of FRANCE, it is his intention to fettle in some remote Province of America.

Ebep. "WANDERER! whither wouldn't thou

To what region far away,

Bend thy steps to find an home,

In the twilight of thy day?"

Wand. "In the twilight of my day,

I am haftening to the weft;

There my weary limbs to lay,

Where the fun retires to reft.

Far beyond the' Atlantic floods,
Stretch'd beneath the evening fky,
Realms of mountains, dark with woods,
In COLUMBIA's bosom lie.

There in glens and caverns rude,
Silent fince the world began,
Dwells the Virgin Solitude,
Unbetray'd by faithless man:

Where a tyrant never trod,
Where a flave was never known,
But where Nature worships Goa.
In the wilderness alone:—

Thither, thither would I roam;
There my children may be free;
—I for them will find an home,
They shall find a grave for me.

Though my fathers' bones afar
In their native land repose,
Yet beneath the twilight star
Soft on mine the turf shall close.

Though the mould that wraps my clay,
When this ftorm of life is o'er,
Never,—never,—never lay
On a human breaft before:—

Yet in fweet communion there; When she follows to the dead, Shall my bosom's partner share Her poor husband's lowly bed.

ALBERT's babes shall deck our tomb,
And my daughter's duteous tears
Bid the slowery hillock bloom,
Thro' the winter-waste of years.

Shep. "Time! thy chariot-wheels delay;

Death! unfiring thy bended bow;

Sun! forget to bring the day,

Which shall lay the WANDERER low!"

Wand. "Though our Parent perish'd here,

Like the Phœnix on her nest,

Lo! new-sledged her wings appear,

Hovering in the golden west.

Thither shall her sons repair,
And beyond the roaring main,
Find their native country there,
Find their SWITZERLAND again.

Mountains! can ye chain the will?

Ocean! canst thou quench the heart?

No!—I feel my Country still,

LIBERTY! where'er thou art.

Thus it was in hoary time,
When our fathers fallied forth,
Full of confidence fublime,
From the famine-wasted North.*

- "Freedom in a land of rocks,
- " Wild as Scandinavia, give,
- "Power Eternal!-where our flocks,
- " And our little ones may live!"
- There is a tradition among the Swiss, that they are defected from the ancient Scandinavians; among whom, in a remote age, there arefe so grievous a samine, that it was determined in the Assembly of the Nation, that every tenth man and his samily should quit their country, and seek a new possion. Six thousand, chos n by lot, thus emigrated at once from the North. They prayed to God to conduct them to a land like their own, where they might dwell in freedom and quiet, sinding sood for their samilies and pasture for their cattle. God, says the tradition, led them to a Valley among the Alps, where they cleared away the forests, built the town of Switz, and asterwards peopled and cultivated the Canton: of URI and UNDERWALDEM.

بميا

Thus they pray'd;——a fecret hand
Led them, by a path unknown,
To that dear delightful land,
Which I yet must call my own.

To the Vale of Switz they came:

Soon their meliorating toil

Gave the forests to the slame,

And their ashes to the soil.

Thence their ardent labours spread,
Till above the mountain-snows
Towering Beauty shew'd her head,
And a new creation rose!

So, in regions wild and wide,
We will pierce the favage woods,
Clothe the rocks in purple pride,
Plough the vallies, tame the floods.

Till a beauteous inland-ifle,
By a forest-sea embraced,
Shall make Desolation smile
In the depth of his own waste,

There, unenvied and unknown,
We shall dwell secure and free,
In a country all our own,
In a land of Liberty!"

Shep. "Yet the woods, the rocks, the ftreams,
Unbeloved, shall bring to mind,
—Warm with Evening's purple beams,
Dearer objects left behind:

And thy native country's fong,

Caroll'd in a foreign clime,

When new echoes shall prolong,

—Simple, tender and sublime:

How will thy poor cheek turn pale!

And before thy banish'd eyes,

UNDERWALDEN'S charming vale,

And thine own sweet cottage rise!"

Wand. —"By the glorious ghost of TELL!

By MORGARTHEN's awful fray!

By the field where Albert fell

In thy last and bitter day!

See the Queen of Mountains stand, In immortal mail complete, With the lightning in her hand, And the Alps beneath her feet. Hark! her voice:—" My fons! awake; "Freedom dawns, behold the day! "From the bed of bondage break, "'Tis your Mother calls,—obey!"

At the found our fathers' graves,

On each ancient battle-plain,

Utter groans, and tofs like waves

When the wild blaft sweeps the main.

Rife, my Brethren! cast away

All the chains that bind you slaves;

Rife,—your Mother's voice obey,

And appease your fathers' graves.

Strike,—the conflict is begun;
Freemen! Soldiers! follow me;
Shout,—the Victory is won,—
SWITZERLAND AND LIBERTY!"

Shep. "Warrior! Warrior! ftay thine arm!
Sheathe, O sheathe thy frantic sword!"
Wand. —"Ah! I rave!—I faint!—the charm

Flies,—and memory is restored?

Yes, to agony restored

From the too transporting charm:

Sleep forever, O my sword!

Be thou wither'd, O mine arm

Switzerland is but a name!

—Yet I feel where'er I roam,

That my heart is still the same;

Switzerland is still my home!

END OF THE SIXTH AND LAST PART.

THE GRAVE.

There is a calm for those who weep,

A rest for weary Pilgrims sound,

They softly lie and sweetly sleep,

Low in the ground.

The florm that wrecks the winter sky,
No more disturbs their deep repose,
Than summer evening's latest sigh,
That shuts the rose.

I long to lay this painful head

And aching heart beneath the foil,

To flumber in that dreamless bed

From all my toil.

For Mifery stole me at my birth,

And cast me helpless on the wild;

I perish;——O my Mother Earth!

Take home thy Child!

On thy dear lap these limbs reclined
Shall gently moulder into thee;
Nor leave one wretched trace behind,
Resembling me.

Hark !—a ftrange found affrights mine ear;

My pulse,—my brain runs wild,—I rave:

—Ah! who art thou whose voice I hear?

—"I am THE GRAVE!

"The GRAVE, that never fpake before,

Hath found at length a tongue to chide:

O liften!—I will fpeak no more:

Be filent, Pride!

"Art thou a WRETCH, of hope forlorn,
The victim of confuming care?

Is thy distracted conscience torn

By fell despair?

"Do foul misdeeds of former times
Wring with remorfe thy guilty breast
And Ghosts of unforgiven crimes
Murder thy rest?

"Lash'd by the furies of the mind,
From wrath and vengeance wouldst thou slee?

Ah! think not, hope not, Fool! to find

A friend in me.

"By all the terrors of the tomb,

Beyond the power of tongue to tell!

By the dread fecrets of my womb!

By Death and Hell!

"I charge thee LIVE!—repent and pray;
In dust thine infamy deplore;
There yet is mercy;—go thy way,
And sin no more.

"Art thou a MOURNER?—Haft thou known
The joy of innocent delights?

Endearing days forever flown,
And tranquil nights?

** O LIVE!——and deeply cherish still
The sweet remembrance of the past:
Rely on Heaven's unchanging will
For peace at last.

"Art thou a WANDERER?—Hast thou seen.
O'erwhelming tempests drown thy bark?
A shipwreck'd Sufferer hast thou been.
Missortune's mark?

Though long of winds and waves the sport,

Condemn'd in wretchedness to roam,

LIVE!—thou shalt reach a sheltering port,

A quiet home.

To FRIENDSHIP didft thou truft thy fame,

And was thy Friend a deadly foe,

Who stole into thy breast to aim

A surer blow?

"LIVE!—and repine not o'er his loss.

A loss unworthy to be told:

Thou hast mistaken fordid dross.

For Friendship's gold.

"Go feek that treasure, seldom found,
Of power the siercest griefs to calm,
And soothe the bosom's deepest wound
With heavenly balm.

"In WOMAN haft thou placed thy blifs,
And did the Fair One faithless prove?
Hath the betray'd thee with a kifs,
And fold thy love?

"LIVE!—'twas a false bewildering fire,

Too often Love's infidious dart

Thrills the fond foul with sweet defire,

But kills the heart.

A nobler same shall warm thy breast,
A brighter Maiden's virtuous charms!

Blest shalt thou be, supremely blest,
In Beauty's arms.

Confess thy folly,—kiss the rod,
And in thy-chastening forrows see

The hand of GOD.

"A bruifed reed he will not break,

Affictions all his children feel;

He wounds them for his mercy's fake,

He wounds to heal!

"Humbled beneath his mighty hand,
Proftrate his Providence adore:

"Tis done!—Arife! HE bids thee ftand,
To fall no more.

"Now, Traveller in the vale of tears!

To realms of everlafting light,

Through Time's dark wilderness of years,

Pursue thy flight.

A rest for weary Pilgrims found;
And while the mouldering ashes sleep,

Low in the ground;

"The Soul, of origin divine,

GOD'S glorious image, freed from clay,

In heaven's eternal fphere shall shine,

A star of day!

"The SUN is but a spark of fire,
A transient meteor in the sky;
The SOUL, immortal as its Sire,
SHALL NEVER DIE."

THE LYRE.

"AH! WHO WOULD LOVE THE LYRE!"

G. A. Stevens.

Where the roving rill meander'd

Down the green, retiring vale,

Poor, forlorn Alcaus wander'd,

Pale with thought, ferenely pale:

Hopeless forrow, o'er his face

Breathed a melancholy grace,

And fix'd on every feature there

The mournful resignation of despair.

O'er his arm, his lyre neglected,

Coldly, carclefsly he flung;

And, in fpirit deep dejected,

Thus the pensive Poet sung;

While, at midnight's folemn noon,

Sweetly shone the cloudless moon,

And all the stars, around his head,

Benignly bright, their mildest insluence shed.

"Lyre! O, Lyre! my chosen treasure,

"Solace of my bleeding heart;

"Lyre! O, Lyre! my only pleasure,

"We must ever, ever part:

"'Tis in vain thy Poet sings,

"Wooes in vain thine heavenly strings,

"The Muse's wretched Sons are born

"To cold neglest, and penury, and scorn.

- "That which ALEXANDER figh'd for,
  - "That which C.ESAR's foul poffes'd,
- "That which Heroes, Kings have died for,
  - "Glory !- animates my breaft:
- "Hark! the charging trumpets' throats
- " Pour their death-defying notes;
- "To arms!" they call; to arms I fly,
- "Like Wolfe to conquer—and like Wolfe to dic!
  - "Soft!-the blood of murder'd legions
    - "Summons vengeance from the fkies;
  - "Flaming towns, and ravaged regions,
    - " All in awful judgment rife!
  - -" O then, innocently brave,
  - " I will wreftle with the wave;
  - "Lo! Commerce spreads the daving fail,
- " And yokes her naval chariots to the gale.

- "Blow ye breezes!-gently blowing,
  - "Waft me to that happy shore,
- "Where, from fountains ever flowing,
  - "Indian realms their treasures pour;
- "Thence returning, poor in health,
- "Rich in honesty and wealth,
- "O'er thee, my dear paternal foil!
- " I'll ftrew the golden harvest of my toil.
  - "Then shall Misery's fons and daughters
    - "In their lowly dwellings fing;
  - -" Bounteous as the Nile's dark waters,
    - "Undifcover'd as their spring,
  - "I will fcatter, o'er the land,
  - "Bleffings with a fecret hand;
  - -" For fuch angelic tasks defign'd,
- "I give the Lyre and forrow to the wind."

On an oak, whose branches hoary

Sigh'd to every passing breeze,

Sigh'd, and told the simple story

Of the patriarch of trees;

High in air his harp he hung,

Now no more to rapture strung;

Then warm in hope, no longer pale,

He blush'd adieu, and rambled down the dale.

Lightly touch'd by fairy fingers,

Hark!—the Lyre enchants the wind;

Fond Alcrus liftens, lingers,

—Lingering, liftening, looks behind

Now the mufic mounts on high,

Sweetly fwelling through the fky;

To every tone, with tender heat,

His heart-ftrings vibrate, and his pulfes beat.

Now the strains to silence stealing,

Soft in ecstacies expire;

Oh! with what romantic feeling

Poor Alchus grasps the Lyre!

Lo! his furious hand he sings,

In a tempest o'er the strings;

He strikes the chords so quick, so loud,

'Tis Jove that scatters lightning from a cloud!

"Lyre! O, Lyre! my chosen treasure,
"Solace of my bleeding heart;
"Lyre! O, Lyre! my only pleasure,
—"We will never, never part!
"Glory, Commerce, now in vain,
"Tempt me to the field, the main;
"The Muse's Sons are blest, tho' born

"To cold neglect, and penury, and fcorn.

- "What, tho' all the world neglect me,
  - "Shall my haughty foul repine?
- " And shall poverty deject me,
  - "While this hallow'd lyre is mine?
- "Heaven,-that o'er my helpless head,
- " Many a wrathful vial shed,
- -" Heaven gave this lyre !- and thus decreed.
- "Be thou a bruifed, but not a broken reed!"

REMONSTRANCE TO WINTER.

AH! why, unfeeling WINTER! why
Still flags thy torpid wing?
Fly, melancholy Seafon, fly,
And yield the year to Spring,

Spring,—the young cherubim of love,

An exile in difgrace,—

Flits o'er the scene, like Noah's dove,

Nor finds a resting place.

When on the mountain's azure peak,

Alights her fairy form,

Cold blow the winds,—and dark and bleak,

Around her rolls the storm.

If to the valley she repair

For shelter and defence,

Thy wrath pursues the mourner there,

And drives her, weeping, thence.

She feeks the brook—the faithless brook,

Of her unmindful grown,

Feels the chill magic of thy look,

And lingers into stone.

She wooes her embryo-flowers in vain,
To rear their infant heads;

—Deaf to her voice, her flowers remain Enchanted in their beds.

In vain she bids the trees expand Their green luxuriant charms;

—Bare in the wilderness they stand,
And stretch their withering arms.

M.

Her favourite birds, in feeble notes,

Lament thy long delay;

And ftrain their little stammering throats,

To charm thy blasts away.

Ah! WINTER, calm thy cruel rage,
Release the struggling year;
Thy power is past, decrepid Sage!
Arise and disappear.

The stars that graced thy splendid night

Are lost in warmer rays;

The Sun, rejoicing in his might,

Unrolls celestial days.

Then why, usurping WINTER, why
Still flags thy frozen wing?
Fly, unrelenting tyrant, fly—

SONG.

Round Love's Elysian bowers,

The foftest prospects rise;

There bloom the sweetest slowers,

There shine the purest skies,

And joy and rapture gild awhile

The cloudless heaven of Beauty's smile.

Round Love's deferted bowers

Tremendous rocks arife;

Cold mildews blight the flowers,

Tornadoes rend the skies,

And PLEASURE's waning moon goes down

Amid the night of BEAUTY's frown.

Then Youth, thou fond believer!

The wily Syren shun:

Who trusts the dear Deceiver

Will furely be undone!

When BEAUTY triumphs, ah! beware,

-Her smile is hope !-her frown despair !

THE FOWLER.

A SONG;

ALTERED FROM A GERMAN AIR, IN THE OPERA OF "DIE ZAUBERFLÖTE," SET TO MUSIC BY MOZART.

A careless, whiftling Lad am I,
On fky-lark wings my moments fly;
There's not a Fowler more renown'd
In all the world—for ten miles round!
Ah! who like me can fpread the net?
Or tune the merry flageolet?
Then, why, O! why fhould I repine,
Since all the roving birds are mine?

The thrush and linnet in the vale,
The sweet sequester'd nightingale,
The bullfinch, wren and woodlark, all
Obey my summons when I call:
O! could I form some cunning snare
To catch the coy, coquetting fair,
In Curio's filmy web so fine,
The pretty girls should all be mine!

When all were mine,—among the reft,
I'd chuse the Lass I liked the best,
And should my charming mate be kind,
And smile, and kiss me to my mind,
With her I'd tie the nuptial knot,
Make HYMEN'S cage of my poor cot,
And love away this sleeting life,
Like Robin Redbreast and his wife!

SONG:

WRITTEN FOR A CONVIVIAL SOCIETT, WHOSE MOSTO WAS "FRIENDSHIP, LOVE'AND TRUTH,"

When "Friendship, Love and Truth" abound
Among a band of Brothers,
The cup of joy goes gayly round,
Each shares the blis of others:
Sweet roses grace the thorny way
Along this vale of sorrow;
The slowers that shed their leaves to day,
Shall bloom again tomorrow:
How grand in age, how fair in youth,
Are holy "Friendship, Love and Truth!"

On Halcyon wings our moments pass,

Life's cruel cares beguiling;

Old Time lays down his scythe and glass,

In gay good humour smiling:

With ermine beard and forelock grey,

His reverend front adorning,

He looks like Winter turn'd to May,

Night foften'd into Morning!

How grand in age, how fair in youth,

Are holy "FRIENDSHIP, LOVE and TRUTH!"

From these delightful fountains flow
Ambrosial rills of pleasure;
Can man desire, can heaven bestow
A more resplendent treasure?
Adorn'd with gems so richly bright,
We'll form a Constellation,
Where every Star, with modest light,
Shall gild his proper station.
How grand in age, how fair in youth,

RELIGION.

AN OCCASIONAL HYMN.

Theo' shades and solitudes profound,

The fainting traveller winds his way;

Bewildering meteors glare around,

And tempt his wandering feet astray:

Welcome, thrice welcome, to his eye,

The fudden moon's infpiring light,

When forth fhe fallies thro' the fky,

The guardian Angel of the night!

Thus mortals blind and weak, below
Pursue the phantom Bliss, in vain;
The world's a wilderness of woe,
And life a pilgrimage of pain!
No.

Till mild Religion, from above,

Descends, a sweet engaging form,

The messenger of heavenly love,

The bow of promise in a storm!

Then guilty passions wing their slight,
Sorrow, remorfe, affliction cease;
Religion's yoke is fost and light,
And all her paths are paths of peace.

Ambition, pride, revenge depart,

And folly flies her chaftening rod;

She makes the humble contrite heart,

A temple of the living God.

Beyond the narrow vale of time,

Where bright celeftial ages roll,

To scenes eternal, scenes sublime,

She points the way and leads the soul.

At her approach the Grave appears

The Gate of Paradife reftored;

Her voice the watching Cherub hears,

And drops his double-flaming fword.

May we the crown of glory gain;
Rife when the Host of Heaven expire,
And reign with God, for ever reign.

"THE JOY OF GRIEF."

Sweet the hour of tribulation,
When the heart can freely figh;
And the tear of refignation
Twinkles in the mournful eye.

Have you felt a kind emotion

Tremble through your troubled breaft;

Soft as evening o'er the ocean,

When she charms the waves to rest?

Have you loft a friend, a brother?

Heard a father's parting breath?

Gazed upon a lifeless mother,

Till she seem'd to wake from death?

Have you felt a spouse expiring

In your arms, before your view?

Watch'd the lovely soul retiring

From her eyes, that broke on you?

Did not grief then grow romantic,

Raving on remember'd blifs?

Did you not, with fervour frantic,

Kifs the lips that felt no kifs?

Yes! but, when you had refign'd her,

Life and you were reconciled;

One, one dear, one only child.

But before the green moss peeping,

His poor mother's grave array'd,

In that grave, the infant sleeping

On the mother's lap was laid.

Horror then, your heart congealing,

Chill'd you with intense despair;

Can you recollect the feeling?

No! there was no feeling there!

From that gloomy trance of forrow,

When you woke to pangs unknown,

How unwelcome was the morrow,

For it rose on YOU ALONE!

Sunk in felf-confuming anguish,

Can the poor heart always ache?

No, the tortured nerve will languish,

Or the strings of life must break.

O'er the yielding brow of fadness,

One faint smile of comfort stole;

One soft pang of tender gladness

Exquisitely thrill'd your soul,

While the wounds of woe are healing,
While the heart is all relign'd,
'Tis the folemn feaft of feeling,
'Tis the fabbath of the mind.

Pensive memory then retraces

Scenes of bliss for ever fled,

Lives in former times and places,

Holds communion with the dead.

And, when night's prophetic flumbers

Rend the veil to mortal eyes,

From their tombs, the fainted numbers

Of our loft companions rife.

You have feen a friend, a brother,.

Heard a dear dead father speak;

Proved the fondness of a mother,

Felt her tears upon your cheek!

Dreams of love your grief beguiling,
You have clasp'd a consort's charms,
And received your infant smiling
From his mother's facred arms.

Trembling, pale, and agonizing,
While you mourn'd the vision gone,
Bright the morning star arising
Open'd heaven, from whence it shone.

Thither all your wishes bending
Rose in extacy sublime,
'Thither all your hopes ascending
Triumph'd over death and time.

Thus afflicted, bruifed and broken,

Have you known fuch fweet relief?

Yes, my friend! and, by this token,

You have felt "THE JOY OF GRIEF."

BATTLE OF ALEXANDRIA.

** At Thebes, in ancient Egypt, was erected a flatue of Memnon, with an harp in his hand, which is faid to have hailed with delightful music the rising sun, and in melancholy tones to have mourned his departure. The introduction of this celebrated Lyre, on a modern occasion, will be censured as an Anachronism by those only, who think that its chords have been touched unskilfully.

Harp of Memnon! fweetly firung
To the music of the spheres;
While the Hero's dirge is sung,
Breathe enchantment to our ears.

As the fun's descending beams,

Glancing o'er thy feeling wire,

Kindle every chord, that gleams

Like a ray of heavenly fire:

Bright as Venus, newly born,

Blushing at her maiden charms;

Fresh from ocean rose the Morn,

When the trumpet blew to arms.

O that Time had stay'd his flight,

Ere that Morning left the main;

Fatal as the EGYPTIAN night,

When the eldest born were slain!

Lash'd to madness by the wind,
As the Red-sea-surges roar,
Leave a gloomy gulph behind,
And devour the shrinking shore:

Thus, with overwhelming pride,

GALLIA's brightest, boldest boast,
In a deep and dreadful tide,

Roll'd upon the BRITISH host.

Dauntless these their station held,

Though, with unextinguish'd ire,

Gallia's legions, thrice repell'd,

Thrice return'd through blood and sire.

Thus, above the storms of time,

Towering to the sacred spheres,

Stand the Pyramids sublime,

-Rocks amid the flood of years!

Now the Veteran CHIEF drew nigh;
Conquest cowering on his crest,
Valour beaming from his eye,
Pity bleeding in his breast.

BRITAIN faw him thus advance,

In her Guardian-Angel's form;
But he lower'd on hostile FRANCE,

Like the Dæmon of the Storm.

On the whirlwind of the war,

High he rode in vengeance dire;

To his friends a leading star,

To his foes confuming fire.

Then the mighty pour'd their breath,
Slaughter feasted on the brave;
'Twas the Carnival of Death!
'Twas the Vintage of the Grave!

Charged with ABERCROMBIE's doom,
Lightning wing'd a cruel ball:

'Twas the Herald of the Tomb,
And the Hero felt the call.

Felt—and raifed his arm on high,

Victory well the fignal knew,

Darted from his awful eye,

And the force of FRANCE o'erthrew.

But the horrors of that fight,

Were the weeping Muse to tell;

O'twould cleave the womb of night,

And awake the dead that fell!

Gash'd with honourable scars,

Low in Glory's lap they lie:

Though they fell, they fell like stars,

Streaming splendour through the sky.

Yet shall Memory mourn that day,
When with expectation pale,
Of her soldier far away,
The poor widow hears the tale.

110 THE BATTLE OF ALEXANDRIA.

In imagination wild,

She shall wander o'er this plain;
Rave,—and bid her orphan child.

Seek his fire among the slain.

O ye evening breezes rife!

O'er the Lyre of MENNON fweep,

Wake its spirit with your fighs.

To the music of the spheres;
While the Hero's dirge is sung,
Breathe enchantment to our ears.

Let thy numbers foft and flow,

O'er the plain with carnage spread.

Soothe the dying, while they flow

To the memory of the dead.

None but folemn, tender tones,

Tremble from thy plaintive wires;

Hark!—the wounded WARRIOR groans!

Hush thy warbling,—he expires.

Hush!—while Sorrow wakes and weeps:

O'er his relicks cold and pale,

Night her silent vigil keeps,

In a mournful moonlight veil.

Harp of Memnon! from afar

Ere the lark falute the fky,

Watch the rifing of the ftar,

That proclaims the morning nigh.

Soon the fun's afcending rays,
In a flood of hallow'd fire,
O'er thy kindling chords shall blaze,
And thy magic foul inspire.

112 THE BATTLE OF ALEXANDRIA.

Then thy tones triumphant pour,

Let them pierce the Hero's grave;

Life's tumultuous battle o'er,

O how fweetly fleep the brave!

From the dust their laurels bloom,

High they shoot, and slourish free;

Glory's temple is the tomb!

Death is immortality!

THE PILLOW.

THE head that oft this PILLOW press'd,
That aching head, is gone to rest;
It's little pleasures now no more,
And all its mighty forrows o'er,
For ever, in the worm's dark bed,
For ever sleeps that humble head!

My Friend was young, the world was new;
The world was false, My Friend was true;
Lowly his lot, his birth obscure,
His fortune hard, My Friend was poor;

To wisdom he had no pretence,

A child of suffering, not of sense;

For NATURE never did impart

A weaker head, a warmer heart.

His fervent soul, a soul of slame,

Consumed its frail terrestrial frame;

That fire from Heaven so siercely burn'd,

That whence it came it soon return'd:

And yet, O PILLOW! yet to me,

My gentle FRIEND survives in thee,

In thee, the partner of his bed,

In thee, the widow of the dead!

On Helicon's infpiring brink,
Ere yet MY FRIEND had learn'd to think,
Once as he pass'd the careless day
Among the whispering reeds at play,
The Muse of Sorrow wander'd by;
Her pensive beauty fix'd his eye;

With fweet aftonishment he smiled; The Gipley faw-she stole the child; And foft on her ambrofial breaft Sang the delighted babe to rest, Convey'd him to her inmost grove, And loved him with a Mother's love. Awakening from his rofy nap, And gayly sporting on her laps His wanton fingers o'er her lyre Twinkled like electric fire: Quick and quicker as they flew, Sweet and fweeter tones they drew: Now a bolder hand he flings, And dives among the deepest strings; Then forth the music brake like thunder: Back he flarted, wild with wonder! The Muse of Sorrow wept for joy, And clasp'd and kiss'd her chosen boy.

Ah! then no more his fmiling hours Were fpent in Childhood's Eden-bowers, The fall from Infant-innocence, The fall to knowledge, drives us thence: O knowledge! worthless at the price, Bought with the loss of PARADISE! As happy ignorance declined, And reason rose upon his mind, Romantic hopes and fond defires (Sparks of the foul's immortal fires!) Kindled within his breaft the rage To breathe thro' every future age, To clasp the flitting shade of fame, To build an everlasting name. O'erleap the narrow vulgar span And live beyond the life of man!

Then NATURE's charms his heart poffefs'd, And NATURE's glory fill'd his breaft:

The fweet Spring-morning's infant mys. Meridian Summer's youthful blaze, Maturer Autumn's evening mild. And hoary Winter's midnight wild, Awoke his eye, inspired his tongue; For every scene he loved, he fung. Rude were his fongs, and "filly footh," Till Boyhood bloffom'd into Youth: Then nobler themes his fancy fired. To bolder flights his foul aspired; And as the New-Moon's opening eye-Broadens and brightens thro' the fky, From the dim streak of western light To the full orb that rules the night: Thus, gathering lustre in its race, And shining thro' infinite space, From earth to heaven his GENIUS foar'd. Time and eternity explored,

And hail'd, where'er its footsteps trod, In NATURE's temple, NATURE'S GOD: Or pierced the human breast to scan The hidden majesty of Man: Man's hidden weakness too descried. His glory, grandeur,—meanness, pride: Purfued, along their erring courfe, The streams of passion to their source; Or in the mind's creation fought New stars of fancy, worlds of thought! -Yet flill thro' all his ftrains would flow A tone of uncomplaining woes Kind as the tear in Pity's eye. Soft as the flumbering Infant's figh, So fweetly, exquifitely wild, It fpake the Muse of Sorrow's child.

O PILLOW! then, when light withdrew, To thee the fond Enthuliast flew; On thee, in penfive mood reclined,
He pour'd his contemplative mind,
Till o'er his eyes, with mild controul,
Sleep like a foft enchantment stole,
Charm'd into life his airy schemes,
And realized his waking dreams.

Soon from those waking dreams he woke,
The fairy spell of fancy broke;
In vain he breathed a soul of fire
Thro' every chord that strung his lyre,
No friendly echo cheer'd his tongue,
Amidst the wilderness he sung;
Louder and bolder Bards were crown'd,
Whose dissonance his music drown'd:
The Public ear, the Public voice,
Despised his song, denied his choice,
Denied a name,—a life in death,
Denied—a bubble and a breath.

Stript of his fondest, dearest claim,
And disinherited of fame,
To thee, O Pillow! thee alone,
He made his silent anguish known;
His haughty spirit scorn'd the blow,
That laid his high ambition low;
But ah! his looks affumed in vain
A cold inessable disdain,
While deep he cherish'd in his breast
The scorpion that consumed his rest.

Yet other secret griefs had he,
O Pillow! only told to thee:
Say, did not hopeless love intrude
On his poor bosom's solitude?
Perhaps on thy soft lap reclined,
In dreams the cruel FAIR was kind,
That he might more intensely know
The bitterness of waking wee?

Whate'er those pangs from me conceal'd, To thee in midnight groans reveal'd: They stung remembrance to despair; "A wounded Spirit who can bear!" Meanwhile disease, with slow decay, Moulder'd his feeble frame away: And as his evening fun declined The fliadows deepen'd o'er his mind. What doubts and terrors then poffefs'd The dark dominion of his breaft! How did delirious fancy dwell On Madness, Suicide, and Hell! There was on earth no Power to fave: -But, as he shudder'd o'er the grave, He faw from realms of light descend The Friend of him who has no friend. RELIGION! --- Her almighty breath Rebuked the winds and waves of death;

She bade the ftorm of frenzy cease,

And smiled a calm, and whisper'd peace;

Amidst that calm of sweet repose,

To Heaven his gentle Spirit rose.

VERSES

TO THE MEMORY OF THE LATE JOSEPH BROWNE,

OF LOTHERSDALE,

One of the People called Quakers,

WHO HAD SUFFERED A LONG CONFINEMENT IN THE CASTLE OF YORK, AND LOSS OF ALL HIS WORLDLY PROPERTY, FOR CONSCIENCE' SAKE.

"Spirit leave thine house of clay;
Lingering Dust resign thy breath!
Spirit cast thy chains away;
Dust be thou dissolved in death!"

Thus thy GUARDIAN ANGEL spoke,
As he watch'd thy dying bed;
As the bonds of life he broke,
And the ransom'd Captive sled.

"Prisoner, long detain'd below;
Prisoner, now with freedom blest;
Welcome from a world of woe,
Welcome to a land of rest!"

Thus thy GUARDIAN ANGEL fang.

As he bore thy foul on high;

While with Hallelujahs rang

All the region of the fky.

Ye that mourn a Father's loss,
Ye that weep a Friend no more!
Call to mind the Christian cross,
Which your Friend, your Father bore.

Grief and penury and pain
Still attended on his way,
And Oppreffion's fcourge and chain,
More unmerciful than they.

Yet while travelling in diftress,

('Twas the eldest curse of sin)

Thro' the world's waste wilderness,

He had Paradise within.

And along that vale of tears,

Which his humble footsteps trod;

Still a shining path appears,

Where the MOURNER walk'd with GOD.

Till his MASTER, from above,

When the promifed hour was come,

Sent the chariot of his love

To convey the WANDERER home.

Saw ye not the wheels of fire,

And the fleeds that cleft the wind?

Saw ye not his foul afpire,

When his mantle drop'd behind?

126 TO THE MEMORY OF JOSEPH BROWNE.

Ye that caught it as it fell,

Bind that mantle round your breaft;

So in you his meekness dwell,

So on you his spirit reft!

Yet, rejoicing in his lot,

Still shall memory love to weep

O'er the venerable spot,

Where his dear cold relicks sleep.

Grave! the guardian of his duft,
Grave! the treasury of the skies,
Every atom of thy trust
Rests in hope again to rise.

Hark!—the judgment-trumpet calls,
"Soul re-build thine house of clay:

IMMORTALITY thy walls,

And ETERNITY thy day!"

THE THUNDER STORM.

O FOR Evening's brownest shade!

Where the breezes play by stealth

In the forest-cinctured glade,

Round the hermitage of HEALTH:

While the noon-bright mountains blaze
In the sun's tormenting rays.

O'er the fick and fultry plains,

Thro' the dim delirious air,

Agonizing filence reigns,

And the wanness of despair:

Nature faints with fervent heat,

—Ah! her pulse hath ccased to beat!

Now in deep and dreadful gloom,

Clouds on clouds portentous fpread,

Black as if the day of doom

Hung o'er NATURE's shrinking head:

Lo! the lightning breaks from high,

—God is coming!—God is nigh!

Hear ye not his chariot wheels,

As the mighty thunder rolls?

NATURE, startled NATURE reels,

From the centre to the poles:

Tremble!—Ocean, Earth, and Sky!

Tremble!—God is passing by!

Darkness, wild with horror, forms
His mysterious hiding place;
Should He, from his ark of storms,
Rend the veil and shew his face,

At the judgment of his eye,
All the Universe would die.

Brighter, broader lightnings flash,

Hail and rain tempestuous fall;

Louder, deeper thunders crash,

Desolation threatens all;

Struggling NATURE gasps for breath,
In the agony of death.

God of Vengeance! from above
While thine awful bolts are hurl'd,
O remember Thou art Love!
Spare!—O fpare a guilty world!
Stay Thy flaming wrath awhile,
See Thy bow of promise smile!

Welcome, in the eastern cloud,

Messenger of Mercy still!

R.

A Property of the Parks

Now, ye winds! proclaim aloud,
"Peace on Earth, to Man good will!"

NATURE! God's repenting Child,
See thy Parent reconciled!

Hark! the Nightingale, afar,

Sweetly fings the fun to reft,

And awakes the evening ftar

In the rofy-tinted weft:

While the moon's enchanting eye

Opens paradife on high!

Cool and tranquil is the night,

NATURE'S fore afflictions cease,

For the storm, that spent its might,

Was a covenant of peace:

Vengeance drops her harmless rod;

—Mercy is the POWER OF GOD!

ODE

TO THE VOLUNTEERS OF BRITAIN, On the prospect of Invasion.

O FOR the death of Those, Who for their Country die, Sink on her bosom to repose, And triumph where they lie!

How beautiful in death

The Warrior's corfe appears,

Embalm'd by fond Affection's breath,

And bathed in Woman's tears!

Their loveliest native earth
Ensurines the fallen Brave;
In the dear land that gave them birth
They find their tranquil grave.

---But the wild waves shall sweep
BRITANNIA's foes away,
And the blue monsters of the deep
Be surfeited with prey!--

No!—they have 'fcaped the waves,
'Scaped the fea-monsters' maws;
They come! but O shall Gallic Slaves
Give English Freemen laws!

By ALFRED's Spirit, No!

—Ring, ring the loud alarms;

Ye drums awake, ye clarions blow,

Ye Heralds shout "to arms!"

To arms our Heroes fly;
And leading on their lines,
The BRITISH BANNER in the sky,
The star of conquest, shines.

The lowering battle forms

It's terrible array;

Like clashing clouds in mountain-storms,

That thunder on their way;

The rushing armies meet:

And while they pour their breath,

The strong Earth shudders at their seet,

The day grows dim with death.

—Ghofts of the mighty dead!
Your Children's hearts infpire;
And while they on your ashes tread,
Rekindle all your fire.

The Dead to life return;
Our fathers' spirits rise!

—My Brethren! in your breasts they burn,
They sparkle in your eyes.

Now launch upon the foe
The lightning of your rage;
Strike, strike the affailing Giants low,
The TITANS of the age.

They yield,—they break,—they fly;
The victory is won:
Purfue!——they faint,—they fall,—they die;
O ftay!——the work is done.

Spirit of Vengeance! reft:

Sweet Mercy cries, "forbear!"

She class the vanquish'd to her breaft;

Thou wilt not pierce them there?

—Thus vanish BRITAIN's focs

From her consuming eye!

Eut rich be the reward of Those

Who conquer,—Those who die!

O'ershadowing laurels deck
The living Hero's brows:
But lovelier wreaths entwine his neck,
—His children and his spouce!

Exulting o'er his lot,

The dangers he has braved;

He clasps the dear ones, hails the cot,

Which his own valour saved.

——DAUGHTERS OF ALBION! weep;
On this triumphant plain,
Your fathers, husbands, brethren sleep,
For you and freedom slain.

O gently close the eye

That loved to look on you;

O feal the lip, whose earliest figh,

Whose latest breath was true:

With knots of sweetest flowers

Their winding sheet perfume;

And wash their wounds with true-love showers,

And dress them for the tomb:

For beautiful in death
The WARRIOR's corfe appears,
Embalm'd by fond Affection's breath,
And bathed in WOMAN's tears.

—Give me the death of Those
Who for their country die;
And O be mine like their repose
When cold and low they lie!

Their loveliest mother-earth
Enshrines the fallen brave,
In her sweet lap who gave them birth
They find their tranquil grave.

THE VIGIL OF ST. MARK.

Returning from their evening walk,
On yonder ancient flyle,
In fweet, romantic, tender talk,
Two lovers paufed awhile:—

EDMUND, the monarch of the dale,
All-confcious of his powers;
ELLA, the lily of the vale,
The rose of Auburn's bowers!

In airy Love's delightful bands

He held her heart in vain;

The Nymph denied her willing hands

To Hymen's awful chain.

- "Ah! why," faid he, "our blifs delay!

  "Mine Ella! why fo cold?
- "Those who but love from day to day, From day to day grow old.
- "The bounding arrow cleaves the sky,
  "Nor leaves a trace behind;
- "And fingle lives like arrows fly,
  "—They vanish thro' the wind.
- "In Wedlock's fweet endearing lot
  Let us improve the fcene,
- "That fome may be, when we are not,
  "To tell—that we have been."
- "Tis now," replied the village Belle,
  "Saint Mark's mysterious eve;
- "And all that old traditions tell
  "I tremblingly believe:—

- "How, when the midnight fignal tolls,
  - " Along the church-yard green,
- " A mournful train of fentenced fouls
  - " In winding sheets are seen!
- "The ghosts of all, whom DEATH shall doom
  - "Within the coming year,
- "In pale procession walk the gloom,
  - " Amid the filence drear!
- " If EDMUND, bold in conscious might,
  - " By love feverely tried,
- " Can brave the terrors of to-night,
  - "ELLA will be his bride."

She spake,—and, like the simble fawn,
From EDMUND's presence sted:
He sought, across the rural lawn,
The dwelling of the dead!

That filent, folemn, fimple fpot,

The mouldering realm of peace,

Where human passions are forgot!

Where human follies cease!

The gliding moon, through heaven ferene,

Purfued her tranquil way,

And shed o'er all the sleeping scene

A soft nocturnal day.

With swelling heart and eager feet,
Young EDMUND gain'd the church,
And chose his solitary seat
Within the dreadful porch.

Thick, threatening clouds, affembling foon,

Their dragon-wings difplay'd;

Eclipfed the flow-retiring moon,

And quench'd the flars in shade.

Amid the deep abys of gloom

No ray of beauty smiled,

Save, glistening o'er some haunted tomb,

The glow-worm's lustre wild.

The village watch-dogs bay'd around,

The long grass whistled drear,

The steeple trembled to the ground,

Even EDMUND quaked with fear.

All on a fudden died the blaft,

Dumb horror chill'd the air,

While NATURE feem'd to paufe aghaft,

In uttermoft defpair.

Twelve times the midnight herald toll'd

As oft did EDMUND ftart;

For every stroke fell dead and cold

Upon his fainting heart.

Then glaring through the ghaftly gloom,
Along the church-yard green,
The deftin'd victims of the tomb
In winding sheets were seen.

In that pale moment EDMUND flood,
Sick with fevere furprife;
While creeping horror drank his blood,
And fix'd his flinty eyes.

He saw the secrets of the grave!

He saw the sace of DEATH!

No pitying power appear'd to save—

He gasp'd away his breath!

Yet fill the scene his soul beguiled,
And every spectre cast
A look, unutterably wild,
On EDMUND, as they pass'd.

All on the ground entranced he lay;
At length the vision broke!

-When, lo !-a kis as cold as clay,
The slumbering Youth awoke.

That moment, streaming through a cloud,
The sudden moon display'd,
Robed in a melancholy shroud,
The image of a maid.

Her dusky veil aside she threw,

And shew'd a face most fair;

To clasp his ELLA—EDMUND slew,

And clipt the empty air!

- "Ha! who art thou!"—His cheek grew pale;
  A well-known voice replied,
- "ELLA, the lily of the vale!

  "ELLA—thy deftin'd bride!"

To win his neck, her airy arms

The pallid phantom fpread;

Recoiling from her blafted charms,

The' affrighted lover fled.

To shun the visionary maid

His speed outstript the wind;

But,—though unseen to move,—the shade

Was evermore behind!

So DEATH's unerring arrows glide,
Yet feem furpended ftill;
Nor pause, nor shrink, nor turn aside,
But smite, subdue and kill.

O'er many a mountain, moor and vale,
On that tremendous night,
The Ghost of Ella, wild and pale,
Pursued her Lover's flight.

But when the dawn began to gleam,

Ere yet the morning shone,

She vanish'd like a nightmare-dream,

And EDMUND stood alone.

Three days, bewilder'd and forlorn,

He fought his home in vain;

At length he hail'd the hoary thorn,

That crown'd his native plain.

Twas evening:—all the air was balm,
The heavens ferenely clear;
When the foft music of a psalm
Came pensive o'er his ear.

Then funk his heart;—a ftrange furmife

Made all his blood run cold:

He flew,—a funeral met his eyes;

He paufed,—a death-bell toll'd.

"'Tis she! 'tis she!"—He burst away;
And bending o'er the spot,
Where all that once was ELLA lay,
He all beside forgot!

A maniac now, in damb defpair,
With love-bewilder'd mien,
He wanders, weeps and watches there,
Among the hillocks green.

And every Eve of pale St. MARK,

As village hinds relate,

He walks with Ella in the dark,

And reads the rolls of Fate!

HANNAH.

Ar fond fixteen my roving heart.

Was pierced by Love's delightful dart:

Keen transport throb'd thro' every vein,

I never selt so sweet a pain!

Where circling woods embower'd the glade,
I met the dear romantic maid:
I ftole her hand,—it fhrunk,—but no!
I would not let my captive go.

With all the fervency of youth,
While passion told the tale of truth,
I mark'd my HANNAH's downcast eye,
'Twas kind, but beautifully shy.

Not with a warmer, purer ray,
The Sun, enamour'd, wooes young May;
Nor May, with fofter maiden grace,
Turns from the fun her blufhing face.

But, fwifter than the frighted dove, Fled the gay morning of my love: Ah! that so bright a morn, so soon, Should vanish in so dark a noon!

The angel of affliction rofe,

And in his grafp a thousand woes;

He pour'd his vial on my head,

And all the heaven of rapture fied.

Yet, in the glory of my pride,

I stood,—and all his wrath desied;

I stood,—though whirlwinds shook my brain,
And lightnings cleft my foul in twain.

I shun'd my nymph;—and knew not why
I durst not meet her gentle eye;
I shun'd her,—for I could not bear
To marry her to my despair.

Yet, fick at heart with hope delay'd,
Oft the dear image of that maid
Glanced, like the rainbow, o'er my mind,
And promifed happiness behind.

The florm blew o'er, and in my breaft
The halcyon peace rebuilt her neft;
The florm blew o'er, and clear and mild
The fea of youth and pleafure fmiled.

'Twas on the merry morn of May,
To Hannah's cot I took my way;
My eager hopes were on the wing,
Like swallows sporting in the spring.

Then as I climb'd the mountains o'er,
I lived my wooing days once more:
And fancy sketch'd my married lot,
My wife, my children and my cot!

I faw the village steeple rise,—
My soul sprang, sparkling, in my eyes;
The rural bells rang sweet and clear,—
My fond heart listen'd in mine ear.

I reach'd the hamlet:—all was gay;
I love a ruftic holiday!
I met a wedding,—ftep'd afide;
It pafs'd;—my HANNAH was the bride!

—There is a grief that cannot feel;

It leaves a wound that will not heal;

—My heart grew cold,—it felt not then;

When shall it cease to feel again?

A FIELD FLOWER:

ON FINDING ONE IN FULL BLOOM ON CHRISTMAS DAY 1803.

THERE is a flower, a little flower,
With filver creft and golden eye,
That welcomes every changing hour,
And weathers every fky.

The prouder Beauties of the field,
In gay but quick fuccession shire,
Race after race their honours yield,
They slourish and decline.

But this small flower, to Nature dear,
While moons and stars their courses run,
Wreathes the whole circle of the year,
Companion of the sun.

It fmiles upon the lap of May,

To fultry August spreads its charms,

Lights pale October on his way,

And twines December's arms.

The purple heath, and golden broom,
On moory mountains catch the gale,
O'er lawns the lily sheds perfume,
The violet in the vale.

But this bold floweret climbs the hill,
Hides in the forest, haunts the glen,
Plays on the margin of the rill,
Peeps round the fox's den.

Within the garden's cultured round, It shares the sweet carnation's bed; And blooms on consecrated ground In honour of the dead.

À FIELD FLOWER.

The lambkin crops its crimfon gem,
The wild-bee murmurs on its breaft,
The blue-fly bends its penfile stem,
Light o'er the sky-lark's nest.

'Tis Flora's page:——In every place,
In every feafon, fresh and fair,
t opens with perennial grace,
And blossoms every where.

On waste and woodland, rock and plain,
Its humble buds unheeded rise;
The Rose has but a summer-reign,
The DAISY never dies.

THE SNOW-DROP.

JOP

Winter! retire,
Thy reign is past;
Hoary Sire!
Yield the sceptre of thy sway,
Sound thy trumpet in the blast,
And call thy storms away;
Winter! retire;
Wherefore do thy wheels delay?
Mount the chariot of thine ire,
And quit the realms of day;
On thy state
Whirlwinds wait;
And blood-shot meteors and thee light;

Hence to dreary arctic regions, Summon thy terrific legions; Hence to caves of northern night Speed thy flight.

From halcyon feas

And purer fkies,
O fouthern breeze!

Awake, arife:
Breath of heaven! benignly blow,
Melt the fnow;
Breath of heaven! unchain the floods,
Warm the woods,

And make the mountains flow.

Auspicious to the Muse's prayer,

The freshening gale

Embalms the vale,

And breathes enchantment thro' the air:

On its wing

Floats the Spring,

With glowing eye, and golden hair:

Dark before her Angel-form

She drives the Demon of the ftorm,

Like Gladness chasing Care.

Winter's gloomy night withdrawn,
Lo! the young romantic Hours
Search the hill, the dale, the lawn,
To behold the SNOW-DROP white
Start to light,
And shine in Flora's defart bowers,
Beneath the vernal dawn,
The Morning Star of Flowers!

O welcome to our Ifle,

Thou Messenger of Peace!

At whose bewitching smile The embattled tempests cease: Rmblem of Innocence and Truth! Firstborn of Nature's womb. When strong in renovated youth, She bursts from Winter's tomb: Thy Parent's eye hath fhed A precious dew-drop on thine head; Frail as a Mother's tear Upon her infant's face, When ardent hope to tender fear. And anxious love, gives place. But lo! the dew-drop falls away. The fun falutes thee with a ray, Warm as a Mother's kifs Upon her Infant's cheek, When the heart bounds with blifs, And joy that cannot speak !

-When I meet thee by the way, Like a pretty, sportive child, On the winter-wasted wild, With thy darling breeze at play, Opening to the radiant fky All the fweetness of thine eye; -Or bright with funbeams, fresh with showers. O thou Fairy-Queen of flowers! Watch thee o'er the plain advance At the head of FLORA's dance; Simple SNOW-DROP! then in thee, All thy fifter train I fee; Every brilliant bud that blows. From the blue-bell to the role: All the beauties that appear. On the bosom of the Year; All that wreathe the locks of Spring, Summer's ardent breath perfume,

Or on the lap of Autumn bloom,

—All to thee their tribute bring,

Exhale their incense at thy shrine,

—Their hues, their odours all are thine!

For while thy humble form I view,

The Muse's keen prophetic fight

Brings fair Futurity to light,

And Fancy's magic makes the vision true.

There is a Winter in my foul,
The Winter of despair;
O when shall Spring its rage controul?
When shall the SNOW-DROP blossom there?
Cold gleams of comfort sometimes dart
A dawn of glory on my heart,
But quickly pass away:
Thus Northern-lights the gloom adorn,
And give the promise of a morn,
That never turns to day!

- -But hark! methinks I hear
- A fmall still whisper in mine ear;
- "Rash Youth! repent,
- " Afflictions from above,
- " Are Angels fent
- " On embassies of love.
- "A fiery Legion, at thy birth,
- " Of chaftening Woes were given.
- "To pluck thy flowers of Hope from earth,
- " And plant them high.
- "O'er yonder iky,
- "Transform'd to stars, -and fix'd in heaven."

THE OCEAN.

WRITTEN AT SCARBOROUGH, IN THE SUMMER OF 1805.

ALL hail to the ruins,* the rocks and the shores!

Thou wide-rolling OCEAN, all hail!

Now brilliant with fun-beams, and dimpled with oars,

Now dark with the fresh-blowing gale,
While soft o'er thy bosom the cloud-shadows sail,
And the silver-wing'd sea-fowl on high,
Like meteors bespangle the sky,
Or dive in the gulph, or triumphantly ride,
Like soam on the surges, the swans of the tide.

. Scarboro' Cafile.

From the tumult and smoke of the city set free,
With eager and awful delight,
From the crest of the mountain I gaze upon thee;
I gaze,—and am changed at the sight;
For mine eye is illumined, my Genius takes slight,
My soul, like the sun, with a glance
Embraces the boundless expanse,
And moves on thy waters, wherever they roll,
From the day-darting zone to the night-brooding pole.

My Spirit descends where the day-spring is born,
Where the billows are rubies on fire,
And the breezes that rock the light cradle of morn
Are sweet as the Phænix's pyre:
O regions of beauty, of love, and defire!
O gardens of Eden! in vain
Placed far on the fathomless main,

Where Nature with Innocence dwelt in her youth, When pure was her heart, and unbroken her truth.

But now the fair rivers of Paradife wind

Through countries and kingdoms o'erthrown;

Where the Giant of tyranny crushes mankind,

Where he reigns,—and will soon reign alone,

For wide and more wide o'er the sun-beaming

zone,

He stretches his hundred-fold arms,

Despoiling, destroying its charms;

Beneath his broad sootstep the Ganges is dry,

And the mountains recoil from the slash of his eye.

Thus the pestilent Uppas, the hydra of trees,
Its boughs o'er the wilderness spreads,
And with livid contagion polluting the breeze
Its mildewing influence sheds;

The birds on the wing, and the flowers in their beds,

Are slain by its venomous breath,

That darkens the noon-day with death,

And pale ghosts of Travellers wander around,

While their mouldering skeletons whiten the ground.

Ah! why hath Jehovah, in forming the world,
With the waters divided the land,
His ramparts of rocks round the continent hurl'd,
And cradled the deep in his hand,
If man may transgress his eternal command;
And leap o'er the bounds of his birth
To ravage the uttermost earth,
And violate nations and realms that should be
Distinct as the billows, yet one as the sea!

There are, gloomy Ocean! a brotherless clan,
Who traverse thy banishing waves,
The poor disinherited outcasts of man,
Whom Avarice coins into slaves;
From the homes of their kindred, their forefathers'
graves,

Love, friendship, and conjugal bliss,

They are dragg'd on the hoary abyss;

The shark hears their shrieks, and ascending to day,

Demands of the spoiler his share of the prey.

Then joy to the tempest that whelms them beneath,

And makes their destruction its sport!

But woe to the winds that propitiously breathe,

And wast them in safety to port!

Where the vultures and vampires of Mammon refort;

Where Europe exultingly drains

Her cordials from Africa's veins;

Where the image of God is accounted as base,

And the image of Cæsar set up in its place!

The hour is approaching,—a terrible hour!

And Vengeance is bending her bow;

Already the clouds of the hurricane lour,

And the rock-rending whirlwinds blow;

Back rolls the huge Ocean,—Hell opens below;

The floods return headlong,—they fweep

The flave-cultur'd lands to the deep;

In a moment entomb'd in the horrible void,

By their Maker Himfelf in his anger deftroy'd.

Shall this be the fate of the cane-planted ifles,

More lovely than clouds in the west,

When the sun o'er the ocean descending in smiles

Sinks softly and sweetly to rest?

-NO!—Father of Mercy! befriend the opprest;
At the voice of thy gospel of peace,
May the forrows of Africa cease;
And the slave and his master devoutly unite
To walk in thy freedom, and dwell in thy light!

As homeward my weary-wing'd Fancy extends

Her star-lighted course through the skies,

High over the mighty Atlantic ascends,

And turns upon Europe her eyes;

Ah me! what new prospects, new horrors arise!

I see the war-tempested flood

All foaming, and panting with blood;

The panic-struck Ocean in agony roars,

Rebounds from the battle, and slies to his shores.

* Alluding to the glorious success of the Moravian Misfionaries among the Negroes in the West Indies.

Confuming her foes in her ire,

And hurling her thunder with abfolute fway

From her wave-ruling chariots of fire?

—She triumphs;—the winds and the waters confpire

To fpread her invincible name;

The universe rings with her fame;

—But the cries of the fatherless mix with her praise,

And the tears of the widow are shed on her bays!

O Britain! dear Britain! the land of my birth;
O Isle, most enchantingly fair!
Thou Pearl of the Ocean! Thou Gem of the Earth!

O my Mother! my Mother! beware; For wealth is a phantom, and empire a fnare: O let not thy birth-right be fold

For reprobate glory and gold:

Thy foreign dominions like wild graftings shoot,

They weigh down thy trunk,—they will tear up

thy root:—

The root of thine OAK, O my Country! that stands
Rock-planted, and flourishing free;
Its branches are stretch'd over far-distant lands,
And its shadow eclipses the sea:
The blood of our Ancestors nourish'd the tree;
From their tombs, from their ashes it sprung;
Its boughs with their trophies are hung;
Their spirit dwells in it:—and hark! for it spoke;
The voice of our Fathers ascends from their oak.

"Ye Britons! who dwell where we conquer'd of old, Who inherit our battle-field graves; Though poor were your Fathers,—gigantic and bold,
We were not, we would not be flaves;
But firm as our rocks, and as free as our waves,
The spears of the Romans we broke,
We never stoop'd under their yoke;
In the shipwreck of nations we stood up alone,
—The world was great CESAR's—but Britain our own.

"For ages and ages, with barbarous foes,
The Saxon, Norwegian and Gaul,
We wreftled, were foil'd, were east down, but we rose

With new vigour, new life from each fall;

By all we were conquer'd:—WE CONQUER'D

THEM ALL!

—The cruel, the cannibal mind,
We foften'd, fubdued and refined;

Bears, wolves, and fea-monsters they rush'd from their den;

We taught them, we tamed them, we turn d them to men.

"Love led the wild hordes in his flower-woven bands,
The tenderest, the strongest of chains!

Love married our hearts, he united our hands,
And mingled the blood in our veins;
One race we became:—on the mountains and plains

Where the wounds of our country were closed,
The Ark of Religion reposed,
The unquenchable Altar of Liberty blazed,
And the Temple of Justice in Mercy was raised.

"Ark, Altar and Temple we left with our breath To our children, a facred bequest! O guard them, O keep them, in life and in death 2
So the shades of your Fathers shall rest,
And your spirits with ours be in paradise blest 2
—Let Ambition, the sin of the Brave,
And Avarice, the soul of a Slave,
No longer seduce your affections to roam
From Liberty, Justice, Religion, AT HOME!

THE COMMON LOT.

ONCE in the flight of ages past,

There lived a Man:—and WHO was He?

—Mortal! howe'er thy lot be cast,

That Man resembled Thee.

Unknown the region of his birth,

The land in which he died unknown;

His name hath perish'd from the earth,

This truth survives alone:—

That joy and grief, and hope and fear,
Alternate triumph'd in his breaft;
His blifs and woe,—a fmile, a tear!
—Oblivion hides the reft.

The bounding pulse, the languid limb,
The changing spirits' rise and fall;
We know that these were selt by him,
For these are selt by all.

He fuffer'd,—but his pangs are o'er;
Enjoy'd,—but his delights are fled;
Had friends,—his friends are now no more;
And foes,—his foes are dead.

He loved,—but whom he loved the grave
Hath loft in its unconfcious womb:

O she was fair!—but nought could save
Her beauty from the tomb.

The rolling feafons, day and night,
Sun, moon and stars, the earth and main,
Erewhile his portion, life and light,
To him exist in vain.

He faw whatever thou haft feen, Encounter'd all that troubles thee; He was—whatever thou haft been; He is—what thou shalt be.

The clouds and funbeams, o'er his eye,
That once their shades and glory threw,
Have left in yonder silent sky,
No vestige where they slew.

The annals of the human race,

Their ruins, fince the world began,

Of HIM afford no other trace
