

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

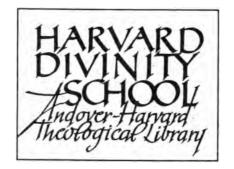

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

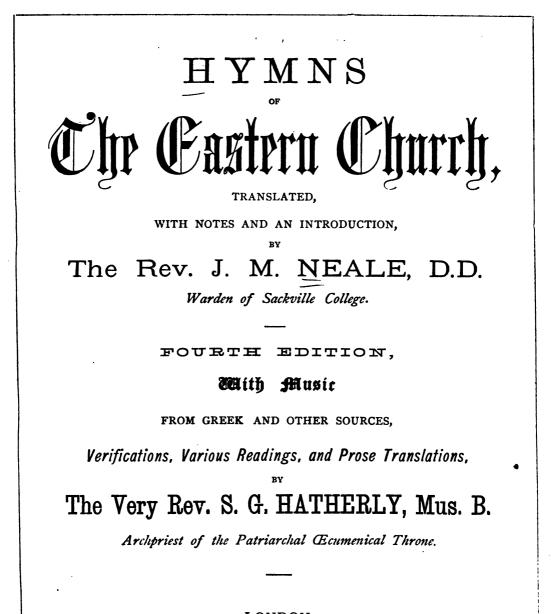

About Google Book Search

PREFACE TO FIRST EDITION.

THE following Translations have occupied a portion of my leisure time for the last twelve years; and some of them have already appeared in more than one ecclesiastical periodical. So has also great part of the Introduction.

It is a most remarkable fact, and one which shows how very little interest has been hitherto felt in the Eastern Church, that these are literally, I believe, the only English versions of any part of the treasures of Oriental Hymnology. There is scarcely a first or second-rate hymn of the Roman Breviary which has not been translated : of many we have six or eight versions. The eighteen quarto volumes of Greek Church-poetry can only, at present, be known to the English reader by my little book.

Yet surely, if in the future Hymnal of the English Church we are to build an eclectic superstructure on the foundation of the Sarum Book, the East ought to yield its full share of compositions. And hence, I cannot but marvel that the compilers of eclectic Hymnals, such as the (modern) Sarum, the Hymns Ancient and Modern, and others, have never turned to this source. Here was a noble field open to them; and to me it is incomprehensible that they should have so utterly neglected it. There are difficulties in the task to which it is as well to revert. Though the superior terseness and brevity of the Latin Hymns renders a translation which shall represent those qualities a work of great labour, yet still the versifier has the help of the same metre; his version may be line for line; and there is a great analogy between the Collects and the Hymns, most helpful to the translator. Above all, we have examples enough of former translation by which we may take pattern.

But, in attempting a Greek Canon, from the fact of its being in prose,— (metrical Hymns, as the reader will learn, are unknown,)—one is all at sea. What measure shall we employ? why this more than that? Might we attempt the rhythmical prose of the original, and design it to be chanted? Again, the great length of the Canons renders them unsuitable for our churches, as wholes. Is it better simply to form centos of the more beautiful passages? or can separate Odes, each necessarily imperfect, be employed as separate Hymns? And, above all, we have no pattern or example of any kind to direct our labour.

These questions, and many others, have as yet received no reply; but will, in time, no doubt, work out their answer. My own belief is, that the best way to employ Greek Hymnology for the uses of the English Church would be by centos.

The reader will find, in the following pages, examples of different methods of treatment. The following are short Idiomela, &c., which might serve as separate Hymns :--

- 6. The day is past and over. (Evening.)
- 14. Oh the myst'ry passing wonder. (Maundy Thursday.)
- 20. Christian ! dost thou see them ? (A Sunday in Lent.)
- 24. By fruit, the ancient foe's device. (Easter-tide.)
- 52. Those eternal bowers. (All Saints.)
- 80. The choirs of ransom'd Israel. (Transfiguration.)
- 106. Are thy toils and woes increasing? (Passion or Holy Week.)

Centos might perhaps be made from

It has been with great thankfulness that I have seen such copious use made of my Mediæval Hymns, and my Rhythm of S. Bernard, in so many modern Hymnals. Permission has usually been most courteously asked : though in some few cases, whole Hymns have been taken without the slightest request for leave, or subsequent acknowledgment. I would therefore request any compiler of a Hymnal who may wish to quote from the following pages, to be so kind as first to express that wish to the publisher, or to myself.*

I trust the reader will not forget the immense difficulty of an attempt so perfectly new as the present, where I have had no predecessors, and therefore could have no master. If I have opened the way for others to do better what I have done imperfectly, I shall have every reason to be thankful. I have kept most of the translations by me for at least the nine years recommended by Horace; and now offer them as a contribution to the hymnology of our own Church. And while fully sensible of their imperfections, I may yet (by way of excuse rather than of boast) say, almost in Bishop Hall's words—

> " I first adventure : follow me who list, And be the second Eastern Melodist."

PREFACE TO SECOND EDITION.

I HAD not ventured to hope that, whatever be the beauty of these Hymns in their original language, a Second Edition of the Translation should so soon have been called for. And it has been an additional pleasure to me to find that, notwithstanding the miserable inferiority of the version, the words of S. Cosmas, S. John Damascene, and S. Joseph of the Studium, have been already introduced into English congregations. One Hymnal, which has been kindly sent to me, contains no less than eleven Greek Hymns. In the present Edition, all those versions which did not rhyme,—that is, which would be of no practical use, are omitted.^{*} Of the Canon for S. Thomas's Sunday more is given : and in some cases where, of alternate rhymes, the one-half was permitted to remain without consonance, the defect has been remedied, I hope, without much injury to the sense. It would be ungrateful if I did not express my gratitude for the way in which my little book has been received, notwithstanding its manifold imperfections.

SACKVILLE COLLEGE, Nov. 16th, 1862.

PREFACE TO THIRD EDITION.

IT is of course a matter of deep thankfulness to me that the Eastern Church should now be more and more widely brought before ordinary congregations by means of some of the following versions. GOD grant that this may be one little help towards the great work of Re-union.

I have been more than once asked to what tunes any of the hymns contained in this little book may be sung. The following is a list of all the settings with which I am acquainted :--

[Here follow references to twenty-one hymns with music, in seven separate publications, by Rev. T. Helmore, Mr. A. H. Brown, Miss Edith Kerr, M. E. H. S., Mr. E. Sedding, Anonymous, and Rev. J. F. Young.]

And so once more I commit this attempt to further the cause of English Hymnology to GOD's blessing : and I cannot do it better than in the quaint old words of a forgotten poet :---

> 'I long have long'd to do some little good, '(According to the best I understood,) 'By Thy good grace assisting, which I do 'Most humbly beg for : O adjoin it to 'My longing ardent soul; and have respect 'To this my weak endeavour, and accept '(In Thy great mercy) both of it and me, 'Ev'n as we dedicate ourselves to Thee.'

The Hymns at page 206,* 209,† and 'Art thou weary,'‡ contain so little that is from the Greek, that they ought not to have been included in this collection; in any future Edition they shall appear as an Appendix.

SACKVILLE COLLEGE, April, 1866.

[*'O happy band.' †'Safe home.' ; These three Hymns form, in the present Edition, an APPENDIX (A), as Dr. Neale here proposes.]

PREFACE TO FOURTH EDITION.

THE pleasure which every musician must feel, who engages in the attempt to set 'apt notes' to the well-known translation by Dr. Neale of the HYMNS OF THE EASTERN CHURCH, may be reasonably supposed to be felt in an increased measure by one who, as in the case of the present editor, adds to his Oxford musical graduation of former days the honourable position of minister in that so-called 'Eastern Church.' That which with other men, in other circumstances, might have been an agreeable professional effort of an antiquarian cast, became with him, of necessity, a labour of love.

It is thirty years since the editor first made the acquaintance of Dr. Neale. At that time the painful impression on the minds of many churchmen, produced by the establishment of an Anglo-Lutheran bishopric at Jerusalem, had not yet subsided; and a more recent trouble-the Gorham case-had served still further to perturb the minds of those who were already sufficiently shaken by the former un-catholic proceeding. In particular it was felt, by those who pondered deeply on the question, that the Orthodox Church of the East, scandalised as she was by the Jerusalem bishopric, must be naturally yet more estranged by the decision of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council in the matter of Baptismal Regeneration; and that every attempt to bring about the Intercommunion of the Churches would be in future a 'vain thing,' unless a vigorous effort was made, on the part of the Anglican Church, to unfurl the standard of catholicity in the eyes of her scandalized Eastern brethren. Accordingly Dr. Neale, foremost as he always was in every good work in which the Oriental Churches were concerned, assisted in a project to establish an Anglican chaplaincy in Jerusalem of a sound type, both doctrinally and ritually, which might, it was hoped, both somewhat hinder the proselytising efforts of the Anglo-Lutheran clergy of the new bishopric, and also present to the aggrieved Easterns a more pleasing phase of Anglicanism : one which, if they did not immediately approve, would certainly not repel them. It was even proposed that the new chaplain should obtain ordination from the Orthodox Patriarch, and be licensed by him to celebrate with Anglican rites. But this proposal was soon found, on enquiry, to be an impossibility : and as little encouragement was otherwise given to the general question by those thought to be most interested, it gradually died out, and remained as merely a pleasant though regretful memory to the few who engaged in it, among whom were our author, as before mentioned, and, as may be judged from his acquaintance with the facts of a hitherto unpublished chapter of church history, the present editor. Thus the pleasure which, as a musician, and as a proto-pope of the Greek Church, the editor may be reasonably supposed to feel at being engaged in arranging musically Dr. Neale's most popular work, is seen to be enhanced by the recollection of a common, though fruitless, labour in days gone by.

When, a few months ago, Mr. Hayes, the publisher of Dr. Neale's writings, suggested the present new Edition of the HYMNS OF THE EASTERN CHURCH, he had the hope of being able to ally with the translated hymns their proper Greek tunes, or, failing the existence of proper tunes, some other of Greek origin that might be suitable. The editor, having had some experience of Oriental music, tried to convince him that his idea was an impracticability : that the rhythm of the translated hymns differed essentially from that of their originals, as Dr. Neale himself has clearly shewn in his interesting 'Introduction' and 'Preface to First Edition ;' and that, were the rhythmical difficulty got over, the fact remained that the Oriental musical scales, including among them those of the ancient Byzantine Church, differed from the scales to which western ears were attuned to such an extent, as to make their reproduction in modern notation, and their utilization, an almost hopeless task. The scales in use among all oriental nations are based upon the following sequence of notes, in which it will be observed that there are four semitones or minor seconds in the octave instead of two, and two instances of the augmented second, an interval forbidden in modern musical composition.

Of the use made in the East of this difficult scale, a fair notion may be formed from the following fragment of an ancient Byzantine ecclesiastical melody:—*

FROM THE APOSTICHA AT VESPERS ON GOOD FRIDAY EVENING.

Still, in spite of its unprecedentedness, the editor promised Mr. Hayes to consider his proposal; and the result of that consideration shall now be briefly stated.

The melodies of the hymns used in the service of the Greek Church may be roughly divided into three classes :— I. Those of the most unquestioned antiquity, based upon the diæretic scale, as above, which she possesses by virtue of her oriental position; 2. Those of mediæval origin, based upon the four diatonic scales of D, E, F, and G, with their four plagal inversions, which scales are common to both the Greek and Latin churches; and 3. PREFACE TO FOURTH EDITION.

and harmonized by Chevalier Randhartinger, of Vienna. Of these three classes, the first, as is evident, presented the greatest stumbling-block. The frequent introduction of tunes based on the abnormal diæretic scale could not, consistently with any degree of hoped-for popularity of the work, be encouraged. But to ignore their existence entirely was not just to that ancient Church, the bulwark of Orthodoxy, whose were the hymns about to be 'noted.' Accordingly, two short instances are given, at pages 95 and 97, which will, it is believed, satisfy the solemn demands of the words of the respective hymns, and the claims of justice also. One strain also of the tune on page 77 is written in the diæretic scale. The second class of tunes, those based on the mediæval system of tonality, presented no such difficulty as the former class. And yet the socalled Gregorian modes or tones do not, in all cases, commend themselves to modern ears, on account of their strangeness. Still, singers can sing them if they will; and bodies of people, in the Anglican no less than in the Latin Church, have learned to love them. There is nothing needed for their proper appreciation but a consistent harmonic treatment, and a reverent use in performance. In the present work there are altogether ten tunes of this second class. Of the Chaviara tunes constituting the third class, four specimens are given. These modified tunes, with their clever German harmonies,* are found in use at all Greek churches in western parts, from Trieste to Liverpool.

Of the remaining tunes, a large proportion, twenty-two, are taken from the Rev. W. H. Havergal's 'Hundred Psalm and Hymn Tunes,'t a work as learned as it is useful. Through not being assigned to any particular Hymnal, it has failed to attract the notice which its merits deserve. If, by the present adaptation of less than one fourth of its tunes, attention should be directed to that work, a most pleasing act of duty will have been paid by the editor to the memory of his deceased master in harmony. Two other tunes by the same hand, from other works, are also given, raising the number of Havergalian compositions to twenty-four. The Rev. Sir Frederick A. Gore Ouseley, Bart., Mus. D., the distinguished Professor of Music in the University of Oxford, whose friendship is so highly prized by the editor, has kindly contributed three new tunes, one of which, that to the 'Stichera of the Last Kiss, Part I.,' at pages 48-9, is of considerable length and importance. These tunes panegyrise themselves more clearly than any words of this Preface could do. To the Hon. Adela Douglas Pennant of Penrhyn Castle, to Dr. Roland Rogers of Bangor, and to other contributors of tunes or possessors of copyright, best acknowledgment and thanks are also due, and are hereby heartily tendered.

It now only remains to say a few words on the questions connected with the general task of editing. I. The text of the hymns corresponds with that of the Third Edition, with three exceptions only, of which one is a correction from the First Edition of probably a mere printer's error. These changes are duly noted at pages 96, 100, and 122. 2. The readings in the First Edition which " differ from the text are all added in foot-notes. As a rule they reflect better the sense of the original, but for euphonic or other reasons Dr. Neale thought fit to supersede them. 3. All the hymns have been verified, wherever possible; and 4. Prose translations have been added in many instances, less to supply any occasional omissions in the metrical version, than to prove the general accuracy thereof. 5. All additions of the editor whether in text, titles, or foot-notes, are contained within [square] brackets, excepting 6. The numerals to the verses, which have been added for musical convenience. 7. The tunes are placed in juxta-position with the hymns they are designed to accompany, with four exceptions only, at pages 46, 88, 89, and 102, where the hymn, or tune, or both, occupy two pages. 8. An 'Index of First Lines' has been added, to supply a want felt in previous editions. 9. Also, an 'Index of Measures' has been added, which may prove of service to those who possess hymns of peculiar form, from other sources, needing tunes. IO. Appendices have been supplied:- A. formed of the three hymns mentioned by Dr. Neale in his 'Preface to Third Edition ;' and B. 'consisting of three hymns contained in the First Edition only.

Greek Church, Bristol, June 11th (23rd), 1882.

NOTE. That the rule whereby one accidental sharp, flat, or natural is made to affect the whole measure, or, if occurring on the last note, the first note of the next measure, is not observed by the Greek tunes in this volume. Each note requiring to be accidentally altered has its own character given. In all the other tunes the rule is understood to apply.

INTRODUCTION.

As a general rule, the first poetical attempts of the Eastern, like those of the Western, Church, were in classical measures. But as classical Greek died out from being a spoken language,—as new trains of thought were familiarized,—as new words were coined,—a versification became valueless, which was attached with no living bonds to the new energy, to the onward movement. Dean Trench has admirably expressed this truth in the introduction to his 'Sacred Latin Poetry,' and showed how the 'new wine must be put into new bottles.' Ecclesiastical terms must be used, which rebel against classical metre: in Greek, no less than in Latin, five words in eight would be shut out of the principal classical rhythms. Now, the Gospel was preached to the poor. Church hymns must be the life-expression of all hearts. The Church was forced to make a way for saying in poetry what her message bade her say.*

S. Gregory Nazianzen, the first Greek Church poet, used only the ordinary classical measures. S. Sophronius of Jerusalem employed (and in their way not unhappily), Anacreontics : and his hymns on various festivals have

*As an illustration of this remark, it is worth while noticing how very few examples of Hexameters occur in the New Testament. I believe that the following are all that are tolerable; that is, that can so be scanned without one or two false quantities :--

S. Luke xxi. 18.	Θρίξ ἐκ τῆς κεφαλῆς ὑμῶν οὐ μὴ ἀπόληται.
S. John xiii, 5.	Βάλλει ύδωρ els τον νιπτήρα, και ήρξατο νίπτειν.
S. John xiii. 16.	Ούκ έστι(ν) δούλος μείζων του κυρίου αύτου.
S. John xvii. 20.	Kal περl τών πιστευσόντων διά τοῦ λόγου αὐτών.
Titus iii . 2.	Μηδένα βλασφημεῖν, ἀμάχους εἶναι, ἐπιεικεῖς.
Hebrews xii. 13.	Καί τρογιάς δοθάς ποιήσατε τοῖς ποσίν ὑμών.

There are some which are very near an hexameter : as S. Matt. xxiii. 6-Kal τὰς πρωτοκαθεδρίας ἐν ταῖς συναγωγαῖς. A tolerable pentameter occurs in Rom. vi. 13-Kal τὰ μέλη ὑμῶν ὅπλα δίκαιοσύνης: and a remarkable iambic in the LORL⁹S Prayer-

Τόν άρτον ήμων τόν έπιούσιον δίδου.

some elegance. But there is a certain degree of dilettante-ism, rather than of earnestness, in these compositions; and the most airy, tripping, frivolous measure that the Greek Muse possessed, never, by any possibility, could form the ordinary utterance of the Church. The Church compositions of S. Sophronius, though called $\pi o \alpha / \mu a \tau a$, are in fact mere prose: as those grand prayers on the Epiphany.

How then was the problem to be solved as to the composition of Eastern Church Song? In Latin, somewhat before the time of S. Sophronius, A.D. 630, it was answered by that glorious introduction of rhyme. Why not in Greek also?

Now, it is no less true in Greek, than in Latin, that there was a tendency to rhyme from the very beginning. Open Homer: look for caudate rhymes:—

Νημερτής τε καὶ 'Αψευδὴς καὶ Καλλιάνασσα· Ενθαδ' ἔην Κλυμένη, 'Ιάνειρα καὶ 'Ιφιάνασσα. Il. xviii. 46. *Αστεος αἰθομένοιο· θεῶν δὲ Γε μῆνις ἀνῆκεν· Πῶσι δὲ θῆκε πόνον, πολλοῖσι δὲ κήδε' ἐφῆκεν· *Ως 'Αχιλεὺς Τρῶεσσι πόνον καὶ κήδεα θῆκεν. Il. xxi. 523. Οὐ μὲν γὰρ μεῖζον κλέος ἀνέρος, ὄφρα κὲν ῆσιν

Η ότι ποσσίν τε ρέξει και χερσι Γεησιν.

Odyss. viii. 147.

Leonines are still more common. The reader's attention is particularly requested to those that follow :---

- Il. ii. 220. "Εχθιστος δ' 'Αχιληϊ μάλιστ' ην, ηδ' 'Οδυσηϊ.
 - 475. 'Ρεία διακρίνωσιν, επεί κε νομώ μιγέωσιν.
 - 484. "Εσπετε νῦν μοι, Μοῦσαι, Όλύμπια δώματ' ἔχουσαι.
 - iii. 84. 'Ως έφαθ' οι δ' έσχοντο μάχης, ανέω τ' εγένοντο.
 - v. 529. [°]Ω φίλοι, ανέρες έστε, και άλκιμον ητορ ελεσθε.
 - vi. 343. Τον δ Έλένη μύθοισι προσηῦδα μειλιχίοισι.
 - xiv. 371. 'Ασπίδας, όσσαι άρισται ένὶ στρατῷ ἠδὲ μέγισται.

[* Some copies of Homer for 'Idrespa kal 'Ipidrassa read 'Idrespa re kal 'Idrassa.]

Od. i. 40. 'Εκ γὰρ 'Ορέσταο τίσις ἔσσεται 'ΑτρεΓίδαο. 397. Αὐτὰρ ἐγὼ Γοἴκοιο Γάναξ ἔσομ' ἡμετέροιο. iv. 121. 'Εκ δ' Έλένη θαλάμοιο θυώδεος ὑψορόφοιο.

And I might mark multitudes more: but these are enough by way of example. The question then occurs at once, Why did not the new life, instilled into the Greek as well as into the Latin language by Christianity, seize the grand capability of RHYME in the one case as well as in the other? How stately it would have been in anapæstics! how sweet in trochaics! Why was it neglected ?

For this reason : the reader must remember that HARDLY ONE OF THE RHYMES I HAVE BEEN POINTING OUT IN HOMER WOULD BE RHYMES TO A GREEK EAR. Read them accentually, and you find approximation and $\mu \epsilon \gamma \iota \sigma \tau a \iota$ are no more double rhymes to a Greek than gloriously and ferociously are to us : $\mu o \hat{\upsilon} \sigma a \iota$ and $\hat{\epsilon} \chi o \upsilon \sigma a \iota$, no more than glory and victory. Accent, in the decline of the language, was trampling down quantity. Now accent is not favourable to such rhymes, though many poems have been thus composed in the newer Greek :

Εῦρον φίλον κοματάκη Καθ' ὅπερ τετραγωνάκη.

But it was not sufficiently removed from every-day life,—was too familiar, had too little dignity. There was an innate vulgarity about it which rendered it impossible to the Church.

Now, let it be observed, accentuation even in Latin was not without its difficulty. In the new style, dissyllables, whatever their real quantity, were always read—and so we read them now—as trochees. Férox, vélox, scéptrum. Hence a verse in the early metrical hymns, such as—a dimeter iambic, would have been read in mediæval times, Cástos fídes sómnos júvat, and so have virtually become a dimeter trochaic.

'Castos fides somnos juvat,'

Popular poetry soon devised its own metre, political verse, as it was called, because used for every-day domestic matters. This was none other than a favourite metre of Aristophanes, iambic tetrameter catalectic,—our own ballad rhythm :—

'A Captain bold of Halifax, who lived in country quarters.'

INTRODUCTION.

And this, sometimes with rhyme, sometimes without, is the favourite Romaic metre to the present day. For example :---

Μη διὰ θύρας βαίνειν δὲ λέγω τοὺς κλεπταββάδας Χωστοὺς, ἐγκλείστους, ἕλκοντας θήρια, στελοβάτας, Πάντας ὅσοι παρὰ τὰ νόμιμα δρῶσι τὸν βίον, Καὶ τῶν μονοτροπούντων δε, πλην ἐν ἐρήμου τρόποις.

The Church never attempted this sing-song stanza, and preferred falling back on an older form.

From the brief allusions we find to the subject in the New Testament, we should gather that the 'hymns and spiritual songs' of the Apostles were written in metrical prose. Accustomed as many of the early Christians were to the Hebrew Scriptures, this is not unlikely; and proof seems strong that it was so. Compare these passages :--

Eph. v. 14. Wherefore he saith :

*Εγειρε ό καθεύδων, Καὶ ἀνάστα ἐκ τῶν νεκρῶν Ἐπιφαύσει σοι ὁ Χριστός.

Undoubtedly the fragment of a hymn. Again :-- Apoc. xv. 3.

Μεγάλα καὶ θαυμαστὰ τὰ ἔργα Σου, Κύριε ὁ Θεὸς ὁ Παντοκράτωρ· Δίκαιαι καὶ ἀληθιναὶ αἱ ὁδοὶ Σου, Ὁ Βασιλεὺς τῶν ἐθνῶν.

And nearly coeval with these we have the Gloria in Excelsis, the Ter Sanctus, and the foyful Light. Also the Eastern phase, so to speak, of the Te Deum; the Ka θ' έκάστην ήμέραν. And to this rhythmical prose the Church now turned.

Then, not to pursue the subject with a detail of which this Introduction will not admit, we find that by the beginning of the eighth century, verse, properly speaking (and that with scarcely an exception), had been discarded for ever from the hymns of the Eastern Church; those hymns, occupying a space beyond all comparison greater than they do in the Latin, being written in measured prose. And now to explain the system.

XXIV

INTRODUCTION.

The stanza which is to form the model of the succeeding stanzas,—the strophe, in fact,—is called the Hirmos,* from its drawing others after it. The stanzas which are to follow it are called troparia, from their turning to it.

Let Ps. cxix. 13, be the Hirmos :---

"With my lips have I been telling : "Of all the judgments of Thy mouth;" †

then verse 15 would be a troparion to it :---

I will talk of Thy commandments : And have respect unto Thy ways.

So would 17 :---

O do well unto Thy servants That I may live, and keep Thy word; and Ps. cii. 16:---

When the LORD shall build up Sion : And when His glory shall appear.

Let verse 44 [of Ps. cxix.] be a Hirmos :-

"So shall I alway keep Thy law: "Yea, for ever and ever;"

and 45 will be a troparion to it :---

And I will walk at liberty : For I seek Thy commandments.

These troparia are always divided for chanting by commas,—utterly irrespective of the sense. This separation into commatisms renders it very difficult to read them without practice. Take an example, with the corresponding effect in English :—

'Ωιδή α'. *Ηχος δ'. 'Ο Είρμός.

" Θαλάσσης, τὸ ἐρυθραῖον πέλαγος, ἀβρόχοις ἔχνεσιν, ὁ παλαιὸς πεζεύσας " Ἰσραήλ, σταυροτύποις Μωσέως χερσὶ, τοῦ ᾿Αμαλὴκ τὴν δύναμιν, ἐν τῆ ἐρήμφ " ἐτροπώσατο." ‡

"Israel in ancient times passing on foot with, unbedewed steps the Red Gulf, of the sea, turned "to flight by, the cross-typifying arms, of Moses the might of Amalek, in the wilderness."§

^{[*}This word is more correctly spelt Heirmos, but the form in the text better represents its sound, which has no likeness to the English word Heir.]

^{[†} By a strange oversight, this Hirmos and the first Troparion which follows it occupied each the place of the other in previous editions.]

^{[‡} From the 'Canon of the Resurrection' for Sunday of the fourth Tone, by S. John Damascene. Hirmoi are always technically denoted by inverted double commas, as above.]

^{[§} The commatisms of the original are scarcely so nonsensical as this. They are more nearly reproduced by the following:— "Israel in ancient times passing on foot, with unbedewed steps, the Red Gulf, of the sea, by the cross-typifying arms of "Moses, the might of Amalek, was turned to flight in the wilderness."]

The perfection of troparia is in a Canon, of which I shall say more presently. I need not trouble the reader with the minute distinction between troparia and stichera; as a troparion follows a Hirmos, so a sticheron follows an homoion, and then becomes a prosomoion. There are also idiomela,—that is stanzas which are their own models,—and an infinite variety of names expressive of the different kind of troparia.

A collection of any number of troparia, preceded by their Hirmos, sometimes merely quoted by its initial words, sometimes given at length, and with inverted commas, is an Ode. Let the Hirmos be as before :---

"With my lips have I," &c, and the Ode might follow thus :----

Hirmos.

"With my lips have I been telling : of all the judgments of Thy mouth ."*

[Troparia.]

Let us break their bonds asunder : and cast away their cords from us. † I am weary of my groaning : and every night I wash my bed. ‡ For he lieth waiting secret -: ly as a lion in his den. § I am poured out like water : and all my bones are out of joint. || Glory [to the FATHER, and to the SON : and to the Holy GHOST.] I will talk of Thy commandments : and have respect unto Thy ways.¶ Both now, [and ever : and to the ages of the ages. Amene.]

And let this be most carefully observed : an Ode is simply a Sequence under somewhat different laws. Just when the system of Greek ecclesiastical poetry was fully developed, S. Notker and the Monks of S. Gall hit out a similar one for the Latin Church : the Sequence or the Prose. It was not copied from the East, for we have S. Notker's own account of the way in which he invented it. It prospered to a certain extent ; that is, it became one, though the least important, branch of Ecclesiastical verses.

Now the perfection of Greek Poetry is attained by the Canons at Lauds, of which I proceed to speak.

A Canon consists of Nine Odes,—each Ode containing any number of troparia from three to beyond twenty. The reason for the number nine is this : that there are nine Scriptural canticles, employed at Lauds, ($\epsilon i_{s} \tau \partial \nu * O \rho \theta \rho \rho \nu$),

[* Psalms cxviii (cxix). 13; † ii. 3; † vi. 5(6); § ix. 31 (x. 9); || xxi. 13 (xxii. 14); ¶ cxviii (cxix). 15. It may be as well to state that this model Ode is entirely Dr. Neale's compilation.]

XXVI

INTRODUCTION.

on the model of which those in every Canon are formed. The first, that of Moses after the passage of the Red Sea [Exodus xv. I-I9]; the second, that of Moses in Deuteronomy xxxii. [I-43]; the third, that of Hannah [I Kings, in English I Samuel ii. I-I0]; the fourth, that of Habakkuk [iii. 2-19]; the fifth, that of Isaiah xxvi. 9-20; the sixth, that of Jonah [ii. 2-9]; the seventh, that of the Three Children, verses 3-34 of our 'Song' in the Bible Version; the eighth, Benedicite; the ninth, Magnificat and Benedictus.

From this arrangement two consequences follow. The first, that, as the Second Canticle is never recited except in Lent, the Canons never have any second Ode. The second, that there is generally some reference, either direct or indirect, in each Ode, to the Canticle of the same number : in the first Ode, e.g., to the Song of Moses at the Red Sea; in the third to that of Hannah. This gives rise, on the one hand, to a marvellous amount of ingenuity, in tracing the most far-fetched connexions; in discovering the most remote types; -- it brings out into the clearest light the wonderful analogies which underlie the surface of Scripture narration, and so far imbues each Ode with a depth of Scriptural meaning which it could scarcely otherwise reach. On the other, it has a stiffening and cramping effect; and sometimes, especially to the uninitiated, has somewhat of a ludicrous tendency. It would be curious to sum up the variety of objects of which, in a thousand Sixth Odes, we find Jonah's Whale a type. On the whole, this custom has about the same disadvantages and advantages which Warton points out as resulting from the four rhymes of a Spenserian stanza : the advantages,---picturesqueness, ingenuity, discovery of new beauties; the disadvantages,-art not concealed by art, tautology, imparity of similitudes, a caricature of typology, painful and affected elaboration.

The Hirmos on which each Ode is based, is sometimes quoted at length at the commencement, in which case it is always distinguished by inverted commas; or the first few words are merely cited as a note to the singer, for whose benefit the Tone is also given.

The next noticeable matter is that these Odes are usually arranged after an acrostich, itself commonly in verse: sometimes alphabetical. The latter device was probably borrowed from the Psalms; as for example the 25, 112, and 119.

XXVII

XXVIII

INTRODUCTION.

The arrangement is not to be considered as a useless formality or pretty-ism : it was of the greatest importance, when so many Canons had to be remembered by heart. We know to what curious devices the Western Church, in matters connected with the Calendar, had recourse as a Memoria Technica ; and not a few of her short hymns were alphabetical, either by verses or by lines; I know no instance of any other kind of acrostich. Besides the line which forms the initials of Greek Canons, the name of the composer likewise finds a frequent place. And it is worth noticing that, whereas the authors of the world-famous hymns of the West, with a few exceptions (such as the Vexilla Regis, the Dies Iræ, the Veni Sancte Spiritus), are unknown, the case in the East is reversed. The acrostich may, or may not, run through the Theotokia, of which I now proceed to speak.

Each Ode is ended by a troparion, dedicated to the celebration of S. Mary, and thence named Theotokion. Sometimes there is another, which commemorates her at the Cross; and then it is a Stauro-theotokion. In long Canons, a stanza, sometimes intercalated at the end of the third or sixth Odes, is called a Cathisma, because the congregation are then allowed to sit. There is also the Oicos, literally the House,—which is the exact Italian Stanza, about the length of three ordinary troparia. The Catavasia is a troparion in which both choirs come down together, and stand in the middle of the Church, singing it in common.

The acrostichs are usually in iambics,—sometimes none of the best : e.g.— 'Εκπλήττομαί σου τοὺς λόγους Ζαχαρία· on the feast of S. Zacharias^{*} the Prophet :—and generally bringing in some paronomasia on the Saint's names ; as—

Φερώνυμόν σε τοῦ Θεοῦ δῶρον σέβω.

on that of S. [Theodorus⁺]; or again [on that of S. Tryphonus[‡]]:--

Τρυφής μεθέξειν άξίωσόν με, Τρύφων and of S. Clement § [of Ancyra] :---

Μέλπω τὸ κλημα της νοητής ἀμπέλου.

[* February 8th. † Also on February 8th. Previous editions gave the name of S. Dorotheus (commemorated on June 5th), but his acrostich, though containing the paronomasion, is very different to the above. ‡ February 1st. § January 23rd.]

But there are examples of acrostichs which take the form of an hexameter, as— Εἰκάδι οὐρανοῦ εἰς ξενίην Ξένη ἦλθε τετάρτη.* Τὸν πανάριστον ἐν ἀσκηταῖς Μακάριον κυδάινω:† and— Τιμόθεον τὸν ᾿Απόστολον, ặσμασι τοῖς δε γεραίρω:‡ and— Τὸν θεορήμονα Γρηγόριον τὸν ἀοίδιμον ặδω.§

I shall more than once have occasion to observe that, while the earlier Odes, which treat of such subjects as the Resurrection, Ascension, Nativity, are magnificent specimens of religious poetry, the later ones, composed in commemoration of martyrs, of whom nothing but the fact of their martyrdom is known, are often grievously dull and heavy. Herein the Eastern Church would have done well: to have had, for such as these, a Canon of the Common of Martyrs, instead of celebrating each differently; if the tautology which composes such Odes can indeed be called different.

I said, some short time since, that the Greek Ode and the Latin Notkerian Sequence were essentially the same. This being so, it is to introduce confusion into the very axioms of hymnology to call that kind of Sequence, as Mone does, by the name of Troparion. The Troparion does not answer to the Sequence, but to each stanza of the Sequence. The differences between Odes and Sequences may be briefly summed up as follows :---

I. The Hirmos in the former has a number of Troparia following it and based on it, whereas in the latter the Troparia run in couples; that is, one Hirmos has one follower, or Troparion, and there an end; then, another follows another, and so on. There are sometimes triplets, but these are not common.

2. The Hirmos in Greek Odes is always an already existing Troparion; whereas, in Latin, the writer generally composed that as much as any other part of the Sequence. But in certain Sequences this was not always the case. Godeschalkus sometimes took a verse from the Psalms.

INTRODUCTION.

3. Sometimes, indeed, a whole Sequence was made super some other Sequence, and then it became a vast Troparion, the different verses taking the place of the commatisms in Greek Odes. In the February number of The Ecclesiologist for 1859, is given a list of Hirmos-Sequences, from the Brander MS. of S. Gall. But even in these cases, it is better not to call them Troparia, as they have so little real resemblance to Greek stanzas of that kind: I had rather see them called Homoia.

4. The rhythm in the Greek is far more exact. Not only the syllabic arrangement, but the accentuation is the same; whereas in Latin, the accentuation is often counter; that is, an iambic dimeter in the Hirmos is answered by a trochaic dimeter in the Troparion. For example, if the Hirmos were :---

"The LORD is great in Sion:

"And high above all people;"

And forgive me all my sins.

Such a licence would not for one moment be allowed in the Greek.

I next have to speak of the books in which Greek Hymnology is to be found. They consist principally of sixteen volumes.

a. Twelve of the Menza .—which would answer, in Western Ritual, to the Breviary, minus the ferial offices. But, whereas in the West, the only human compositions of the Breviary are the lections from the sermons of the Fathers, the hymns, and a few responses—the body of the Eastern Breviary is ecclesiastical poetry : poetry not, strictly speaking, written in verse, but in measured prose. This is the staple of those three thousand pages—under whatever name the stanzas may be presented—forming Canons and Odes; as, Troparia, Idiomela, Stichera, Stichoi, Contakia, Cathismata, Theotokia, Triodia, Staurotheotokia, Catavasiæ,—or whatever else. Nine-tenths of the Eastern Servicebook is poetry.

b. The Paracletike, or Great Octoechus : in eight parts. This contains the Ferial Office for eight weeks. Each week has on Sunday:—

A Canon of the Trinity. A Canon of the Resurrection. A Canon of the Cross and Resurrection. A Canon of the Mother of GOD.*

[*In Greek-of the Theotokos.]

On Monday :- A Canon of Penitence. A Canon of the Angels.

On Tuesday :- A Canon of Penitence. A Canon of the Forerunner.

On Wednesday:- A Canon of the Cross. A Canon of the Mother of GOD.*

On Thursday :- A Canon of the Apostles. A Canon of S. Nicholas.

On Friday :- A Canon of the Passion. + A Canon of the Mother of GOD.*

On Saturday :- A Canon of Prophets and Martyrs.[‡] A Canon of the Dead.§

In the first week, the whole of the Canons are sung to the first Tone: in the second, to the second, and so on. The Greek Tones answer to our Gregorian, thus:—

LATIN.				GREEK.
Tone I.	-		-	Ι.
II.		-		- I. Plagal.
III.	-		-	II.
IV.		-		- II. Plagal.
V.	-		-	III.
VI.		-		- Varyse (heavy).
VII.	-		-	IV.
VIII.		-		- IV. Plagal.¶

The Par acletike forms a quarto volume (double columns) of 390 pages: at least half is the work of Joseph of the Studium. The Octoechus, sometimes called the Little Octoechus, contains the Sunday services from the Paracletike: they are often printed separately.

[* In Greek-of the Theotokos.]

[† This Canon has the same title as the 1st on Wednesday.]

[* For the week of the 1st Tone only ; or, of All the Saints, 2nd, 3rd, and 4th, and the 1st-, 2nd-, and 4th-plagal Tones ; or, of Martyrs, Religious, Hierarchs, and the Reposing, Varyse Tone.]

[§ This Canon is more properly—of the Reposing. Once only, the first of sixty-four times, is it called—of the Dead. The necessity for this and the preceding note proves that Dr. Neale consulted the first week's order only.]

INTRODUCTION.

c. The Triodion: the Lent volume, which commences on the Sunday of the Pharisee and Publican (that before Septuagesima) and goes down to Easter. It is so called, because the leading Canons have, during that period, only three Odes.

d. The Pentecostarion,—more properly the Pentecostarion Charmosynon, the Office for Easter-tide. On a moderate computation, these volumes together comprise 5000 closely printed quarto pages, in double columns, of which at least 4000 are poetry.

The thought that, in conclusion, strikes one is this: the marvellous ignorance in which English ecclesiastical scholars are content to remain of this huge treasure of divinity—the gradual completion of nine centuries at least. I may safely calculate that not one out of twenty who peruse these pages will ever have read a Greek 'Canon' through: yet what a glorious mass of theology do these offices present ! If the following pages tend in any degree to induce the reader to study these books for himself, my labour could hardly have been spent to a better result.

EPOCHS OF GREEK ECCLESIASTICAL POETRY.

LIKE that of the Latin, the Poetry of the Greek Church may be divided into Three Epochs :---

I. That of formation, while it was gradually throwing off the bondage of classical metres, and inventing and perfecting its various styles; and this ends about A.D. 726.

2. That of perfection, which, as we shall see, nearly coincides with the period of the Iconoclastic Controversy, A.D. 726-820.

3. That of decadence, when the effeteness of an effeminate Court, and the dissolution of a decaying Empire, reduced ecclesiastical poetry, by slow degrees, to a stilted bombast, giving great words to little meaning, heaping up epithet on epithet, tricking out commonplaces in diction more and more gorgeous, till sense and simplicity are alike sought in vain. * A.D. 820—1400.⁺

FIRST EPOCH. A.D. 360 - - - A.D. 726.

IT is not my intention to dwell on the hymn writers of this period, such as S. Gregory Nazianzen and S. Sophronius, because their works have not been employed in the Divine Office, are merely an imitation of classical writers, and, however occasionally pretty, are not the stuff out of which Church-song is made. There is but one writer in this epoch who gives spring-promise of the approaching summer, and that is S. Anatolius.

[* See note † on page 109.]

[† This historical summary, referred to in the following pages, was omitted from the Third Edition. It is here reproduced from the First Edition.]

S. Anatolius. + 45^{8.}

THE first poet who emancipated himself from the tyranny of the old laws hence to be compared to Venantius Fortunatus in the West—and who boldly struck out the new path of harmonious prose, was S. Anatolius of Constantinople. His commencements were not promising. He had been apocrisiarius, or legate, from the arch heretic Dioscorus, to the Emperor's Court : and at the death of S. Flavian, in consequence of the violence received in the 'Robbers' Meeting' at Ephesus, A.D. 449, was, by the influence of his Pontiff, raised to the vacant throne of Constantinople. He soon, however, vindicated his orthodoxy : and in the Council of Chalcedon he procured the enactment of the famous 28th Canon, by which, (in spite of all the efforts of Rome,) Constantinople was raised to the second place among Patriarchal Sees. Having governed his Church eight years in peace, he departed to his rest in A.D. 458.• His compositions are not numerous, and are almost all short, but they are usually very spirited.

^{[*} S. ANATOLIUS is commemorated on July 3rd, in company with the holy Martyrs Hyakinthus, Mokius and Markus, Diomedus, Evlampius, Asklipiadus, and Dolindoukh or Golindoukh. The Russian Maisyatsosloff adds to the above -- the religious Alexander; and the holy Philip, metropolitan of Moscow.]]

EVENING HYMN.

This little Hymn, which, I believe, is not used in the public Service of the Church, * is a great favourite in the Greek Isles. Its peculiar style and evident antiquity may well lead to the belief that it is the work of our present author. It is, to the scattered hamlets of Chios and Mitylene, what Bishop Ken's Evening Hymn is to the villages of our own land; and its melody is singularly plaintive and soothing.

Την ημέραν διελθών.

THE day is past and over ; All thanks, O LORD, to Thee ! I pray Thee, that offenceless † The hours of dark may be. O JESU ! keep me in Thy sight, I And save me through the coming night !

The joys of day are over : I lift my heart to Thee ; And call on Thee, that sinless ‡ The hours of sin § may be. O JESU! make their darkness light, And save methrough the coming night !

The toils of day are over : I raise the hymn to Thee : And ask that free from peril The hours of fear § may be. O JESU! keep me in Thy sight, And guard me through the coming night!

Lighten mine eyes, O SAVIOUR, Or sleep in death shall I; And he, my wakeful tempter, Triumphantly shall cry:

'He could not make their darkness light,

'Nor guard them through the hours of night !'

Be Thou my soul's preserver, O GOD! for Thou dost know How many are the perils Through which I have to go: Lover-of-men! O hear my call, And guard and save me from them all!

[*This is a mistake : the Hymn is to be found in the Great After-supper Service, (in Slavonian, Great After-vespers,) and occurs in two widely separated portions, the first of which (stanzas 1, 2, and 3,) follows immediately after the well-known Stichoi of the Emmanuel Ode—' For GoD is with us.' The accomplished Mrs. Charles, authoress of 'Chronicles of the Schonberg Cotta family,' in her Voice of Christian Life in Song, (Nisbet & Co.) translates from Dr. Danie's 'Thesaurus Hymnologicus' the same five stanzas chosen by Dr. Neale, omitting the sixth or Theotokion; and the probability is that Dr. Neale, who knew not the great importance of the Hymn in the public service of the Church, also owes his acquaintance therewith to his German contemporary, to whom, elsewhere, he mentions his literary obligation. From the following prose translation it will be seen how much more literal were the readings in the First Edition given in the note below.

The day is gone through, I Thank Thee, O LORD : that the evening with the night may be sinless, I beseech—Grant to me, Saviour, and save me.

The day is gone by, I Glorify Thee, O MASTER : that the evening with the night may be offenceless, I beseech, &c.

The day has passed over, I Hymn Thee, O HoLY: that the evening with the night may be plotless, I beseech, &c. Lighten mine eyes, O CHRIST the GOD, lest I sleep in death : lest mine enemy say—I have prevailed against him.

Be the Defender of my soul, O GOD, for I pass through the midst of snares: deliver me from them, and save me, O Good, as Lover-of-men.

* * * * * * * * *]

[Readings in First Edition :- + I pray Thee now, that sinless. $ And ask Thee, that offenceless. $ The hours of dark.]

* Diligent enquiry in the Levant failed to discover the melody which Dr. Neale in the preliminary note on the previous page describes as 'singularly plaintive and soothing.' But the editor was flattered at finding the above tune in use, without any effort or previous knowledge of his own, to a Greek metrical paraphrase of the first three stanzas of the present hymn. It is contained in a work edited by Mr. A. Vitzentini, entitled Sylloge Chorikon Asmeton, published at Chalce (or Halki) near Constantinople.

† The attention of Alto singers is directed to the doubled length of the sixth syllable in the fifth line, to compensate for which, the fourth, fifth, and seventh syllables are each of half length only.

SECOND EPOCH.

A.D. 726 - - - - A.D. 820.

THE second period of Greek Hymnology is very nearly, as I said,* coincident with the Iconoclastic controversy. Its first writer, indeed, died shortly after the commencement of that stormy age, and took no share in its Councils or sufferings; while the last hymnographer who bore a part in its proceedings, S. Joseph of the Studium, belongs to the decline of his art. With these two exceptions, the ecclesiastical poets of this period were not only thrown into the midst of that great struggle, but, with scarcely one exception, took an active share in it.

A few words on that conflict of one hundred and sixteen years are absolutely necessary, if we would understand the progress and full development of Greek Hymnography. No controversy has been more grossly misapprehended; none, without the key of subsequent events, could have been so difficult to appreciate. Till Calvinism, and its daughter Rationalism, showed the ultimate development of Iconoclast principles, it must have been well nigh impossible to realize the depth of feeling on the side of the Church, or the greatness of the interests attacked by her opponents. We may, perhaps, doubt whether even the Saints of that day fully understood the character of the battle; whether they did not give up ease, honour, possessions, life itself, rather from an intuitive perception that their cause was the cause of the Catholic faith, than from a logical appreciation of the results to which the Image-destroyers were tending. Just as in the early part of the Nestorian controversy, many and many a simple soul must have felt intuitively that the title of Theotokes was to be defended, without seeing the full consequences to which its denial would subsequently lead. The supporters of Icons, by universal consent, numbered amongst their ranks all that was pious and venerable in the Eastern Church. The Iconoclasts seem to have been a legitimate outbreak of that secret creeping Manichæism, which, under the various names of Turlupins, Bogomili, or Good-men, so long devastated CHRIST'S fold.

We must keep the landmarks of the controversy in sight. Commenced by Leo the Isaurian, in A.D. 726, the persecution was carried on by his despicable son, Constantine Copronymus, who also endeavoured to destroy monasticism. The great Council of Constantinople, attended by 338 prelates, in 752, which rejected the use of images, was the culminating success of the Iconoclasts. Lulling at the death of Constantine, the persecution again raged in the latter years of his successor Leo, and was only terminated by the death of that prince, and the succession of Constantine and Irene. The Second Council of Nicæa, Seventh Œcumenical (A.D. 787), attended by 377 Bishops, seemed to end the heresy ; but it again broke out under the Iconoclast Emperor, Leo the Armenian (813), and after having been carried on under the usurper Michael, and his son Theophilus, ended with the death of the latter in 842. In the Hymnographers of this epoch, it may be noticed that the Second Council of Nicæa forms the culminating point of ecclesiastical poetry. Up to that date there is a vigour and freshness which the twenty-eight years of peace succeeding the Council corrupted, and that rapidly, with the fashionable language of an effete court, and deluged with Byzantine bombast.*

S. Andrew of Crete.

A.D. 660 - - - - A.D. 732.

ANDREW was born at Damascus, about the year 660, and embraced the monastic life at Jerusalem, from which city he sometimes takes his name. Hence he was sent on ecclesiastical business to Constantinople, where he became a Deacon of the Great Church, and Warden of the Orphanage. His first entrance on public life does no credit to his sanctity. During the reign of Philippicus Bardanes, (711—714) he was raised by that usurper to the Archiepiscopate of Crete; and shortly afterwards was one of the Pseudo-Synod of Constantinople, held under the Emperor's auspices in A.D.712, which condemned the Sixth Œcumenical Council, and restored the Monothelite heresy. At a later period, however, he returned to the faith of the Church, and refuted the error into which he had fallen. Seventeen of his Homilies/ rather laboured than eloquent, remain to us : that in which he rises highest is, not unnaturally, his sermon on S. Titus, Apostle of Crete. He died in the island of Hierissus, near Mitylene, about the year 732.*

As a poet, his most ambitious composition is the Great Canon; which, partially used during other days of Lent, is sung right through on the Thursday of Mid-Lent week, called, indeed, from that hymn.⁺ His Triodia in Holy week, and Canon on Mid-Pentecost, are fine; and he has a great variety of spirited Idiomela scattered through the Triodion and Pentecostarion.

^{[*} S. ANDREW is commemorated on July 4th, in company with the holy Sacred-martyr Theodorus, bishop of Cyrene; the holy Martyrs Theodotus and Theodota; the holy Donatus, bishop of Lybia; and the religious Mary or Martha, mother of the holy Symeon the new Stylite.]

^{[†} This antedate of a week is an oversight of Dr. Neale's, repeated on page 18. In the 'General Introduction' to his HISTORY OF THE HOLV EASTERN CHURCH, (London: Joseph Masters, 1850,) pages 732 and 746, the Dr. correctly states: — 'Fifth Week of the Fast. (xiv.) On the Thursday of this week (which is therefore sometimes called from it) the Great 'Canon is sung.' It is sung at Daydawn or Lauds. The 'other days of Lent,' on which this Canon is 'partially used,' are the Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday of the First Week, at After-supper or Compline.]

I

JESUS, hastening for the world to suffer, Enters in, Jerusalem, to thee : With His Twelve He goeth forth to offer That free sacrifice He came to be.

S. ANDREW OF CRETE.

THE GREAT CANON, CALLED ALSO THE KING OF CANONS.

It would be unpardonable not to give a portion of that which the Greeks regard as the King of Canons—the Great Canon of the Mid-Lent week.* It is a collection of Scriptural examples, turned to the purpose of penitential Confession. It is impossible to deny the beauty of many stanzas, and the ingenuity of some tropological applications. But the immense length of the Canon, for it exceeds three hundred stanzas, and its necessary tautology, must render it wearisome, unless devotionally used under the peculiar circumstances for which it is appointed. The following is a part of the earlier portion.†

ΙΙόθεν ἄρξομαι θρηνείν ;

I

WHENCE shall my tears begin? What first-fruits shall I bear Of earnest sorrow for my sin? Or how my woes declare? O Thou! the Merciful and Gracious One! Forgive the foul transgressions I have done.

With Adam I have vied, Yea, pass'd him, in my fall; And I am naked now, by pride And lust made bare of all; Of Thee, O GoD, and that Celestial Band, And all the glory of the Promis'd Land.

No earthly Eve beguil'd My body into sin : A spiritual temptress smil'd, Concupiscence within : Unbridled passion grasp'd th' unhallow'd sweet: Most bitter—ever bitter—was the meat.

If Adam's righteous doom, Because he dar'd transgress Thy one decree, lost Eden's bloom And Eden's loveliness : What recompense, O LORD, must I expect, Who all my life Thy quick'ning laws neglect?

By mine own act, like Cain, A murd'rer was I made : By mine own act my soul was slain, When Thou wast disobey'd : And lusts each day are quicken'd, warring still Against Thy grace ‡ with many a § deed of ill. 6

Thou formedst me of clay, O Heav'nly Potter ! Thou In fleshly vesture didst array, With life and breath endow. ThouWhodidstmake, didst ransom, and dost know, To Thy repentant creature pity show !

My guilt for vengeance cries; But yet Thou pard'nest all, And whom Thou lov'st Thou dost chastise, And mourn'st for them that fall: Thou, as a Father, mark'st our tears and pain, And welcomest the prodigal again.

I lie before Thy door, O turn me not away ! Nor in mine old age give me o'er To Satan for a prey ! But ere the end of life and term of grace, Thou Merciful ! my many sins efface !

The Priest beheld, and pass'd The way he had to go: A careless glance the Levite cast, And left me to my woe: But Thou, O JESU, Mary's Son, console, Draw nigh, and succour me, and make me whole!

10

Thou spotless Lamb divine, Who takest sins || away, Remove, remove, ¶ the load that mine Upon my conscience lay : And, of Thy tender mercy, grant Thou me To find remission of iniquity !

S. Germanus.

A.D. 634 - - - A.D. 734.

S. GERMANUS of Constantinople was born in that city about 634.* His father. Justinian, a patrician, had the ill-fortune to excite the jealousy of the Emperor Constantine Pogonatus, who put him to death, and obliged Germanus to enrol himself among the Clergy of the Great Church. Here he became distinguished for piety and learning, and in process of time was made Bishop of Cyzicus. In this capacity he assisted, with S. Andrew of Crete, in the Synod of Constantinople of which I have just spoken :+ and no doubt he might be the more favourably disposed to Monothelitism, because he had been so deeply injured by its great opponent, Pogonatus. However, he also, at a late period, expressly condemned that heresy. Translated to the throne of Constantinople in 715, he governed his Patriarchate for some time in tranquility. At the beginning of the attack of Leo the Isaurian on Icons, his letters, in opposition to the Imperial mandate, were the first warnings which the Church received of the impending storm. Refusing to sign the decrees of the Synod which was convoked by that Emperor in A.D. 730, and stripping off his Patriarchal robes. with the words-'It is impossible for me, Sire, to innovate, without the sanction ' of the Œcumenical Council,' he was driven from his See, not, it is said, without blows, and returned to his own house at Platanias, where he thenceforth led a quiet and private life. He died shortly afterwards, aged about one hundred years,* and is regarded by the Greeks as one of their most glorious Confessors.

> [*See note on next page.] [†At page 13.]

The poetical compositions of S. Germanus are few. He has stanzas on S. Symeon Stylites [September 1st], on the Prophet Elias [July 20th], and on the Decollation of S. John Baptist [August 29th]. His most poetical work is perhaps his Canon on the Wonder-working Image in Edessa [August 16th]. But probably the following simpler stanzas, for Sunday in the Week of the First Tone, will better commend themselves to the English reader.

[NOTE. The Horologion states that S. GERMANUS died in 740, aged 95, consequently he must have been born eleven years later than Dr. Neale's conjectural date. He is commemorated on May 12th, in company with S. Epiphanius, archbishop of Cyprus. To whom the Russian Maisyatsosloff adds—the holy Sabinus, archbishop, successor of S. Epiphanius; and the holy Polybius, bishop of Rhinocorura in Egypt, on the border of Palestine, disciple of S. Epiphanius.]

By fruit, the ancient foe's device Drave Adam forth from Paradise : CHRIST, by the cross of shame and pain,

Brought back the dying Thief again : 'When in Thy kingdom, LORD,'said he, 'Thou shalt return, remember me!'

Thy Holy Passion we adore And Resurrection evermore : With heart and voice to Thee on high, As Adam and the Thief we cry : ' When in Thy kingdom Thou shalt be ' Victor o'er all things, think of me!'

Thou, after three appointed days, Thy Body's Temple didst upraise : And Adam's children, one and all, With Adam, to New Life didst call : ' When Thou,'they cry, ' shalt Victor be ' In that Thy kingdom, think of me!

Early, O CHRIST, to find Thy Tomb, The weeping Ointment-bearers come : The Angel, cloth'd in white, hath said, 'Why seek the LIVING with the dead? 'The Lord of Life hath burst death's chain,

'Whom here ye mourn + and seek in vain.'

Th' Apostles, on Thy Vision bent, To that appointed mountain went : And there they worship when they see, And there the message comes from Thee That every race beneath the skies They should disciple and baptise.

f

We praise the FATHER, GOD on High, The Holy SON we magnify: Nor less our praises shall adore The Holy GHOST for evermore : This grace, Blest TRINITY, we crave ; Thy suppliant servants hear and save.

[* Viz: the 1st, 2nd, 4th, 5th, 6th, and 7th. The Makarismoi (Matt. v. 3-12) are said on Sundays in place of the Third Antiphon, in the early part of the Liturgy. The following prose translation of the Troparia occurs in the editor's Office for the Lord's Day, (London : J. T. Hayes,) pp. 100-102.

By eating, the enemy drove Adam out of Paradise, but by a Cross the Thief entered therein with CHRIST, crying : Remember me when Thou comest in Thy Kingdom.

We worship Thy Passion, and glorify Thy Resurrection; together with Adam and the Thief, with a clear voice we cry aloud to Thee : Remember me, O LORD, when Thou comest in Thy Kingdom.

Thy Temple of the Body, O CHRIST the GOD, Arose the third day from the Grave, raising together with Adam the offspring of Adam, crying: Remember me, when Thou comest in Thy Kingdom.

[Reading in First Edition ;- † Whom here we weep.]

The Ointment-bearers, weeping, coming to Thy Tomb very early, O CHRIST the GoD, found an Angel in white, sitting, crying : Whom seek ye? CHRIST is Risen : henceforth weep not.

Thine Apostles, O LORD, present with the Saviour upon the mountain where he had appointed them, when they saw Thee, they worshipped, and were then sent forth to teach the nations, and Baptise them.

Let us, together, all Worship the FATHER, and Glorify the Son, and Hymn the All-Holy Spirit, crying and saying: All-Holy TRINITY, O save us all.]

Μέγα καὶ παράδοξον θαῦμα.

A GREAT and mighty wonder ! A full and holy cure ! † The Virgin bears the Infant, With Virgin-honour pure ! The WORD becomes ‡ Incarnate, And yet remains on high : § And Cherubim sing anthems To Shepherds, from the sky. 2

And we with them triumphant Repeat the hymn again :
'To God on high be glory, And peace on earth to men !'
While thus they sing your Monarch, Those bright angelic bands,
Rejoice, ye vales and mountains ! Ye oceans, clap your hands !

Since all He comes to ransom, By all be He ador'd, The Infant born in Bethl'hem, The Saviour and the LORD ! And idol forms shall perish, And error shall decay, And CHRIST shall wield His sceptre, Our LORD and GOD for aye.

[* Removed from after page 8 for the following reason: The original Greek of this Hymn is in two stanzas, both of which in the Menceon, are ascribed to S. GERMANUS. Adjoining stanzas in the same series of Aposticha from which the first is taken are ascribed to S. ANATOLIUS, hence, probably, the mistake of Dr. Neale in the previous editions, where this hymn occurs as the work of that saint. The two stanzas in the Aposticha are in inverse order to that here given; and in tolerably literal prose, read as follow. See Office for the Lord's day, pp. 179 and 177.

HYMN OF GERMANUS.

A great and paradoxic wonder is complete to-day! A Virgin brings forth, yet with womb incorrupt; the WORD is Incarnate, yet not divided from the FATHER. Angels with Shepherds Glorify, and we with them together cry-aloud: Glory to GoD in the Highest, and on earth peace.

In Heaven all Angels make chorus and exult to-day, and all the creation leaps, because the Saviour LORD is born in Bethlehem : for all wandering of the idols hath ceased, and CHRIST is King unto the ages.]

[Readings in First Edition :- † The festal makes secure. ‡ The WORD is made.] § Compare S. Thomas :- Verbum supernum prodiens, Nec Patris linguens dexteram. [J.M.N.]

* The words of the First Edition are here retained, not merely for that they preserve better the sense of the Greek, but because they are the words originally associated with the present tune in 1866.

S. John Bamascene.

+ CIRC. A.D. 780.

S. JOHN DAMASCENE has the double honour of being the last but one of the Fathers of the Eastern Church, and the greatest of her poets. It is surprising, however, how little is known of his life. That he was born of a good family at Damascus,—that he made great progress in philosophy, —that he administered some charge under the Caliph,—that he retired to the monastery of S. Sabbas,* in Palestine,—that he was the most learned and eloquent writer with whom the Iconoclasts had to contend,—that at a comparatively late period of life he was ordained Priest of the Church of Jerusalem,—and that he died after 754, and before 787, seems to comprise all that has reached us of his biography.⁺ His enemies, from an unknown reason, called him Mansur: [‡] whether he were the same with John Arklas, also an ecclesiastical poet, is not so certain. §

As a poet, he had a principal share in the Octoechus, of which I have already spoken. If His three great canons are those on Easter, the Ascension, and S. Thomas's Sunday, the first and third of which I shall give either wholly or in part. Probably, however, many of the Idiomela and Stichera which are scattered about the office-books under the title of $\mathcal{F}ohn$ and $\mathcal{F}ohn$ the Hermit, are his. His eloquent defence of Icons has deservedly procured him the title of The Doctor of Christian Art.

[* Spelt with one b in previous editions. It is sometimes, and more phonetically, spelt Savvas.]

[† The Horologion states that S. JOHN was born in 676, and died in 760, aged 84 years. The Russian Maisyatsosloff gives the same date of birth, but prolongs his life twenty years, until 780. He is commemorated on December 4th, in company with the holy Great-martyr Barbara; our religious Father Yohn the Wonderworker, bishop of Polybotus in Phrygia; and the holy Juliana, Christodulos, and Christodula, who perished by the sword.]

[t 'To Mansur, of evil name, and Saracen in heart, Anathema. Anathema to Mansur the image-worshipper and writer of 'falsehoods. Anathema to Mansur who belied CHRIST, and plotted against his Sovereign. To Mansur the teacher of im-'piety, and perverter of the sacred Scripture, Anathema.' Concluding words of the Definition of the Pseudo-council of Constantinople, A.D. 752, alluded to by Dr. Neale at page 12. 'And lastly, JOHN, who by them has been contemptuously 'styled MANSUR: he, emulating the Evangelist Matthew, left all, and followed CHRIST, counting the reproach of CHRIST 'greater riches than the treasures of Arabia, and choosing rather to suffer affliction with the people of GOD than to enjoy 'the pleasures of sin for a season.' From the REFUTATION, by the Holy and Great Seventh (Ecumenical Council, held at Nicara in 787, of the above Definition.-Mendham, Seventh General Council, pages 427-8.] He was called Ibn-Mansur, from the name of his father,-Assemani, Bib. Orient, in. 97. R. F. L.

[§ It is commonly believed, being sufficiently proveable, that he is the same.]

[¶ Towards the close of the INTRODUCTION.]

CANON FOR EASTER DAY,

CALLED THE GOLDEN CANON, OR, THE QUEEN OF CANONS.

The circumstances under which the Canon is sung* are thus eloquently described by a modern writer. The scene is at Athens.

As midnight approached, the Archbishop with his priests, accompanied by the King and Queen, left the Church, and stationed themselves on the platform, which was raised considerably from the ground, so that they were distinctly seen by the people. Every one now remained in breathless expectation, holding their unlighted tapers in readiness when the glad moment should arrive, while the priests still continued murmuring their melancholy chant in a low halfwhisper. Suddenly a single report of a cannon announced that twelve o'clock had struck, and that Easter day had begun; then the old Archbishop elevating the cross, exclaimed in a loud exulting tone, 'Christos anesti ! CHRIST is risen !' and instantly every single individual of all that host took up the cry, and the vast multitude broke through and dispelled for ever the intense and mournful silence which they had maintained so long, with one spontaneous shout of indescribable joy and triumph, 'CHRIST is risen ! CHRIST is risen !' At the same moment, the oppressive darkness was succeeded by a blaze of light from thousands of tapers, which, communicating one from another, seemed to send streams of fire in all directions, rendering the minutest objects distinctly visible, and casting the most vivid glow on the expressive faces full of exultation, of the rejoicing crowd; bands of music struck up their gayest strains; the roll of the drum throughout the town, and further on the pealing of the cannon announced far and near these 'glad tidings of great joy ;' while from hill and plain, from the sea-shore and the far olive-grove, rocket after rocket ascending to the clear sky, answered back with mute eloquence, that CHRIST is risen indeed, and told of other tongues that were repeating those blessed words, and other hearts that leap for joy; everywhere men clasped each other's hands, and congratulated one another, and embraced with countenances beaming with delight, as though to each one separately some wonderful happiness had been proclaimed ;---and so in truth it was ;--and all the while, rising above the mingling of many sounds, each one of which was a sound of gladness, the aged priests were distinctly heard chanting forth a glorious old Hymn of Victory in tones so loud and clear, that they seemed to have regained their youth and strength to tell the world how 'CHRIST is risen from the dead, having trampled death beneath 'His feet, and henceforth they that are in the tombs have everlasting life.'

[* The Canon is sung a little later on than the scene here described.]

That which follows [on the next page in Greek,* with its music,] is the 'glorious old Hymn of Victory.'

ODE I.+

'Αναστάσεως ήμέρα.

I

"'TIS the Day[†] of Resurrection : "Earth ! tell it out abroad ! "The Passover of gladness! "The Passover of GOD!

" From Death to Life Eternal, "From this world § to the sky, "Our CHRIST hath brought us over, "With hymns of victory."

Our hearts be pure from evil, That we may see aright The LORD in rays eternal Of Resurrection-Light:

And, listening to His accents, May hear, so calm and plain, His own-All Hail !--- and hearing, May raise the victor strain !

Now let the Heav'ns be joyful ! Let earth her song begin ! Let the round world keep triumph, And all that is therein :

Invisible and visible ¶ Their notes let all things blend, For CHRIST the LORD hath risen, Our joy that hath no end.

[And not the present Hymn as stated in former Editions. See closing paragraph and note on previous page.]

[† This Ode is in three stanzas only, and was so divided by Dr. Neale. It is here subdivided into six to suit the exigencies of the Greek music on the following page. For the appended translation of the several Odes of this 'Golden Canon' see Office for the Lord's Day, p.p. 213-217.

"People, let us pride ourselves on the Day of Resurrection. "The Pascha of the LORD, the Pascha: for from death to "Life, and from earth to Heaven, CHRIST the GOD hath "made us pass, singing the Triumphal Hymn."

Let us cleanse our senses, and we shall behold CHRIST flashing in the unapproachable Light of the Resurrection.

'Tis the [! Extra syllable, requiring a note to be divided thus :---[Reading in First Edition :- § From earth unto.]

and we shall clearly hear Him saying Hail to us, singing the Triumphal Hymn.

Let the Heavens, as is worthy, be glad, and let earth exult, and let all the world, visible and invisible, keep festival: for CHRIST hath Risen, our everlasting Mirth.]

[¶ Another extra syllable : but the notes lend themselves readily to the form of the word visible.']

* The extra syllable 'Tis (which the Greek does not contain) is here omitted to preserve the notation of the strain as needed for all the subsequent stanzas.

ODE III.

Δεῦτε πόμα πίωμεν.

I

"COME, and let us drink of that New River, "Not from barren Rock divinely poured, "But the Fount of Life that is for ever "From the Sepulchre of CHRIST the LORD."

All the world hath bright illumination, — Heav'n and Earth and things beneath the earth : 'Tis the Festival of all Creation : CHRIST hath ris'n, Who gave Creation birth.

Yesterday with Thee in burial lying, Now to-day with Thee aris'n I rise; Yesterday the partner of Thy dying, With Thyself upraise me to the skies.

["Come, let us quaff the New Drink, not wondrously "produced from barren rock, but the Fountain of incor-"ruption which CHRIST hath rained upon us from the grave, "in Whom we are established."

Now all-things are filled with Light, Heaven and also earth, and the things beneath the earth. Then let all creation keep the Feast, CHRIST'S Rising, in which it is established.

Yesterday, O CHRIST, with Thee I was entombed ; to-day, with Thee Arising, I arise, ; yesterday, with Thee upon the Cross I hung : Glorify me, O Saviour, with Thyself in Thy Kingdom.]

ODE IV.

'Επί της θείας φυλακής.

I

"STAND on thy watch-tower, | * Habakkuk the seer, "And show the | Angel, radiant in his light : "'To-day,' saith he, 'Sal- | vation shall appear,

"'Because the | LORD hath ris'n, as GOD of Might.'"

The male that opes the | Virgin's womb is He; The Lamb of | Whom His faithful people eat; Our truer Passover | from † blemish free; Our very | GOD, Whose name is all complete.

This yearling Lamb, our | Sacrifice most blest, Our glorious | Crown, for all men freely dies : Behold our Pascha,[‡] | beauteous from His rest, The healing | Sun§ of Righteousness arise.

Before the ark, a | type to pass away, David of | old time danc'd : we, holier race, Seeing the Anti- | type come forth to-day, Hail, with a | shout, CHRIST'S own Almighty grace.

["Stand with us upon the sacred watch-tower, O Abba-"koum, Speaker-of-God, and point out the Light-bearing "Angel thrillingly saying: To-day to the world is Salvation, "for CHRIST is Risen, as All-Powerful."

CHRIST, as a male, hath appeared, opening the Virgin's Womb: but, as our food, He is called a Lamb; as blameless and without stain He is our Pascha; and as True God, Perfect is He named. As a yearling Lamb, our blessed, saving Crown, freely for all is sacrificed, the cleansing Pascha ; and in new beauty from the grave, on us the Sun of Righteousness hath beamed.

The Parent-of-God, David, leaping, danced before the shadowing Ark : but let us, the Holy people of GoD, seeing the fulfilment of the symbols, devoutly rejoice : for CHRIST is Risen, as All Powerful.]

[* The upright bar marks the close of the recitative portion in each line.]

[† Exceptional rhythm, requiring two notes to be tied together to suit the word from.] [Readings in First Edition:-+; Our cleansing Pascha. § Behold the Sun.]

^{*} The present tune, it will be perceived, is in the form of an Anglican Double-Chant, with the recitative measure of each strain divided into two.

† Had Dr. Neale followed the Greek method of spelling the Prophet's name—Abbakowm (phonetically Avvakcom), it would have been pleasanter for singers generally, avoiding the harsh final syllable—kuk.

ODE V.

Ορθρίσωμεν δρθρου βαθέος.

I

" LET us rise in early morning, " And, instead of ointments, bring
" Hymns of praises to our Master, " And His Resurrection sing :
" We shall see the Sun of Justice " Ris'n with healing on His wing."

Thy unbounded loving-kindness, They that groan'd in Hades' chain, Pris'ners, from afar beholding, Hasten to the light again ; And to that eternal Pascha Wove the dance and rais'd the strain.

Go ye forth, His Saints, to meet Him ! Go with lamps in ev'ry hand ! From the sepulchre He riseth : Ready for the Bridegroom stand : And the Pascha of salvation Hail, with His triumphant band.

["Let us rise early, in the deep dawn, and, ifistead of "ointment, let us bring a Hymn to the MASTER, and "behold CHRIST, the Sun of Righteousness, Arise, with "life to all."

They who were held in the cords of Hades, seeing Thine immeasurable tenderness-of-heart, hastened to the Light, O CHRIST, with exultant foot applauding the Eternal Pascha.

Let us, lampbearers, advance to CHRIST, as to a Bridegroom, coming from the Tomb: and let us, with the festive orders, together-celebrate God's saving Pascha.]

S. JOHN DAMASCENE.

ODE VI.

Κατήλθες έν τοις κατωτάτοις.

I

"INTO the dim earth's lowest parts descending,

"And bursting by Thy might th' infernal chain "That bound the pris'ners, Thou, at three days' ending, "As Jonah from the whale, hast ris'n again."

Thou brakest not the seal, Thy surety's token, Arising from the Tomb, Who left'st in Birth The portals of Virginity unbroken, Op'ning the gates* of heaven to sons of earth.

Thou, Sacrifice ineffable and living, Didst to the FATHER by Thyself atone As GOD eternal : resurrection giving To Adam, gen'ral parent, by Thine own.

["Thou didst descend into the lowest parts of the earth, and "didst shatter the overlasting bars which held men-in-fetters, "O CHRIST; and on the third day, as Jonas from the "whale, Thou didst Arise from the grave." the keys of the Virgin ; and didst open to us the gates of Paradise.

My Saviour, Who, as GOD, didst bring to the FATHER, of free-will, Thyself, a Victim living and also unsacrificed, in Rising from the grave Thou hast together-raised all the race of Adam.]

Guarding the seals safely, O CHRIST, Thou didst Ariss from the grave, Who, in Thy Birth, loosedst not

ODE VII.

Ο παίδας έκ καμίνου.

"WHO from the fiery furnace sav'd the Three, "Suffers as mortal; that, His Passion o'er, "This mortal, triumphing o'er death, might be "Vested with immortality once more : "He Whom our fathers still confest

"GOD over all, for ever blest."

The women with their ointment seek the Tomb : And Whom they mourn'das dead, with many a^{*}tear, They worship now, joy dawn ing on their gloom, As Living GOD, as mystic Passover ;

Then to the LORD'S Disciples gave The tidings of the vanquish'd grave.

["He, Who delivered the Children from the furnace, be-"coming Man, as mortal suffers, and through sufferings "clothes mortality with the dignity of incorruption; He, the "Aione GoD of our Fathers, Blessed and most-Glorious."

The Divine-minded Women, with Ointments, ran after Thee : but Whom they sought with tears as mortal, they worshipped, hailing the Living God : and announced to Thy Disciples the mystic Pascha. 3

We keep the festal of the death of Death ; Of hell o'erthrown: the first-fruits pure and bright Of life eternal; and with joyous breath Praise Him that won the vict'ry by His might : Him Whom our fathers still confest GOD over all, for ever blest.

All hallow'd festival, in splendour born ! Night of salvation and of glory ! Night Fore-heralding the Resurrection morn ! When from the tomb the everlasting Light, A glorious frame once more His own, Upon the world in splendour shone.

We celebrate the death of Death, the overthrow of Hades, the first-fruit of another, endless life; and in the dance we hymn the Cause, Him, the Alone GoD of our Fathers, Blessed ond Most-Glorious.

How truly Holy and All-festal is this Night of Salvation and of Radiance, announcing-before hand the Splendourbearing Day of the Awaking, in which the Eternal Light, Bodily, beamed-forth to all from the grave.]

["Shine, shine, O new Jerusalem, for the Glory of the "Logp hath risen upon thee. Now dance and exult, O Sion; "but thou, O pure-one, be glad, O Theotokos, in the "Resurrection of thine Offspring."

O Divine! O dear ! O sweetest Voice of Thine! for Thou, O CHRIST, hast promised of a truth to be with us until the age doth end: which anchor of hope holding, we, the faithful-ones, exult.

O CHRIST, Who art the Great and Sacred Pascha, the Wisdom, and WORD, and Power of Gon: give to us more perfectly to partake of Thee, in the day without evening, of Thy Kingdom.]

THE STICHERA OF THE LAST KISS.

[PART I.]

The following Stichera, which are generally (though without any great cause) attributed to S. John Damascene, form, perhaps, one of the most striking portions of the service of the Eastern Church. They are sung towards the conclusion of the Funeral Office, while the friends and relations are, in turn, kissing the corpse ; the Priest does so last of all. Immediately afterwards, it is borne to the grave ; the Priest casts the first earth on the coffin, with the words, 'The earth is "the LORD's and all that therein is ; the compass of the world, and they that dwell therein.' I have omitted four of the stanzas,* as being almost a repetition of the rest.

Δεῦτε τελευταίον ασπασμον δώμεν.

I

TAKE the last kiss,—the last for ever! Yet render thanks amidst your gloom: He, sever'd from his home and kindred, Is passing onwards to the tomb : For earthly labours, earthly pleasures, And carnal joys, he cares no more : Where are hiskinsfolk and acquaintance? A dweller in the house of darkness, They stand upon another shore. Let us say, around him press'd, 'Grant him, LORD, eternal rest !'

The hour of woe and separation, The hour of falling tears is this : Him that so lately was among us For the last time of all we kiss: Up to the grave to be surrender'd, Seal'd with the monumental stone, Amidst the dead to lie alone. Let us say, around him press'd, ' Grant him, LORD, eternal rest!'

[* Viz : the 6th, 9th, 10th, and 12th. The 9th and 10th are so beautiful, that they merit quotation.

[Come to the grave, brethren, and view the dust and ashes of which we are formed. Whither now are we going? What shall we become ? Who is poor, or rich? Or who is master, and who is free? And are not all ashes? The beauty of the countenance withereth, and all the flower of youth is cut down by death.

How truly vain and perishing are all the pleasures and dignities of life : for we must all decay, all die. Kings also and princes, judges and potentates, rich and poor, and all mortal nature. For now, those who were once among the living are laid low in graves. Whom, altogether, let us pray the LORD to grant repose.]

[Reading in First Edition :- | Is passing on towards.]

Life, and life's evil conversation. And all its dreams, are pass'd away : The soul hath left her tabernacle : Black and unsightly grows the clay. The golden vessel here lies broken : The tongue no voice of answer knows: Hush'd is sensation, still'd is motion : Toward the tomb the dead man goes. Let us cry with heart's endeavour,[‡] 'Grant him rest that is for ever ! 1 What is our life? A fading flower; A vapour, passing soon away; The dewdrops of the early morning :--Come gaze upon the tombs to-day. Where now is youth? Where now is beauty, And grace of form, and sparkling eye? All, like the summer grass are wither'd; All are abolish'd utterly! While our eyes with grief grow dim, Let us weep to CHRIST for him!

Woe for that bitter, bitter moment, The fearful start, the parting groan, The wrench of anguish, from the body When the poor soul goes forth alone ! Hell and destruction are before her; Earth in its truest worth she sees; A flick'ring shade; a dream of error; A vanity of vanities.

Sin in this world let us flee, That in heav'n our place may be. Draw nigh, ye sons of Adam; viewing A likeness of yourselves in clay:

Its beauty gone; its grace disfigur'd; Dissolving in the tomb's decay;

The prey of worms and of corruption, In silent darkness mould'ring on ;

Earth gathers round the coffin, hiding The brother, now for ever gone.

Yet we cry, around him press'd,

'Grant him, LORD, eternal rest !'

When, hurried forth by fearful angels, The soul forsakes her earthly frame,

Then friends and kindred she forgetteth,

And this world's cares have no more claim;

Then pass'd are vanity and labour ; She hears the Judge's voice alone ; She sees th' ineffable tribunal :

Where we, too, cry with suppliant moan,

' For the sins that soul hath done,

'Grant Thy pardon, Holy One!'

8

Now all the organs of the body, So full of energy before,

Have lost perception, know not motion, Can suffer and can act no more.

The eyes are clos'd in death's dark shadow; The ear can never hear again;

The feet are bound ; the hands lie idle ; The tongue is fast as with a chain.

Great and mighty though he be, Every man is vanity.

'Embrace me with the last embracement;
'Kiss me with this, the latest kiss;
'Never again shall I be with you;
'Never with you share woe or bliss.

'I go toward the dread tribunal 'Where no man's person is preferr'd;

'Where lord and slave, where chief and soldier, 'Where rich and poor alike are heard:

'One is the manner of their judgment: 'Their plea and their condition one: 'And they shall reap in woe or glory 'The earthly deeds that they have done.

Of triumphant gladness !
GOD hath brought His Israel
Into joy from sadness :
Loos'd from Phar'oh's bitter yoke
Jacob's sons and daughters ;
Led them with unmoisten'd foot
Through the Red Sea waters."

'Tis the Spring of souls to-day ; CHRIST hath burst His prison ; And from three days' sleep in death, As a sun hath risen. All the winter of our sins, Long and dark, is flying From His Light, to Whom we give Laud and praise undying. 3

Now the Queen of Seasons, bright With the Day of Splendour, With the royal Feast of feasts, Comes its joy to render ; Comes to glad Jerusalem, Who with true affection Welcomes, in unwearied strains, JESU'S Resurrection.

S. Cosmas,

Surnamed the Melodist.

₽ A.D. 760.

S. COSMAS of Jerusalem holds the second place amidst Greek Ecclesiastical poets. Left an orphan at an early age, he was adopted by the father of S. John Damascene; and the two foster-brothers were bound together by a friendship which lasted through life. They excited each other to Hymnology, and assisted, corrected, and polished each other's compositions. Cosmas, like his friend, became a monk of S. Sabbas : and against his will was consecrated Bishop of Maiuma, near Gaza, by John, Patriarch of Jerusalem ; the same who ordained S. John Damascene Priest. After administering his diocese with great holiness, he departed this life in a good old age, about 760, and is commemorated by the Eastern Church on the 14th of October.*

"Where perfect sweetness dwells, is Cosmas gone; "But his sweet lays to cheer the Church live on,"

says the stichos prefixed to his life.

[* In company with the holy Martyrs, Nazarius, Gev vasius, Protasius, and Celsius, Sidvanus, and Peter the Avselamite. The Russian Maisyatsosloff commemorates S. COSMAS on October 12th, in company with the holy Martyrs Tarachus, Probus, and Andronicus; the holy victorious Martyr Domnika or Domnina; and the holy Martin the Merciful, bishop of Tours.]

S. COSMAS.

His compositions are tolerably numerous, and he seems to have taken a pleasure in competing with S. John Damascene, as in the Nativity, the Epiphany, the Transfiguration, where the Canons of both are given. To Cosmas, a considerable part of the Octoechus is owing. The best of his compositions, besides those already mentioned, seem to be his Canons on S. Gregory Nazianzen,* and the Purification.† He is the most learned of the Greek Church poets : and his fondness for types, boldness in their application, and love of aggregating them, make him the Oriental Adam of S. Victor. It is owing partly to a compressed fulness of meaning, very uncommon in the Greek poets of the Church, partly to the unusual harshness and contraction of his phrases, that he is the hardest of ecclesiastical bards to comprehend.

[* January 25th. He is always styled by the Church books-the Theologian.]

[† February 2nd, called in Greek ' Hypapante, the Meeting, i.e. of our LORD by SS. Symeon and Anna. This was fixed 'for the second of February in the fifteenth year of Justinian, having been previously kept on the fourteenth. This is 'another argument for the antiquity of observing January 6th as the Nativity, the fourteenth of February occurring forty 'days from that time.'—Introduction to HISTORY OF THE HOLY EASTERN CHURCH, page 771.]

CANON FOR CHRISTMAS DAY.*

This is perhaps the finest, on the whole, of the Canons of Cosmas; and may fairly be preferred to the rival composition of S. John Damascene.

ODE I. Χριστός γεννάται δοξάσατε.

"CHRIST is born! Tell forth His fame!
"CHRIST from Heav'n! His love proclaim!
"CHRIST on earth! Exalt His Name!

"Break forth in glad thanksgiving, ev'ry nation!
"For He hath triumph'd gloriously!"

S. Stephen the Sabbaite.

A.D. 725 - - - A.D. 790.

S. STEPHEN, called the Sabbaite, from the monastery of S. Sabbas, was the nephew of S. John Damascene, who placed him in that house. He was then ten years of age: he passed fifty-nine years in that retreat; and was the earliest of the hymnographers who lived to see the final restoration of Icons. He has left but few poetical compositions. The two best are those on the Martyrs of the monastery of S. Sabbas—(March 20th)—on which a monk of that house would be likely to write con amore; and on the Circumcision. His style seems formed on that of S. Cosmas, rather than on that of his own uncle. He is not deficient in elegance and richness of typology, but exhibits something of sameness, and is occasionally guilty of very hard metaphors, as when he speaks of 'the circumcision of the tempest of our souls.' He is commemorated on the 13th of July.[•]

[The Hymn 'Art Thou Weary,' which followed in this place, is relegated to the APPENDIX, page 146, in accordance with Dr. Neale's wish expressed in his 'Preface to Third Edition.']

["But the principal festival is on October 28th, when his Synaxarion is read. S. STEPHEN is then commemorated in company with the holy Martyrs Terentius and Neonilla, and their children Nita, Sarbilus, Hierakos, Theodulus, Phoka or Phota, Vili, and Evniki; Terentius, Africanus, Maximus, Pompeius, and thirty-six others; our religious Father Firmilian, bishop of Cæsaræa, and Melchionus the wise; the holy Febronia, daughter of the Emperor Heraclius; the holy Sacred-martyr Kyriakus; and the appearance of the honorable Cross to the Emperor Constantine, and Helena his mother. The Russian Maisyatsosloff adds to the above—the holy Great-martyr Paraskevie, and the holy Arsenius, archibishop of Serbia.]

S. Tarasíus.

+ A.D. 806.

TARASIUS, raised by Constantine and Irene from the post of Secretary of State, at one step, though a layman, to the Patriarchate of Constantinople, (A.D. 784) was the chief mover in the restoration of Icons, and the Second Council of Nicæa.* Strongly opposing the divorce of Constantine from Maria, he refused to celebrate that Emperor's nuptials with Theodora. But when they had been performed, he was with some difficulty persuaded to pardon the priest who had officiated at them. On this, S. Plato, and the monks of the allinfluential Studium, forsook his communion; nor was the schism composed till the Patriarch yielded and retracted his pardon. He died February 25th, A.D. 806, on which day he is commemorated both by the East⁺ and West. His hymns are unimportant. The longest is the Canon on the Invention of S. John Baptist, May 25th. It is in no wise remarkable. Nor do I know any of his compositions which would be sufficiently interesting to the English reader, to make it worth versification here.

(84)

A.D. 759. - - - - A.D. 818.

S. THEOPHANES, who holds the third place among Greek Church-poets, was born in 759, his father being Governor of the Archipelago. Betrothed in childhood to a lady named Megalis, he persuaded her, on their wedding day, to embrace the monastic life. He retired to the monastery of Sigriana, in the early part of the reign of Constantine and Irene. From the fiftieth year of his age he was nearly bedridden; but his devotion to the cause of Icons marked him out as one of the earliest victims of Leo the Armenian, who, after imprisoning him for two years, banished him to Samothrace. On the third day after his arrival in that inhospitable region, worn out with sufferings and sickness, he departed this life : A.D. 818.* He is chiefly famous for his History, with which we have now nothing to do. With the one exception of S. Joseph of the Studium, Theophanes is the most prolific of Eastern Hymnographers; and in his writings we first see that which has been the bane and ruin of later Greek poetry, the composition of hymns, not from the spontaneous effusion of the heart, but because they were wanted to fill up a gap in the Office-book.

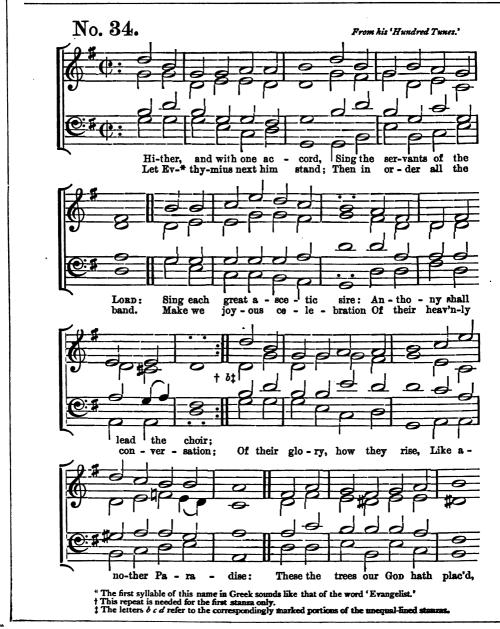

Because the great festivals and the chief Saints of the Church had their Canon and their Stichera, therefore, every martyr, every confessor, who happened to give his name to a day, must have his Canon and Stichera also, just for uniformity. How different the Latin use, where not even the Apostles have separate hymns received by the whole Church, but supply themselves from the Common ! Hence the deluge of worthless compositions that occur in the Menæa : hence tautology, repeated till it becomes almost sickening; the merest commonplace, again and again decked in the tawdry shreds of tragic language, and twenty or thirty times presenting the same thought in slightly varying terms.* Theophanes, indeed, must be distinguished from the host of inferior writers that about his time began to overwhelm the Church. Many of his subjects are of world-wide interest. The Eastern martyrs, whom he celebrates, are, for the most part, those who have won for themselves the greatest name in the annals of history. But still we find him thus honouring some, of whom all that can be said is, that they died for the Name of CHRIST. And though the poet brings more matter to his task than do others, many long stanzas, that keep pretty close to their subject, concerning a Saint of whom there is nothing especial to say, must become tedious.

^{[*}S. THEOPHANES is commemorated on March 12th, in company with our religious Father Gregory Dialogus, Pope of Rome ; and Phineas the just, who died in peace.]

ADAM'S COMPLAINT.

The reader can hardly fail to be struck with the beautiful idea in the third stanza, where the foliage of Paradise is asked to make intercession for Adam's recall. The last stanza, Milton, as an universal scholar, doubtless had in his eye, in Eve's lamentation.

[Ο Πλάστης μου Κύριος.]

'THE LORD my Maker, forming me of clay,

GREEK PROSOMOION.

(92)

S. Theodore of the Studium.

A.D. 826.

THEODORE of the Studium, by his sufferings and his influence, did more, perhaps, in the cause of Icons than any other man. His uncle, S. Plato, and himself, had been cruelly persecuted by Constantine, for refusing to communicate with him after his illicit marriage with Theodora, at a time when, as we have seen, the firmness of even the Patriarch Tarasius gave way. Raised subsequently to be Hegumen of the great abbey of the Studium, the first at Constantinople, and probably the most influential that ever existed in the world, Theodore exhibited more doubtful conduct in the schism which regarded the readmission to communion of Joseph, the priest who had given the nuptial benediction to Constantine : but he suffered imprisonment on this account with the greatest firmness. When the Iconoclastic persecution again broke out under Leo the Armenian, Theodore was one of the first sufferers: he was exiled, imprisoned, scourged, and left for dead. Under Michael Curopalata he enjoyed greater liberty; but he died in banishment, Nov. 11th, A.D. 826.* His Hymns are, in my judgment, superior to those of S. Theophanes, -and nearly, if not quite, equal to the works of S. Cosmas. In those (comparatively few) which he has left for the Festivals of Saints, he does not appear to advantage: it is in his Lent Canons, in the Triodion, that his great excellency lies. The contrast there presented between the rigid, unbending, unyielding character of the man in his outward history, and the fervent gush of penitence and love which his inward life, as revealed by these compositions, manifests, is very striking ;---it forms a remarkable parallel to the characters of S. Gregory VII., Innocent III., and other holy men of the Western Church, whom the world, judging from a superficial view of their characters, has branded with unbending haughtiness, and the merest formality in religion, while their most secret writings show them to have clinging to the Cross in an ecstacy of love and sorrow.

[*S. THEODORE is commemorated on November 11th, in company with the holy Great-martyr Mina; and the holy Martyrs Victor, Vicentius, and Stephanida.]

CANON FOR APOCREOS.

[SEXAGESIMA.]

APOCREOS is our Sexagesima, and is so called, because meat is not eaten beyond it. The Synaxarion (which will explain the following poem) begins thus:

'ON THIS DAY, WE COMMEMORATE THE SECOND AND IMPARTIAL COMING 'OF OUR LORD JESUS CHRIST.

'Stichos. When He, the Judge of all things, sits to doom, 'Oh grant that I may hear his joyful Come !

'This commemoration the most Divine Fathers set after the two parables ' (i.e., the Gospels of the two preceding Sundays, The Pharisee and Publican, and The Prodigal Son), 'lest any one, learning from them the mercy of GOD, 'should live carelessly, and say, "GOD is merciful, and whenever I wish to "relinquish sin, it will be in my power to accomplish my purpose." They 'therefore here commemorated that fearful day, that, by the consideration of 'death, and the expectation of the dreadful things that shall hereafter be, they 'might terrify men of negligent life, and bring them back again to virtue, and 'might teach them not simply to put confidence in GOD'S mercy, considered 'by itself, but to remember also that the Judge is just, and will render to every 'man according to his works.' As the Eastern Church has no such season as Advent, this commemoration becomes more peculiarly appropriate.

The Canon that follows is unfortunate in provoking a comparison with the unapproachable majesty of the Dies Iræ. Yet during the four hundred years by which it anticipated that sequence, it was undoubtedly the grandest Judgment-hymn of the Church. Its faults are those of most of the class: it eddies round and round the subject, without making way,—its different portions have no very close connection with each other,—and its length is accompanied by considerable tautology. Yet, in spite of these defects, it is impossible to deny that the great common-places of Death and Judgment are very nobly set forth in this poem. On account of its length, I give the first three and last Odes only.

ODE I.

Την ημέραν την φρικτήν.

I

THAT fearful Day, that Day of speechless dread, When Thou shalt come to judge the quick and dead— I shudder to foresee, O GOD ! what then shall be !

When Thou shalt come, angelic legions round, With thousand thousands, and with trumpet sound, CHRIST, grant me in the air With saints to meet Thee there !

Weep, O my soul, ere that great hour and day, When GOD shall shine in manifest array, Thy sin, that thou may'st be In that strict judgment free!

The terror !—hell-fire fierce and unsuffic'd : The bitter worm : the gnashing teeth :—O CHRIST, Forgive, remit, protect ; And set me with th' elect !

That I may hear the blessed voice that calls The righteous to the joy of heav'nly halls : And, King of Heav'n, may reach The realm that passeth speech !

Enter Thou not in judgment with each deed, Nor each intent and thought in strictness read : Forgive, and save me then, O Thou That lovest men !

Thee, One in Three blest Persons! LORD o'er all! Essence of Essence, Power of Power, we call! Save us, O FATHER, SON, And SPIRIT, ever One!

* From the Stichera at Vespers on the commemoration of SS. Cosmas and Damian, November 1st.

ODE III.

Ο Κύριος έρχεται.

I

GOD comes ;—and who shall stand before His fear ? Who bide His Presence when He draweth near ? My soul, my soul, prepare To kneel before Him there !

Haste,—weep,—be reconcil'd to Him before The fearful judgment knocketh at the door : Where, in the Judge's eyes, All, bare and naked, lies.

Have mercy, LORD, have mercy, LORD, I cry, When with Thine angels Thou appear'st on high : And each shall doom inherit,* According to his merit.*†

How can I bear Thy fearful anger, LORD ? I, that so often have[†] transgress'd Thy word ?

But put my sins away, And spare me in that day !

O miserable soul, return, lament,

Ere earthly converse end, and life be spent :

Ere, time for sorrow o'er,

The Bridegroom close the door !

Yea, I have sinn'd, as no man sinn'd beside : With more than human guilt my soul is dy'd : But spare, and save me here,

Before that day appear !

Three Persons in One Essence uncreate, On Whom, both Three and One, our praises wait, Give everlasting light, To them that sing Thy might !

* From the Stichera at Vespers on the commemoration of SS. Cosmas and Damian, November ist.

S. THEODORE OF THE STUDIUM.

ODE IV.

'Εφέστηκεν ή ήμέρα.

THE Day is near, the Judgment is at hand, Awake, my soul, awake, and ready stand! Where chiefs shall go with them that fill'd the throne,

I

Where rich and poor the same tribunal own And ev'ry thought and deed Shall find its righteous meed.

There with the sheep the shepherd of the fold Shall stand together; there the young and old; Master and slave one doom shall undergo: Widow and maiden one tribunal know.

> Oh woe, oh woe, to them. Whom lawless lives condemn !

That Judgment-seat, impartial in decree, Accepts no bribe, admits no subtilty : No orator persuasion may exert, No perjur'd witness wrong to right convert ; But all things, hid in night, Shall then be dragg'd to light.

Let me not enter in the land of woe, Let me not realms of outer darkness know ! Nor from the wedding-feast reject Thou me, For my soil'd vest of immortality ; Bound hand and foot, and cast In anguish that shall last ! 5

When Thou, the nations rang'd on either side, The righteous from the sinners shalt divide, Then give me to be found amongst Thy sheep, Then from the goats Thy trembling servant keep : That I may hear the voice That bids Thy Saints rejoice !

When righteous inquisition shall be made, And the books open'd, and the thrones array'd, My soul, what plea to shield thee canst thou know, Who hast no fruit of righteousness to show,

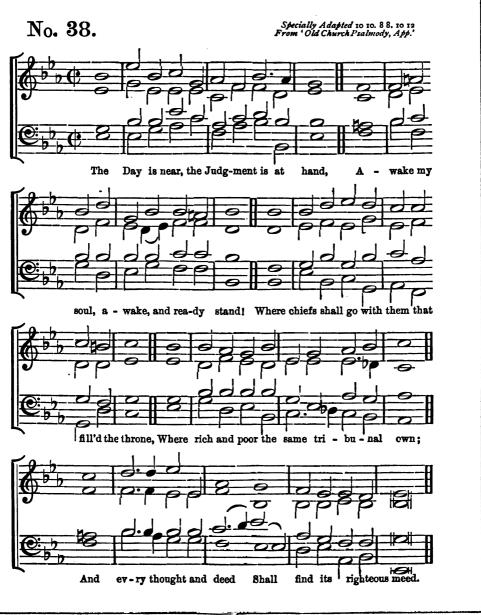

> No holy deeds to bring To CHRIST the LORD and King?

I hear the rich man's wail and bitter cry, Out of the torments of eternity; I know, beholding that devouring flame, My guilt and condemnation are the same; And spare me, LORD, I say, In the great Judgment Day!

The WORD and SPIRIT, with the FATHER ONE, One Light and emanation of One Sun, The WORD by generation, we adore, The SPIRIT by procession, evermore; And with creation raise The thankful hymn of praise.

ODE IX*.

'Ως Κύριος ἔρχεται.

THE LORD draws nigh, the righteous Throne's Assessor, The just to save, to punish the transgressor : Weep we, and mourn, and pray, Regardful of that day; When all the secrets of all hearts shall be Lit with the blaze of full eternity. Clouds and thick darkness o'er the Mount assembling, Moses beheld th' Eternal's glory, trembling : And yet he might but see GOD'S feebler Majesty. And I-I needs must view His fullest Face: O spare me, LORD! O take me to Thy grace! [Daniel]+ of old beheld, in speechless terror, The session of the Judge—the doom of error: And what have I to plead For mercy in my need? Nothing save this: O grant me yet to be, Ere that day come, renew'd and true to Thee ! Here, fires of deep damnation roar and glitter: The worm is deathless, and the cup is bitter: There, day that hath no morrow, And joy that hath no sorrow: And who so blest that he shall fly th' abyss, Rais'd up to GOD'S Right Hand, and speechless bliss ! My soul with many an[‡] act of sin is wounded : With mortal weakness is my frame surrounded : My life is well nigh o'er : The Judge is at the door : How wilt thou, miserable spirit, fare, What time He sends His summons through the air? S. THEODORE OF THE STUDIUM.

[CANON FOR] ORTHODOXY SUNDAY. [FIRST SUNDAY IN LENT.]

The first Sunday in Lent is kept in memory : primarily, of the final triumph of the Church over the Iconoclasts in 842 : and, incidentally, of her victory over all other heresies. It has a kind of commination appropriate to itself alone. The following Canon is ascribed to S. Theodore of the Studium, though Baronius has thought that it cannot be his, because it implies that peace was restored to the Church, whereas that hymnographer died while the persecution still continued. Very possibly, however, it was written on the temporary victory of the Church, which did occur in the time of S. Theodore;^{*} and then, in 842, may have been lengthened and adapted to the then state of things, perhaps by Naucratius. the favourite disciple of S. Theodore. It is, perhaps, the most spirited of all the Canons, though many of its expressions savour too much of bitterness and personal feeling to be well defended, and the reader must constantly bear in mind that the poet feels the cause, not so much of Icons, as of the Incarnation itself, to be at stake. I have only given about one-third of the poem. The stanzas are these: Ode I. Tropar. 1, 2; III. 6; IV. 1, 3; V. 1; IX. 2, 3, 4, 5.†

Χαριστήριον ώδήν.

I

A SONG, a song of gladness! A song of thanks and praise! The horn of our salvation Hath GOD vouchsaf'd to raise! A monarch true and faithful, And glorious in her might, To champion CHRIST'S own quarrel, And Orthodoxy's right!

Now manifest is glory; Now grace and virtue shine: Now joys the Church, regaining Her ornaments divine: And girds them on in gladness, As fits a festal day,‡ After long months of struggle, Long years of disarray.

Now cries the blood for vengeance, By persecutors pour'd, Of them that died defending The likeness of the LORD : The likeness, as a mortal That He vouchsaf'd to take, Long years ago, in Bethl'hem, Incarnate for our sake.

Awake, O Church, and triumph ! Exult, each realm and land ! And open let the houses, Th' ascetic houses stand ! And let the holy virgins With joy and song take in Their relics and their Icons Who died this day to win !

[* Probably this alludes to the mild reign of Michael II. (Curopalata), who, as Dr. Neale states on page 92, allowed S. THEODORE 'greater liberty.' Of Michael it has been said, that he 'attempted to hold a middle course on this controversy,' but 'he was called a chameleon to signify that his sentiments were of a variable nature.'—Mendham, page lxviii.] !

[† Odes IV. Tropar. 2, and V. 3, 4, 5, mentioned in previous Editions, if translated were not published.] [Reading in First Edition :-- 1 Of meet and fair array.]

Assemble ye together So joyous and so bold, Th' ascetic troops, and pen them Once more within the fold ! If strength again he gather, Again the foe shall fall : If counsel he shall counsel, Our GOD shall scatter all.*

The LORD, the LORD hath triumph'd : Let all the world rejoice ! Hush'd is the turmoil, silent His servants' tearful voice : And the One Faith, the True Faith, Goes forth from East to West, Enfolding, in its beauty, The earth as with a vest.

They rise, the sleepless watchmen Upon the Church's wall; With yearning supplication On GOD the LORD they call: And He, though long time silent, Bow'd down a gracious ear, His people's earnest crying And long complaint to hear.

8

Sing, sing for joy, each desert ! Exult, each realm of earth ! Ye mountains, drop down sweetness ! Ye hillocks, leap for mirth ! For CHRIST the WORD, bestowing His blessed peace on men, In faith's most holy union Hath knit His Church again.

The GOD of vengeance rises : And CHRIST attacks the foe, And makes His servants mighty The wicked† to o'erthrow : And now Thy condescension In boldness may we hymn, And now in peace and safety Thy sacred Image limn.

10

O LORD of loving kindness, How wondrous are Thy ways! What tongue of man suffices Thy gentleness to praise? Because of Thy dear Image Men dar'd Thy Saints to kill, Yet didst Thou not consume them, But bear'st ‡ their insults still.

II

Thou Who hast fix'd unshaken Thy Church's mighty frame, So that hell-gates shall never Prevail against the same ;— Bestow upon Thy people Thy peace, that we may bring One voice, one hymn, one spirit, To glorify our King !

* This is from the magnificent Emmanuel Ode sung at Great Compline on high festivals.—'Having become mighty, ye 'have been subdued. For GoD is with us. And if ye shall again become mighty, again ye shall be subdued. For GOD is 'with us. And if ye shall devise any device, the LORD shall scatter it, For GoD is with us.' [J. M. N.]

S. Methodius H.

- A.D. 846.

S. METHODIUS I., a native of Syracuse, embraced the monastic life at Constantinople. Sent as legate from Pope Paschal to Michael the Stammerer, he was imprisoned by that prince in a close cell, and there passed nine years, on account of his resolute defence of Icons. Having been scourged for the same eause, by the Emperor Theophilus, he made his escape from prison; and when peace was restored to the Church was raised to the throne of Constantinople. His first care was to assemble a Synod* for the restoration of Icons; and it is, properly speaking, that Synod which the Greeks celebrate on Orthodoxy Sunday. With this Council the Iconoclast troubles ceased. S. Methodius died November 4th, 846.⁺ His compositions are very few, and are chiefly confined to Idiomela.

Dost thou fear that strictest trial? Tremblest thou at CHRIST'S denial? Never rest without it,— Clasp thine hands about it,— That dear Cross!

[THIRD EPOCH.

A.D. 820 - - - - A.D. 1400.]

THE third period of Greek Hymnology opens with its most voluminous writer,

S. Joseph of the Studium.

[+ A.D. 883.]

A SICILIAN by birth, he left his native country on its occupation by the Mahometans in 830, and went to Thessalonica, where he embraced the monastic life. Thence he removed to Constantinople, but, in the second Iconoclastic persecution, he seems to have felt no vocation for confessorship, and went to Rome. Taken by pirates, he was for some years a slave in Crete, where he converted many to the Faith; and having obtained his liberty, and returned to the Imperial City, he stood high in the favour, first of S. Ignatius, then of Photius, whom he accompanied into exile. On the death of that great man he was recalled, and gave himself up entirely to Hymnology. A legend, connected with his death, is related of him. A citizen of Constantinople betook himself to the church of S. Theodore in the hope of obtaining some benefit from the intercessions of that martyr. He waited three days in vain : then, just as he was about to leave the Church in despair, S. Theodore appeared. 'I,' said the vision, 'and the other Saints, whom the poet Joseph ' has celebrated in his Canons, have been attending his soul to Paradise : ' hence my absence from my church.' The Eastern Communion celebrates him on the 3rd of April.* But of the innumerable compositions of this most laborious writer, it would be impossible to find many which, to Western taste, give the least sanction to the position which he holds in the East. The insufferable tediousness consequent on the necessity of filling eight Odes with the praises of a Saint of whom nothing, beyond the fact of his martyrdom, is known, and doing this sixty or seventy different times,-the verbiage, the bombast, the trappings with which Scriptural simplicity is elevated to the taste of a corrupt Court, are each and all scarcely to be paralleled.[†] He is by far the most prolific of the hymn-writers.

[* In company with our religious Fathers Niketa and Illyrins, confessors : and the holy Martyrs Elpidephorus, Dins, Bythonius, and Galykus. The Russian Maisyatsoloff commemorates S. JOSEPH on April 4th, in company with the holy Martyrs Fervoutha, her sister, and their servants : and our religious Fathers Zosima of Egypt, and George of Malaius.]

[† The respect felt for his author could alone justify the retention of this harsh criticism, which the editor is able neither to accept conscientiously, nor to refute satisfactorily. The same may be said of other disparaging remarks on pages making reference to the present Note.]

SUNDAY OF THE PRODIGAL SON. [CANON FOR] SEPTUAGESIMA.

The Sunday before Septuagesima, and Septuagesima itself are, respectively, in the Greek Church, the Sunday of the Pharisee and Publican,—and the Sunday of the Prodigal Son,—those parables forming the Gospel for the day, and serving for the key-note to the offices. The following Troparia are from the Canon at Lauds on Septuagesima. (Ode VI. [Trop. 1, 2, 3.] and Ode IX. Trop. 2, 3.)

Βυθός άμαρτημάτων.

TH' abyss of many a* former sin Encloses me, and bars me in : Like billows my transgressions roll : Be Thou the Pilot of my soul; And to Salvation's harbour bring, Thou Saviour and Thou glorious King !

My Father's heritage abus'd, Wasted by lust, by sin misus'd ; To shame and want and misery brought, The slave to many a^{*} fruitless thought, I cry to Thee, Who lovest men, O pity and receive again !

In hunger now,—no more possess'd Of that my portion bright and blest, The exile and the alien see Who yet would fain return to Thee! And save me LORD, who seek to raise To Thy dear love the hymn of praise!

With that blest thief my prayer I make, Remember for Thy mercy's sake ! With that poor publican I cry, Be merciful, O GOD most High! With that lost Prodigal I fain Back to my home would turn again!

Mourn, mourn, my soul, with earnest care, And raise to CHRIST the contrite prayer :---

'O Thou, Who freely wast made poor,

' My sorrows and my sins to cure,

'Me, poor of all good works, embrace,

'Enriching with Thy boundless grace !'

LET our Choir new anthems raise : Wake the morn with gladness ; GOD Himself to joy and praise Turns the Martyrs' sadness : This the day that won their crown, Open'd Heav'n's bright portal ; As they laid the mortal down, And put on th' immortal.

Never flinch'd they from the flame, From the torture, never; Vain the foeman's sharpest aim, Satan's best endeavour: For by faith they saw the Land Deck'd in all its glory, Where triumphant now they stand With the victor's story. 3

Faith they had that knew not shame, Love that could not languish :
And eternal Hope o'ercame Momentary anguish.
He Who trod the self-same road, Death and Hell defeated ;
Wherefore these their passions show'd Calvary repeated.

Up and follow, Christian men ! Press through toil and sorrow ! Spurn the night of fear, and then,— Oh the glorious morrow ! Who will venture on the strife ? Who will first begin it ? Who will seize the Land of Life ? Warriors, up and win it ?

S. JOSEPH OF THE STUDIUM.

CANON FOR ASCENSION DAY.

This is the crowning glory of the poet Joseph; he has here with a happy boldness entered into the lists with S. John Damascene, to whom, on this one occasion, he must be pronounced superior. I have preserved the alphabetical arrangement, and 'Joseph's Ode' at the end. All the Catavasize are in Iambics.

ODE I.

'Ανέστης τριήμερος.

A FTER three days Thou didst rise Visible to mortal eyes : First th' Eleven worshipp'd Thee, Then the rest in Galilee : Then a cloud in glory bore Thee to Thine own native shore.

BOLDLY David pour'd the strain : 'GOD ascends to heaven again :' With the trumpet's pealing note Alleluias round Him float ; As He now, by hard-won right, Seeks the Fount of purest Light !

CRIME on crime, and grief on grief, Left the world without relief: Now that aged, languid race, GOD hath quicken'd by His grace: As Thy going up we see, Glory to Thy Glory be!

Catavasia.*

θέιφ καλυφθείς.

DARKNESS and awe, when Sinai's top he trod, Taught him of falt'ring tongue the Law of GoD: The mist was scatter'd from his spirit's eye, He prais'd and hymn'd the Maker of the sky, When He That is, and was, and shall be, passed by.

[* For Music of the Catavasia, see page 139. These Catavasia are common to the two Canons (of which the above is the second) said together on Ascension Day, and are the Hirmoi of the second Canon for Pentecost, written by the Lord John of Arklas (S. JOHN DAMASCENE). Dr. Neale has omitted S. JOSEPH's acrostical Theotokia to make place for them.]

REV. CANON HAVERGAL, A. M.

ODE III.

'Επάρατε πύλας.

I

'EXALT, exalt, the Heav'nly Gates, 'Ye chiefs of mighty name! 'The LORD and King of all-things waits, 'Enrob'd in earthly frame.' So to the higher seats they cry, The humbler legions of the sky.

FOR Adam's sake, by serpent-guile* Distress'd, deceiv'd, o'erthrown, Thou left'st Thy native Home awhile, Thou left'st the FATHER'S Throne : Now he is deck'd afresh with grace, Thou seek'st once more the Heav'nly place.

GLAD festal keeps the earth to-day, Glad festal Heav'n is keeping : † Th' Ascension-pomp, in bright array, Goes proudly sky-ward sweeping : † The LORD the mighty deed hath done, And join'd the sever'd into one.

Catavasia.

*Εἰρηξε γαστρός.

HER fetters of the barren womb it rent, It crush'd the malice of the insolent, The cry of her—the prophetess, who brought A contrite spirit, and a humble thought To Him, Who bids His Throne by earnest prayer be sought.

[Reading in First Edition :- * For Adam, by the Serpent's guile.] [† Extra syllable, requiring a note to be divided thus :- keep - ing ; swe

ODE IV.

Ίησοῦς ὁ ζωοδότης.

JESUS, LORD of Life Eternal, Taking those He lov'd the best, Stood upon the Mount of Olives, And His Own the last time blest : Then, though He had never left it, Sought again His FATHER'S breast. 2

Knit is now our flesh to Godhead, Knit in everlasting bands : Call the world to highest festal :

Floods and oceans, clap your hands : Angels, raise the song of triumph ! Make response, ye distant lands !*

L OOSING Death with all its terrors Thou ascended'st up on high; And to mortals, now Immortal, Gavest immortality:

As Thine own Disciples saw Thee Mounting victor to the sky !

Catavasia.

[Αναξ ανάκτων.]

MONARCH of monarchs, Sole [from] + Sole, to Thee, WORD, Glorious in Thy FATHER'S Majesty, And sending Thy co-equal SPIRIT bright To teach, to comfort, and to guide aright, Thine own Apostles sang : All glory to Thy might!

[* In the First Edition this stanza stood thus :--

Know, O world, this highest festal: Floods and oceans, clap your hands 1 Angels, raise the song of triumph 1 Make response, ye distant lands 1 For our flesh is knit to Godhead, Knit in everlasting bands !]

[† This, with the exception of a word at page 100, is the only modification of Dr. Neale's text which the editor has permitted himself to make. The previous Editions have 'of ' in both clauses of the line—' Monarch of monarch, Sole of Sole,' although the latter has, in the original, the preposition ex, which implies derivation rather than possession. The following is the version used in The Office for the Lord's Day, page 222, in which the 'of' and 'from' are properly distinguished, as in the modified text above.— "O KING of Kings, Sole from the Only One, Who cometh from the "Uncaused SIRE: Thou, of a certainty, didst, as Benefactor, send on the Apostles Thine Equal-Strength'd SFIRT, "as they sang: Glory to Thy Might, O LORD."]

ODE V.

Νεκρώσας τόν θάνατον.

I

NOW that Death by death hath found his[•] ending, Thou dost call to Thee Thy lov'd Elev'n ; And from holy Olivet ascending

On a cloud art carried up to Heav'n.

O^H that wondrous Birth! that wondrous Rising! That more wondrous mounting to the sky! So Elias, earthly things despising,

In a fiery chariot went on high.

PARTED from Him, still they watch'd His going : 'Why stand gazing thus ?' the Angel said : 'This same JESUS, all His glory showing, 'Shall return to judge the quick and dead.'

Catavasia.

[Λυτήριον κάθαρσιν.]

QUICKEN'D and cleans'd, receive remission new In the descending SPIRIT'S fiery dew, Sons of the Church, and light-form'd generation ! For lo ! the law goes forth from Sion's nation, The cloven tongues of flame, the PARACLETE'S salvation !

[Reading in First Edition :- * Now that Death by death hath found its.]

* Dominant Major variation of No. 24, page 61.

ODE VI.

'Ρανάτωσαν ήμιν άνωθεν.

I

RAIN down, ye Heav'ns, eternal bliss ! The Cherub-cloud to-day Bears JESUS where His FATHER is, Along the starry way !

SUNDER'D of old were Heaven and Earth : But Thou, Incarnate King ! Hast made them one by that Thy Birth, And this Thy triumphing.

THY victor-raiment, wherefore red ?
What means the marks of pain
That print Thy form?'—the Angels said, Th' ascending Monarch's train.

Catavasia.

['Ιλασμός ήμιν Χριστέ.]

V ERY Oblation by the scourges torn! Nail'd to the bitter Cross, O Virgin-born! As once the Prophet from the monster's maw, So now Thy love, accomplishing the Law, Adam from utter death to perfect Life would draw.

OICOS.*

Τὰ της γης έπι της γης.

I

VANITIES earthly in earth⁺ will we lay, Ashes with ashes, the dust with the clay : Lift up the heart, and the eye, and the love, Lift up thyself, to the regions above : Since the Immortal hath enter'd of late, Mortals may pass at the Heavenly gate.

Stand we on Olivet: mark Him ascend, Whose is the glory and might without end; There, with His own ones, the Giver of Good Blessing them once more, a little while stood. 'Nothing can part us,—nor distance, nor foes; 'Lo! I am for you, and who can oppose?'

[* The Oicos is not included in the acrostical arrangement.] [Reading in First Edition :- † Things of the earth in the earth.]

ODE VII.

Φωτεινή Σε, φως.

I

WAFTING Him up on high, The glorious cloud receives The LORD of Immortality, And earth the Victor leaves : The Heavenly People raise the strain, Th' Apostles pour the hymn again :— 'GOD of our Fathers, Thou art blest!'

Y^E faithful, tell your joys! All hearts with gladness bound ! GOD is gone up with a* merry noise,— The LORD with the* trumpet's sound ! To Him we cry, by woes once tried, Now glorious at the FATHER'S side,— 'GOD of our Fathers, Thou art blest!'

ZEALOUS[†] for GOD of yore, With zeal still Moses burns :---'Come, Heav'nly Spirits, and adore

'The Victor who returns ;

'Rise, Angel legions, rise and sing

'The ancient hymn to greet the King,-

"GOD of our Fathers, Thou art blest!"

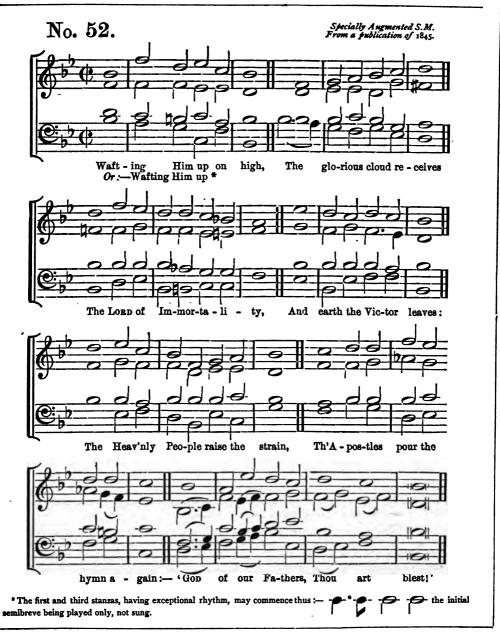

Catavasia.

[Σύμφωνον έθρόησεν.]

JOIN'D with the trumpet-peal, the din and shout, Cornet, flute, sackbut, dulcimer rang out, And bade adore the golden deity : The SPIRIT'S gentler voice gives praise to Thee, O co-eternal One—O consubstantial Three!

[* Extra syllable, requiring a note to be divided thus :-with a; with the.]

[+Dr. Neale has closed the acrostical Alphabet one stanza earlier than does the Greek text. See note" on page 136.]

ODE VIII. *

Hirmos. "HIM, OF THE FATHER." +

Τόν έν δυσί ταις ούσίαις.

OF twofold natures, CHRIST, the Giver Of immortality and love, Ascendeth to the FATHER'S glory, Ascendeth to the Throne above : Wherefore He, this glorious morn, Be by all ador'd : Thou That liftest up our horn, Holy art Thou, LORD ! ‡

SLAVES are set free, and captives ransom'd: The Nature that He made at first He now presenteth to the FATHER, The chains of her damnation burst : This the cause that He was born, Adam's race restor'd : Thou That liftest up our horn, Holy art Thou, LORD ! 1 3

EMPTIED awhile of all His brightness, He enter'd thus the glorious fight; O'erthrew the foe, mankind exalted Far above ev'ry Pow'r and Might: Therefore bare He pains and scorn, Calv'ry's heart-blood pour'd :--Thou That liftest up our horn, Holy art Thou, LORD ! ‡

Catavasìa.

[Λύει τὰ δεσμά.] PRAISING the LORD they stood, the Martyr Three,

Untouch'd amidst the fire, and wholly free : With them associate, let the world's wide frame To Him Whose healing dew restrain'd the flame, Send up the hymn of praise, and magnify His Name !

[* Dr. Neale has selected this Ode by mistake from the first Canon (see page 118), that by John the Monk (S. JOHN DAMASCENE). There is nothing on this page from our author, S. JOSEPH.]

† I have specified this Hirmos, because the reader can see it by turning back to page 66. [J.M.N. There is here a double error. Not only does this Hirmos follow the fortune of its Ode, which, as just mentioned, was selected by mistake; but it is also not identical with the 1st Troparion of Ode III. of the Christmas Canon at page 66. It commences with Tor $\delta\kappa$ Inatpos instead of $T\hat{\psi} \pi\rho \delta \tau \hat{\omega} \nu$ alian or efference to the 'lifting up our horn.']

[The last two lines of each stanza, which do not exist in the Greek, are added by Dr. Neale, doubtless in consequence of his mistaken estimate of the Hirmos, the refrain of which he thought he was copying.]

ODE IX.

'Ω των δωρεών.

I

HOLY Gift, surpassing comprehension! Wondrous myst'ry of each fiery tongue! CHRIST made good His Promise in Ascension: O'er the Twelve the cloven flames have hung!

SPAKE the LORD, or ere He left th' Eleven : 'Here in Salem wait the Gift I send : 'Till the PARACLETE come down from Heaven : 'Everlasting Guide and Guard and Friend.'

O^H that shame, now ended in that glory ! Pain untold,* now lost in joy unknown ! Tell it out with praise, the whole glad story, Human nature at the FATHER'S Throne !

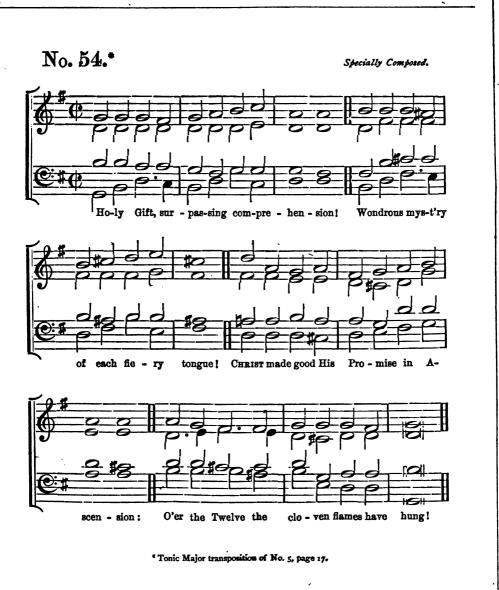

Catavasia. +

[Oi ἀρχηγοὶ τῶν ἀΑγγέλων.] DECLARE, ye Angel Bands that dwell on high, How saw ye Him, the Victor, drawing nigh? What strange new visions burst upon your sight? One in the form of Man, That claims by right The very throne of GOD, the unapproached Light!

[Reading in First Edition :- * Oh that shame, now ended in His glory ! Oh that pain.]

[† This is the second Stickeron in the AINOI, external to the Canon. The omitted Catavasia is as follows:-"Be glad, "O Queen, in Mother-maiden fame : for every well-turned fluent mouth, pronouncing, is weak to sing thee worthily ; but "every mind is dizzied at the thought of thine Offspring : wherefore in harmony we Glorify thee." See Office for the Lord's Day, page 226. The tune of this omitted Catavasia is adopted for the whole group at pages 138-9 of the present work.]

²

'Ετέχθης, ώς αὐτὸς ἠθέλησας.]

I

ETERNAL! After Thine own will Thou born in time would'st be: After the self-same counsel still Was Thine Epiphany:

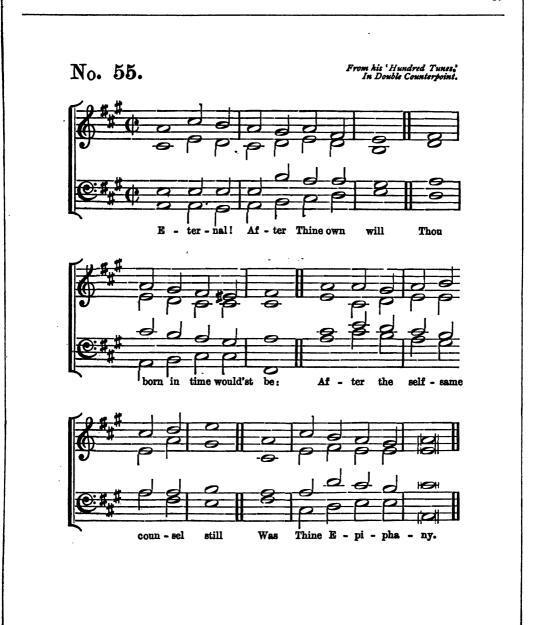

Thou in our flesh didst yield Thy breath, Immortal GOD, for man : Thou by Thy death didst conquer Death, Through Thine Almighty plan :

Thou, rising Victor to the sky, Fill'st Heav'n and earth above : And send'st the Promise from on high, The SPIRIT of Thy love !

[* Entitled in former editions—Exaposteilarion. The Heothinon occurs later in the service than the Exaposteilarion, but both Hymns are external to the Canon. Dr. Neale can have resorted to the device of including it within its limits only because of the exigency of the English words 'Joseph's Ode,' which exceed the Greek by two letters. For the same reason he made the Alphabet consist of twenty-three letters instead of, as in Greek, twenty-four.]

Theoctistus of the Studium.

circ. A.D. 890.

HE is said to have been the friend of S. Joseph; but is only known to us by the 'Suppliant Canon to JESUS,' to be found at the end of the Paracletike. The following is a Cento formed from it.

[SUPPLIANT CANON TO OUR LORD JESUS CHRIST.]

'Ιησοῦ γλυκύτατε.

I

JESU, Name all names above, JESU, best and dearest, JESU, Fount of perfect love, Holiest, tend'rest, nearest; JESU, Source of grace completest, JESU purest, JESU sweetest, JESU, Well of power Divine, Make me, keep me, seal me Thine !

JESU, open me the gate That of old He enter'd, Who, in that most lost estate, Wholly on Thee ventur'd ; Thou,WhoseWoundsare ever pleading, And Thy Passion interceding, From my mis'ry let me rise To a Home in Paradise !

Thou didst call the Prodigal : Thou didst pardon Mary : Thou Whose words can never fall, Love can never vary : LORD, to heal my lost condition, Give—for Thou canst give—contrition; Thou canst pardon all mine ill If Thou wilt : O say, 'I will!' 4

Woe, that I have turn'd aside After fleshly pleasure ! Woe, that I have never tried For the Heav'nly Treasure ! Treasure, safe in Home supernal ; Incorruptible, eternal ! Treasure no less price hath won Than the passion of The SON !

JESU, crown'd with Thorns for me, Scourg'd for my transgression, Witnessing, through agony, That Thy good confession ! JESU, clad in purple raiment, For my evils making payment ; Let not all Thy woe and pain, Let not Calv'ry, be in vain !

б

When I reach Death's bitter sea, And its waves roll higher, Help the more forsaking me As the storm draws nigher : JESU, leave me not to languish, Helpless, hopeless, full of anguish ! Tell me,— 'Verily I say, 'Thou shalt be with Me to-day !'

Metrophanes of Smyrna.

+ circ. A.D. 910.

HE was Bishop of that See towards the close of the ninth century, and is principally famous for his Canons in honour of the Blessed TRINITY,—eight in number, one to each Tone. They are sung at Matins* on Sundays : and if the writer has not always been able to fuse his learning and othodoxy into poetry, nor yet to escape the tautology of his brother bards, these compositions are stately, and striking. Metrophanes was a vigorous supporter of S. Ignatius; and the partisan of Rome in her contest with Photius.

It would be impossible, without wearying the reader, to translate the whole of one of the Triadic Canons; but a Cento from one of them may not be unacceptable.

FROM THE

CANON FOR [A] SUNDAY OF THE SECOND TONE.

Τριφεγγής Μονάς θεαρχική.

I

O UNITY of Threefold Light, Send out Thy loveliest ray, And scatter our transgressions' night, And turn it into day; Make us those temples pure and fair, Thy glory loveth well, The spotless tabernacles, where Thou may'st vouchsafe to dwell! 2

The glorious hosts of peerless might That ever see Thy Face,

Thou mak'st the mirrors of Thy Light, The vessels of Thy grace :

Thou, when their wond'rous strain they weave,

Hast pleasure in the lay:

Deign thus our praises to receive, Albeit from lips of clay !

And yet Thyself they cannot know, Nor pierce the veil of light
That hides Thee from the Thrones below, As in profoundest night :
How then can mortal accents frame Due tribute to the‡ King ?
Thou, only, while we praise Thy Name, Forgive us as we sing !

[* Styled in Greek: 'Mesonyktikon (Midnight) of the LORD's Day.']

t Viz:--the 3rd Troparion of the first Ode, and the 2nd of the third Ode. The third stanza cannot be traced. Sundays of the Second Tone may be found by adding the number 1 to the Sundays alluded to in note* on page 4.] [Reading in First Edition :-- ‡ Due tribute to their.]

(144)

Beyond Metrophanes, it will not be necessary to carry our translations. The following names may, however, be mentioned.

Euthymius.

+ A.D. 910.

EUTHYMIUS, usually known as Syngelus, (the same as Syncellus, the confidential Deacon^{*} of the Patriarch of Constantinople,) who died about 910, is the author of a Penitential Canon to S. Mary, which is highly esteemed in the East. It would scarcely, however, be possible to make even a Cento from it which would be acceptable to the English reader.

Leo bi.

+ A.D. 917.

OUR next name is that of a Royal Poet, Leo VI., the Philosopher, who reigned from 885 to 917, and left behind him the Idiomela, † or detached stanzas, on the Resurrection, sung at Lauds. They are better than might have been expected from an imperial author, and the troubler of the Eastern Church by a fourth marriage.

The same thing may be said of the Exapost eilaria of his son, Constantine Porphyrogenitus, whose life lasted till 959.

John Mauropus.

+ A.D. 1060.

JOHN MAUROPUS, Metropolitan of Euchaita, sometimes called the last of the Greek Fathers, left a number of hymns, printed at Eton in 1610; and if not boasting much poetical fire, at least graced with a gentle and Isocratean eloquence. As they have not been employed by the Church, they claim no further notice here.

With this Metropolitan, Greek Hymnology well-nigh ceased : at least the only other name that need be mentioned is that of

Philotheus,

PATRIARCH of Constantinople, who died in 1376. This man, the warm supporter of the dogma of the Uncreat.d Light, was the composer of several stanzas for Orthodoxy Sunday, and the Canon for July 13th, on the Holy Fathers [of the first Six (Ecumenical Synods]: both in the very worst taste.

^{[*} The Protosyncellus of the Œcumenical Patriarch is now usually a Priest.]

^{[+} Dr. Neale most probably means the Heothina of the Resurrection. See Office for the Lord's Day, pp. 240-242.]

THE PILGRIMS OF JESUS.*

I

O HAPPY band of pilgrims, If onward ye will tread With JESUS as your Fellow To JESUS as your Head !

O happy, if ye labour As JESUS did for men : O happy, if ye hunger As JESUS hunger'd then !

The Cross that JESUS carried He carried as your due : The Crown that JESUS weareth He weareth it for you.

4

The Faith by which ye see Him, The Hope, in which ye yearn, The Love that through all troubles To Him alone will turn,—

What are they, but vaunt-couriers To lead you to His Sight ? What are they, save the efflu'nce Of Uncreated Light ?

The trials that beset you, The sorrows ye endure, The manifold temptations That Death alone can cure,—

What are they, but His Jewels Of right celestial worth ? What are they but the ladder, Set up to Heav'n on earth ?

O happy band of pilgrims, Look upward to the skies ;— Where such a light affliction Shall win you such a prize !

THE RETURN HOME.*

I

SAFE home, safe home in port ! —Rent cordage, shatter'd deck, Torn sails, provisions short, And only not a wreck : But oh ! the joy upon the shore To tell our voyage-perils o'er !

The prize, the prize secure ! The athlete nearly fell; Bare all he could endure, And bare not always well: But he may smile at troubles gone Who sets the victor-garland on !

No more the foe can harm : No more of leaguer'd camp, And cry of night-alarm, And need of ready lamp : And yet how nearly he had fail'd,— How nearly had that foe prevail'd ! 4

The lamb is in the fold In perfect safety penn'd : The lion once had hold, And thought to make an end : But One came by with Wounded Side, And for the sheep the Shepherd died.

The exile is at Home ! —Oh nights and days of tears, Oh longings not to roam, Oh sins, and doubts, and fears,— What matter now, when (so men say) The King has wip'd those tears away?

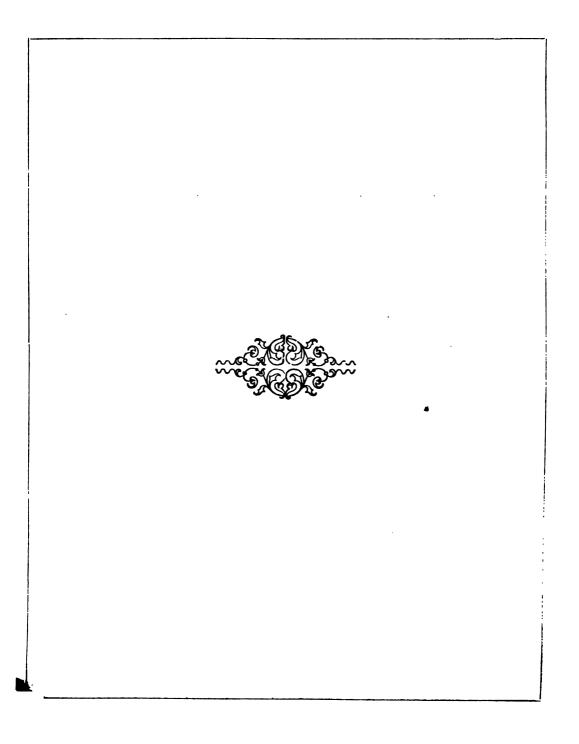

б

O happy, happy Bride ! Thy widow'd hours are past, The Bridegroom at thy side, Thou all His own at last ! The sorrows of thy former cup In full fruition swallow d up !

S. ANDREW OF CRETE.

[CANON FOR] MESO-PENTECOST.*

[WEDNESDAY OF THE FOURTH WEEK AFTER EASTER.]

The day which halves the distance between Easter and Pentecost is a feast of no small dignity in the Oriental Church; and the Canon at Lauds is the composition of our present poet. I will try a portion of it in rhymeless lyric metre, which, to my own mind, gives the truest representation of the original.

ODE I.

[*Εθνη κροτήσατε.]

EXULT, ye Gentiles ! mourn, ye Hebrews ! CHRIST, Giver of Life, hath burst The fetters of the Tomb: And rais'd the dead again, and heal'd the sick. This is our GOD, Who giveth health To ev'ry soul believing on His Name.

Marvel of marvels ! Thou, O LORD, didst turn The water into wine, As once Thou spak'st the word To Egypt's river, and forthwith 'twas blood. All praise to Thee, O LORD, Who now By laying down Thy glory, man renew'st !

O overflowing Stream of truest life, Our Resurrection LORD ! Thou for our sakes didst toil, Thou for our sakes—so Nature will'd—didst thirst : And resting Thee by Sichar's well, Of the Samaritan didst seek to drink,

Thou blessest bread, Thou multipliest fish, Incomprehensible ! Thou freely feed'st the crowd, And givest Wisdom's spring to thirsting men. Thou art our SAVIOUR, O our GOD ! Giver of Life to them that trust in Thee ! Glory [to the FATHER, and to the SON, and to the Holy GHOST.]

Three Co-eternal, Co-enthroned, I laud : The Unbegotten SIRE, And Co-existent SON, And SPIRIT, Co-eternal with the Twain : Tri-hypostatic Essence ! One In might, and majesty, and God-head sole.

Both now, [and ever, and to the ages of the ages. Amene.

.Theotokion.]

Mother of GOD ! Thou only didst contain The Uncontainable ; And brought'st the Infant forth, Ineffable in thy Virginity. Hence without ceasing, O most pure, Vouchsafe to call down blessing on Thy flock !

Catavasia.

Thou turn'dst the sea to land, when Thou didst whelm Phar'oh and all his host, His chariot and his horse : And ledd'st Thy people to the Holy Mount. 'Sing we,' said they, 'to Thee our GOD, 'Mighty in war this Ode of Victory !

[* Omitted from after page 20.]

GREEK PROSOMOION.

In contrast with the above Stanzas,* the reader may not be displeased to compare the celebrated sequence of Adam of S. Victor, Heri mundus exultavit; which has never yet, I believe, appeared in English.

HERI MUNDUS EXULTAVIT.

I

YESTERDAY, with exultation Join'd the world in celebration Of her promis'd Saviour's birth : Yesterday the Angel nation Pour'd the strains of jubilation O'er the Monarch born on earth.

But to-day, o'er death victorious, By his faith and actions glorious, By his miracles renown'd, Dar'd the Deacon Proto-martyr Earthly life for Heav'n to barter, Faithful midst the faithless found.

Forward, champion, in thy quarrel ! Certain of a certain laurel, Holy Stephen, persevere ! Perjur'd witnesses confounding, Satan's synagogue astounding By thy doctrine true and dear.

Lo ! in Heav'n thy Witness liveth ; Bright and faithful proof He giveth Of His Martyr's full success : Thou by name a Crown impliest ; Meetly then in pangs thou diest For the Crown of Righteousness ! 5

For a Crown that fadeth never, Bear the tort'rer's brief endeavour, Vict'ry waits to end the strife, Death shall be thy birth's beginning, And life's losing be the winning Of a true and better life.

Whom the Holy GHOST endueth, Whom celestial sight imbueth, Stephen penetrates the skies : There GoD's fullest glory viewing, There his victor strength renewing, For his near reward he sighs.

See, as Jewish foes invade thee, See, how JESUS stands to aid thee : Stands, to guard His champion's death ! Cry that open'd Heav'n is shown thee : Cry that JESUS waits to own thee : Cry it with thy latest breath !

As the dying Martyr kneeleth, For his murd'rers he appealeth, And his prayer their pardon sealeth, For their madness grieving sore ; Then in CHRIST he sleepeth sweetly, Who His pattern kept completely, And with CHRIST he reigneth meetly, Martyr first-fruits, evermore !

[* At page 8, which, in the First Edition, the present hymn immediately followed. The hymn on page 26 came next.] [† In the last stanza, strains 1 and 4 of the music must be repeated for lines 2 and 6.]

THE order of the bar-lines in the tune No. 21, page 55, is musically quite correct, but it was intended to make it similar to that of the companion tune of like measure, No. 43, page 113, to suit the mixed rhythm of the words. The performer is not at all affected by the divergence; the eye of the æsthetic idealist alone somewhat suffers.

III.

In spite of every care,—and the proofs of the present work were read independently in three quarters— London, Bristol, and the extremity of South Wales,—a few small faults and dropped letters have escaped detection till too late for correction.
